NOTICE.

A new edition of the GUIDE BOOK (formerly called the Year Book) of the Friendly Societies Registry Office is now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode, price 6*d.*, or by post 8*d.*

REPORTS of the CHIEF REGISTRAR of FRIENDLY SOCIETIES, for the Year ending 31st December 1892, pursuant to 34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, s. 17; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 60, s. 10; and 39 & 40 Vict. c. 45, s. 25.

PART A.

Report.

BY the statutes above mentioned I am required every year to "lay before Parliament a Report of my proceedings and of those of the Assistant Registrars, and of the principal matters transacted by me and them, and of the valuations returned to or caused to be made by the Registrar during the year preceding." As usual, the present Report will relate chiefly to the proceedings of Mr. Sim, the Assistant Registrar for England, and of myself, as constituting the Central Office; those of Mr. Smith, the Assistant Registrar for Scotland, and Mr. Miley, the Assistant Registrar for Ireland, being stated in their separate Reports appended hereto; but I cannot proceed to the statement of our transactions in England without referring to the great loss the public service has sustained by the death of Mr. William Francis Littledale, late Assistant Registrar for Ireland.

Mr. Littledale's connection with the Registry of Friendly Societies dated as far back as the year 1854, when Mr. E. Lysaght Griffin was appointed Registrar of Friendly Societies for Ireland. Mr. Griffin was a practising barrister, and "finding it inconvenient to have societies coming to his private chambers, and seeing the great disappointment which was caused by parties coming when he was absent in court," he consulted Mr. Littledale, his solicitor, who, not at all imagining that the trouble would be so great as it ultimately proved to be, offered him the use of his office; and undertook to perform the detail duties of the Registry, referring only cases of peculiar difficulty to the Registrar. He found the documents left at Dublin Castle by Mr. Griffin's predecessor "quite unsorted," and at once set to work to prepare an Report. index. Her Majesty's Friendly Societies Commissioners, in their Second Report (1872), stated that "the energy and good-will" which he had thrown into the discharge of his vicarious functions had brought the Irish office into a state of great efficiency, and its administration appeared to be almost universally popular . . . Not one vice-registrar in a thousand could be expected to display the same qualities as Mr. Littledale." Accordingly, when the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, enabled the office of Assistant Registrar for Ireland to be held by a solicitor instead of as theretofore only by a barrister, and placed it in direct connection with the Central Office, the appointment was offered to Mr. Littledale, and accepted by him. With regard, however, both to the period before 1875, when the English and Irish offices were wholly distinct, but in frequent friendly communication, and to the period since 1875, when our relation has been that of official colleagues, my associations with Mr. Littledale have been most agreeable and cordial. His sentiments towards Mr. Ludlow are expressed in the last sentence of his last Report (p. 62, Report for 1891).

I.—Business of the Central Office in 1892.

This is shown by the following Tables, from which it appears that the number of bodies for the first time registered or certified was 948, being 171 fewer than in 1891. The diminution was 20 in Friendly Societies, 59 in branches, 2 in Cattle Insurance Societies, 15 in Specially Authorised Societies, 61 in Building Societies, 35 in Trade Unions, 2 in Railway Savings Banks, 3 in Scientific and Literary Societies. There were increases of 1 Benevolent Society, 7 Working Men's Clubs, and 18 Industrial and Provident Societies. The diminution in Building Societies and Trade Unions arises no doubt from the numerous failures in the one case, and from the subsidence of the recent extension of the movement in the other. In the number of documents other than rules of new societies submitted for registry, there is a considerable increase over the year 1891.

The number of dissolutions by instrument under the Friendly Societies Acts increased by 25, and under the Building Societies Acts by five; those of Industrial and Provident Societies diminished by one. The dissolutions by notice, where no instrument of dissolution is registered, increased in Building Societies by 23; the notices of termination of dissolution increasing by five. The intimations of irregular dissolution of societies under the Friendly Societies Acts increased by 107, and the notices of dissolution of branches without instrument by 42. The notices of winding-up Industrial and Provident Societies increased by three, those of Building Societies by 8, and the notices of dissolution of Trade Unions by 13. The increase in the number of informal dissolutions recorded is due to some extent to the enquiries which have been made by the office for the purpose of more thoroughly enforcing returns and valuations from societies.

† The Loan Societies register is now being revised, and there is every reason to believe that it will be found that this number greatly exceeds the number of these societies still in existence. Generally, the number of forms of returns issued exceeds the number of societies given in Table XXVI., through societies having been dissolved.

The societies not subject to valuation were 114 out of 179, or 64 per cent. None of the registries appear to call for any special remark.

The 21st June 1893 will be the hundredth anniversary of the passing of the first Friendly Societies Act, commonly called Sir George Rose's Act, the 33 Geo. III., c. 54. One would like to see it marked by some observance on the part of the societies, for there are few statutes which have had a more beneficial effect. Though this Act was five times amended (1795, 1803, 1809, 1817, 1819) and the law has since been five times consolidated (1829, 1850, 1855, 1875, 1887) with numerous amending Acts intervening, its essential principle and many of its details have remained unaltered to this day. That essential principle is the liberty of people to combine for provident purposes with or without registry, the granting of registry upon easy conditions, and the attracting towards registry by the offer of privileges rather than the enforcing it by the threat of disabilities. The numerous amending Acts show that the mind of the legislature has swung backwards and forwards like a pendulum, now in the direction of freedom, now in that of restraint, but it has always settled down where it now rests, and where the Act of 1793 first placed it. One recurs with delight to the quaint language of that Act, defining friendly societies as "Societies of good Fellowship, for the Purpose of raising from Time to Time, by Subscription of the several Members of every such Society, or by voluntary Contributions, a Stock or Fund for the mutual Relief and Maintenance of all and every the Members thereof, in Old Age, Sickness, and Infirmity, or for the Relief of the Widows and Children of deceased Members," asserting that "the Protection and Encouragement of Friendly Societies in this Kingdom . . . is likely to be attended with very beneficial Effects, by promoting the Happiness of Individuals, and at the same Time diminishing the public Burthens," and empowering the members of each such Society, "to make, ordain, and constitute . . . proper and wholesome Rules, Orders, and Regulations for the better Government and Guidance of the same."

Among the privileges which the Act of 1793 afforded to enrolled Friendly Societies, continued by the present law to registered Friendly Societies, are the following:—

1. A cheap and speedy means of recovery against defaulting officers. County Courts not being in existence in 1793 (except in the rare survivals of the ancient historical form), recourse had to be made to the High Court of Chancery or the Court of Exchequer (now both abolished); but those courts were directed to proceed "in a summary way," no officer or minister of the court was to receive any fee, reward, emolument, or gratuity whatsoever, for anything done by him; the Lord High Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, and Barons of the Exchequer, respectively, were to assign counsel learned in the law, and appoint a clerk of the court to advise and carry on the proceedings on behalf of the society, who were required to do their duties therein without fee or reward; and no proceedings were to be chargeable with any stamp duty.

2. Priority on the death, or bankruptcy, or insolvency of an officer over all other debts. This privilege has been frequently threatened in Bankruptcy Acts and otherwise, but has survived.

3. Vesting of property in treasurer or trustees by virtue of their appointment, without assignment or transfers; and provision against abatement of actions on death or removal of treasurer or trustees.

4. Protection of the funds against misapplication or illegal distribution.

5. Rules made receivable in evidence, and no certiorari allowed.

6. Provision for the settlement of disputes by arbitration, and for the ordering of grievances by justices where the rules do not provide for arbitration.

Publication of Information.

On two occasions the Central Office has found it necessary to publish information useful to persons interested in particular registered Friendly Societies, under the approval of the Lords of the Treasury, in addition to the general information contained in this Report and the other publications of the office.

In the first case the following advertisement was inserted in papers likely to reach those interested :—

English Industrial Friendly Society, 130, Duke-street, Liverpool.
Reg. No. 7434.

NOTICE BEFORE CANCELLING OF REGISTRY.

Notice is hereby given that it is my intention to proceed, on the 31st day of December 1892, to cancel the registry of the above-named society, unless cause be shown to the contrary in the meantime.

The ground of such cancelling is that the society has ceased to exist.

The society having failed to make the annual return required by law for the year ending 31st December 1891, proceedings were taken by my directions against the secretary, and he was fined 1*l*. The return being afterwards made, it appeared that the only assets of the society at that date amounted to 91*l*. 18*s*. 5½*d*., of which 70*l*. represented the value of office furniture, and 21*l*. 13*s*. 5½*d*. cash in agents' hands. There was a sum of 862*l*. 5*s*. 5½*d*. due from the management fund to the benefit fund.

The auditors reported that the society was insolvent, and that in their opinion no further business should be transacted by it.

This advertisement is inserted pursuant to S. 10 (5 b.) of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, as being information useful to persons who might otherwise have dealings with the society.

The registry of the society was accordingly cancelled on the 31st December.

In the second case the courtesy of the editor of the "Times" enabled the Central Office to give publicity to the following letter :—

To the Editor of the "Times."

Sir,

Inquiries having been made at this office as to a prospectus, bearing at the foot a copy of an acknowledgment of registry issued by us on 22 November 1892, to a society called "The Independent Order of Foresters for the United Kingdom," but containing in the body particulars which are wholly inapplicable to that society, we think it desirable that the public should be informed what the real constitution of the society is. It is registered as a society capable of having registered branches termed courts, but it differs from the regular affiliated orders in two respects.

1. The only fund administered by each court is that set aside for local management, the bulk of the contributions being transmitted to the central body of the society. It is thus akin rather to a collecting society than to an order.

2. It is "in connection with" a body incorporated in Canada; and so long as such connection continues to be recognised by that corporation, and the rule authorising it remains unrescinded, the rules of that corporation apply to the society "so far as they are not contrary to its rules or to the Friendly Societies Acts."

In registering the society with this unusual provision, we thought it right to inform the society that if the rules of the Canadian corporation contain any provisions—(1) for imposing other terms of admission of members, or conditions of benefit, or fines and forfeitures than those specified in the rules of the society; (2) for directing any other application of the funds than as specified in those rules, or any vesting of any portion of them other than in the trustees of the society, such provisions are contrary to the Friendly Societies Acts, and, therefore, do not affect the members of the society; and we also stated that the courts of the society would not be able to act until they had been registered. No court has yet been registered in England.

The prospectus referred to contains tables of assurance for sums up to 600*l.*, whereas a registered friendly society cannot assure more than 200*l.*; it refers to annuity assurances, whereas these cannot be granted by a friendly society, unless the tables of contributions have been certified by an actuary, and this society has had no such tables certified; and it states that 20,000*l.* has been deposited with the Government, whereas a registered friendly society makes no such deposit. This prospectus appears to us, therefore, to be essentially misleading; and, if so, the persons who issue it incur serious responsibility. Any person who may have dealings with them should be cautious in inquiring as to the constitution of the body with which he is entering into relation, so as not, on the one hand, to find himself a member of a colonial corporation when he thought he was joining a registered British friendly society, or, on the other hand, to find himself a party to transactions in a registered friendly society which are not permitted by the Friendly Societies Acts.

Registry of Friendly Societies,
Central Office, 28, Abingdon-street, S.W.,
13 January, 1893.

The following answer shortly after appeared:—

To the Editor of the "Times."

Sir,

My attention having been drawn to the letter in the "Times" of Saturday of Mr. E. W. Brabrook, of the Registry of Friendly Societies, Central Office, referring to the registration of the Independent Order of Foresters for the United Kingdom as a friendly society, believing that that letter, because of its quasi-official character may cause doubt and misapprehension where neither should exist, and also feeling myself called upon, in justice to the order I represent, to defend it from any such misunderstanding, I ask you to permit me briefly to reply.

Report.

Friendly Societies.

The Independent Order of Foresters is a Canadian organisation, and we advertise it as having been incorporated there by special Act of Parliament.

The order offers life insurance at 200*l.*, 400*l.*, and 600*l.*, and on the Western Continent also offers sick and funeral benefits.

Under the constitution of the order the two branches and their funds are separate and distinct. It having been decided to extend the order to the United Kingdom, proceedings were taken to arrange all preliminaries Twenty thousand pounds was on 14th November last deposited with the proper officer, as shown by the certificate of lodgment, signed by J. W. Opperman for the Assistant Paymaster-General. We also desired to extend the second branch of the order to the people here, viz., sick and funeral benefits; our agents were informed by counsel that could only be done after registration as a friendly society, and accordingly the Independent Order of Foresters for the United Kingdom was formed and registered as a friendly society, acting in conjunction with the Independent Order of Foresters. I was then sent on here from Canada as general superintendent. I discovered upon reading the Friendly Societies Act that it contained a very narrow clause (Section 27), that is to say, under the law as it is, should a man insure in more than one friendly society for sums aggregating, say, for illustration, 600*l.*, whilst the societies could collect premiums in full, and no provision is made in the law to compel a proportionate refund, his beneficiaries could only claim 200*l.* in the aggregate. I decided at once that we should not be a party to cause any such injustice, and accordingly we have not so much as attempted to do any business as a registered friendly society All policies issued are by virtue of the right of the I.O.F. to do business as an insurance body, and, as received, are presented at Somerset House and stamped, no matter though the policy be for 200*l.* only, which, under the Friendly Societies Act, does not require to be stamped.

As to registration of courts, it is true no branch courts have been registered for the reason I have already given; but even had we given those benefits, in face of the language of Sub-section 2 of Section 29 of the Friendly Societies Act, read with Sub-section 6 of the same Section, I submit, with full deference to Mr. Brabrook's opinion, that branches would not have to register.

Twenty thousand pounds have been deposited with the Government. We never claimed to have made that deposit as a friendly society. Our prospectus does not appear to us to be "essentially misleading," nor do we imagine we incur any serious responsibility in issuing it. There is no necessity for caution in approaching us. Our plan is simple, and within the grasp of the most ordinary intellect. We have to-day over 43,000 members, and I can freely say no man ever entered the order under a misapprehension of fact. Our growth exceeds 1,000 members per month. We have paid over 220,000*l.* in benefits. We have over 116,000*l.* accumulated funds. We cannot take but 5 per cent. of premium moneys for expense of management. We court investigation at all times. No similar society in the world keeps pace with the I.O.F. We have come to stay. Already we have five courts in the metropolitan district, and several under way. So long as we pursue here, as shall ever be our aim, the same honest, straightforward, and business-like course adhered to by the management at headquarters, we shall have no fears for our success. The I.O.F. is not operating as a registered friendly society, but is transacting business as an organisation which, having complied with the law by depositing 20,000*l.*, is legally entitled to give to those who may be admitted into membership the benefits it offers.

(signed) N. F. Paterson,
General Superintendent of I.O.F. for United Kingdom.

24, Charing-cross, London,
16 January.

With respect to this answer it may be remarked:—

1. That the letter of this office was official, and not "quasi official," being written under the authority of s. 10 (5) of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875.

2. That

2. That Mr. Paterson's reading of Section 27 of the Act is beside the question, as the rules of the registered Friendly Society do not provide for any assurance on death exceeding 10*l.*

3. That the rules of the Society expressly provide that every Court shall be registered.

4. That the prospectus issued by the society placed the receipt for the 20,000*l.*, and the acknowledgment of registry as a Friendly Society both together, as if they belonged to the same concern; whereas not one penny of the 20,000 l. belongs to the Friendly Society, and none of the members of the Canadian corporation have any rights under the Friendly Societies Acts, both bodies being entirely distinct.

It became necessary, therefore, to write again, as follows:—

To the Editor of "The Times."

Sir,—Mr. N. F. Paterson, General Superintendent of the I. O. F. for the United Kingdom, says, in his letter in "The Times" of the 23rd of January, that "the I. O. F. is not operating as a registered Friendly Society"; but he does not explain how the acknowledgment of registry of the Friendly Society came to be printed upon its prospectus as if it were so operating.

If the registered Friendly Society does not intend to do business, I shall be ready to receive from its trustees a request in the prescribed form to cancel its registry.

Meanwhile, this office repeats its caution to all who may have dealings with the Independent Order of Foresters on the footing of the prospectus in question.

I am, &c.
(signed) E. W. Brabrook,
Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies.

Registry of Friendly Societies, Central Office,
28, Abingdon-street, S.W., 24 Jan.

To this Mr. Paterson returned an evasive and unsatisfactory answer, and the trustees have made no request to cancel registry; but the misleading prospectus appears to have been withdrawn.

I have had great pleasure, having first obtained the approval of the Lords of the Treasury, in complying with a request from the Board of Trade that a list of the Friendly Societies, Industrial and Provident Societies, and Trade Unions, registered and dissolved each month, should be furnished to the Labour Department of that Board for insertion in the "Labour Gazette."

Valuations.

It is an especial requirement of the Friendly Societies Acts that this annual Report should set forth the valuations returned to or caused to be made by the Registrar during the year. None were caused to be made by the Registrar. The number returned to the Registrar was as follows:—

England and Wales - - - -	3,779
Scotland - - - - - -	206
Ireland - - - - - -	17
Total - - -	4,002

Report.

Friendly Societies.

If to these be added those received in 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, the total for the quinquennium is 15,742. Compared with previous similar periods, this shows a very satisfactory increase, as follows:

Five years,	1878–82	- - -	13,141 valuations.
„	„ 1888–92	- - -	15,742 „

Mr. Sutton, the Actuary, reports that many of the valuations received give indications that valuers are, by slow degrees, getting better acquainted with the duties they have to fulfil; but there is still only too much evidence of the existence of imperfect actuarial acquirements on the part of those who undertake to act as valuers. The details of the valuations received during the last five years will be published in a separate Appendix to this Report.

The increase in the number of valuations made, and the number of societies formally exempted from valuation, will tend largely to diminish the number of societies in default. I must still, however, remind the societies that something more is required to be done than merely to hang up the valuation in the registered office. If it shows a deficiency, then the taking steps to meet such deficiency is a matter of urgent necessity; and even if it shows no deficiency, care must be taken that the conditions of the valuation as to the rate of interest earned on the investments are fulfilled. [See further on this question, pp. 22—24, post.]

*Disputes.

The following dispute was settled by me:—

Rich v. United Christian Sick and Burial Society (Amendment of Rule), 17 May.—The claimant had been one of the founders of the Society in 1864. By Rule 5, as amended in 1881, a member was entitled to 15 weeks' full pay, and 15 weeks' half pay. The funds of the Society appearing upon a valuation to be largely deficient, an amendment was made and registered on 17th June 1891, reducing the terms of full and half pay to 10 weeks each. On 12th October 1891 Mr. Rich declared on the funds When his 10 weeks' full pay had expired, he claimed to be entitled to a continuance of full pay for five weeks longer, upon the ground that the Society could not alter its contract with him without his consent. Held, that the amendment of 1891 applied to the claimant. Award, that he was not entitled as claimed; costs against claimant.

The

* During the 17 years since the passing of the Act of 1875, which enabled parties to refer their disputes by consent to the Chief Registrar, only 19 disputes in Friendly Societies have been so referred; usually one in each year, sometimes rising to two, never going beyond that number. This is scarcely to be attributed either to distrust of the Chief Registrar's judicial faculty, or to a contented and happy disposition on the part of members of Societies, for the requests that reach this office for our opinion on ex parte statements may be numbered by hundreds every year, instead of units. It need hardly be said that such requests can never be complied with. The reason that references to the Chief Registrar are so few is probably that the consent of both parties cannot always be easily obtained, neither being willing to approach the other for the purpose, and that the right to refer disputes to the Chief Registrar as an alternative to the manner of settlement provided by the rules is not mentioned in the rules themselves, but only in the Statute.

The Affiliated Orders.

The number of branches registered during the year was 550, being 42 less than in 1891. Of these 440 were new branches, distributed as follows :—

The Independent Order of Rechabites, Salford Unity, still registers more new branches than any other Order, though its new branches are 54 fewer than in the previous year.

The Manchester Unity of Odd Fellows takes the second place, its new branches being 16 more than in 1891. The society which was in the second place in that year, the Royal Hearts of Oak Yearly Dividing Friendly Society, gives way to five others, having registered this year 59 fewer branches. I am requested to correct a statement inadvertently made in my last Report, that this Society is under the same management with the Ancient Benefit Friendly Society. The Order of the Sons of Temperance registers the same number of branches as in 1891. The total number of new branches registered by the various temperance orders was 154.

In giving evidence before the Royal Commission on Labour on the 27th October, questions were asked me as to the constitution of the affiliated orders, which were answered by me in some detail. It may be convenient to set forth here the substance of my examination on this head.

By the Duke of Devonshire.—

1262. Would you just state here what is an affiliated order?—An affiliated order is a society having branches. These are the largest and most active bodies bodies with which we have to deal. The Ancient Order of Foresters had 830,720 members of all kinds, and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity, had 769,503 contributing members on the 1st January of this year. These two great Orders largely outnumber the others. The number of members in England and Wales of all the branches of affiliated orders, actually registered as such, and making returns, was 1,727,809, and the number of branches was 16,400 ; but both these figures require considerable additions, by the transfer from the list of independent societies of societies that are not so in fact, but have not converted themselves into legal branches of the orders with which they are in fact associated. In last year alone, 499 new branches were registered, and 93 old independent societies were converted into branches. Before allowing one's mind to be led away by these very large figures, it is necessary clearly to understand what a branch really is. The legal definition of a branch is a number of the members of a society under the control of a central body having a separate fund or funds under the control of the branch itself, or its committee or officers ; and a society cannot be registered as a society with branches unless it has a fund or funds under the control of its central body, to which every branch contributes. The central fund or funds, and the branch fund or funds, are thus both essentials to the legal existence of a society with branches. But that is all that the law requires, and therefore every degree of centralization, provided there be a local fund, however small, and every degree of localisation, provided there be a central fund, however small, are consistent with the legal definition of a society having branches. Thus there are societies where the central body provides all the benefits, and the branches are only allowed to reserve to themselves a fund for the local management ; and there are societies where the branches provide all the benefits and contribute to the central body only a nominal sum sufficient to defray the expenses of keeping the central office open.

Report.

Affiliated Orders.

1264. Then, when you speak of an affiliated society, you mean a society which has branches ?—A society which has branches. The societies at one extreme end of the scale are little different from the collecting societies, to which I shall have presently to refer ; and, indeed, it is hardly uncharitable to say that they have adopted the form of societies with branches mainly for the purpose of avoiding the operation of Section 30 of the Act. This is a section expressly applied to the collecting societies ; that is, societies which send round from house to house to receive the subscriptions for burial money from the members. They are altogether a separate class of societies from the ordinary friendly societies, which provide for sickness. The societies at the other end of the scale are the true affiliated orders, and it may show how weak the central tie really is to state that the criterion of contribution to a central fund was itself the creation of the Act. Before the passing of the Act the branches generally made no contribution whatever to the central funds of their orders, the whole of the central expenses being defrayed out of the profits arising from the sale of regalia and other things of that kind, which the orders required every branch to purchase from the central body. It is a curious instance of the indirect effect of legislation that the requirement of the Act that there shall be a central fund has led to a great advance in the direction of centralisation ; for the two great orders, and many of the smaller ones, being required by law to have a central fund arranged for a contribution of a halfpenny or a penny per member per annum to a fund for assisting distressed branches, and they are slowly building up a system whereby, in the long run. the orders may possibly be able to guarantee the solvency of their branches. At present that is not the case. Every branch is as financially independent as if it were a distinct society. One branch may have charged proper contributions, carefully supervised its claims, been economical in its management, husbanded and properly invested its funds, and thus accumulated a large fund ; no other branch has any claim whatever on that fund or any portion of it. Another branch may have charged insufficient rates, been loosely managed, wasted its money, and thus have incurred losses, or may have been merely unfortunate, and suffered from a severe run of sickness, and thus have small funds but it cannot call upon the prosperous branch to contribute to meet the deficiency. If the central fund for assisting branches should ever be large enough enough for the purpose, it may be used to meet cases of this kind, but at present it is too small to do more than give a slight relief in a few of the more deserving cases. It results from this, that the distressed branches have no sort of legal claim, either on the successful branches or on the central fund of the order. Whatever relief is given from that fund is given as a matter of discretion on the part of the board of directors of the order who administer it, and it is not given to a branch which has in any way broken the rules of the order, especially in regard to those excellent rules which the better orders have of late years adopted, requiring the branches to have proper rates of contribution for the benefits they ensure. They have also of late years claimed the power of directing the application of surplus funds in a branch. Though the result of all this is that we are on the way, by slow degrees, to a more complete centralisation, the fact remains that the present legal condition of the branches is one of complete financial independence, and that, in that respect, there is no difference whatever between a branch of an order and an independent village society. However much we may talk about the excellent organisation and the large membership of the orders, and there is no one who admires and sympathises with them more than I do, it is always necessary to remember that in essence they are nothing more than an aggregation for consultative purposes, of a vast number of small independent societies. The Act of 1875 and the decision in the important case, Schofield v. Vause, have enabled them to enforce terms and conditions of secession which hold the branches together for the purpose I have mentioned, but for purposes of practical finance they are in the main isolated and independent bodies. It seems to me important to make this clear before I proceed to describe the arrangements made by the orders bearing upon industrial migration. These are of two kinds; they provide relief to members travelling in search of employment, or, in the expressive language commonly used, "on tramp"; and they provide under certain conditions for the transfer of a member from one branch to another, and for the acceptance by the branch to which he removes of the liabilities of his original branch towards him, which they call "drawing a clearance." I wish to make this clear, because it is very often misunderstood. Then the orders have some elaborate arrangements, which I do not think I need go into at any length for allowing members relief when they are travelling in search of employment, and for allowing a clearance to a member from one branch to another when he removes from the neighbourhood in which he lives. Those are advantages which they have over the independent societies.

1318. I think you said that you had made some estimates about the annual income and expenditure of the friendly societies?—Yes. I took the independent societies and the affiliated societies separately, and in regard to the independent societies, I estimated the amounts of the contributions of members as 1,707,000*l.*, and their other receipts, including interest, fines, and other matters of that kind, as 410,000*l.*, making a total of 2,117,000*l.*

1319. These are the independent societies?—The independent societies. Then, on the other side, the benefits they grant are 1,596,000*l.* Their expenses are 195,000*l.*, and the amount they have saved in the course of the year was 326,000*l.*, which balances the 2,117,000*l.* on the other side.

By Mr. Dale.

1320. Is this for some recent year?—This is an estimate which I have prepared from the last published returns, corrected by the returns prepared for Mr. Chamberlain last year, and it is as nearly accurate as I can make it.

1321. Representing the operations of a single year?—Representing the operations of a single year. We are preparing the detailed return for the year 1891, but that is not sufficiently ready to use it yet, and these returns, estimates, of mine will be subject to correction by that return, when it is published, but I fancy they will not very largely differ. Then for the affiliated orders in like manner, the contributions are 3,024,000*l.*, other receipts, 531,000*l.*; total, 3,055,000*l.*; benefits, 2,681,000*l*; expenses, 449,000*l.*; saved

Report.

Affiliated Orders.

saved on the year, 425,000*l.*; total, 3,055,000*l.*, as before. Then the total of the two, that is, the ordinary friendly societies and their branches, including the affiliated orders, but not including the collecting societies, is, contributions, 4,731,000*l.*; other receipts, 941,000*l.*; and total, 5,672,000*l.*; benefits, 4,277,000*l.*; expenses, 644,000*l.*; saved, 751,000*l.*; total, 5,672,000*l.*, as before.

1322. Those are the figures relating to what?—Relating to purely friendly societies, including the affiliated orders, but not including the collecting societies, nor any of the various classes of societies, such as the benevolent and working men's clubs, or any of those.

1323. You said that these societies had a direct connection with the industrial population, and represented the savings they had accumulated, but you would not put those figures you have just mentioned as representing the whole of the savings of the working classes?—Not at all; merely such portion of their savings as they have invested in registered friendly societies for the purpose of providing sick pay and funeral money, and of course including in those registered friendly societies only such as make returns. I have no knowledge of those which do not make returns, except when I have to prosecute them and recover a penalty from them.

By Mr. Bolton.

1324. Still they are registered societies?—Still they are registered societies, and some allowance ought to be made for the facts relating to them.

1325. Table 16 in your report, which you referred to in the beginning of your evidence, includes the number of members of friendly societies, collecting societies, other societies under the Friendly Societies Acts, industrial and provident societies, building societies, trade unions (including some unregistered), loan societies, railway savings banks, trustee savings banks (United Kingdom), and post office savings banks?—Yes.

1327. You could not give the Commission any estimate of what, in your opinion, the savings of the working classes in the United Kingdom amount to in a year?—I am afraid it would be impossible to give any trustworthy evidence. It depends upon so many particulars, as to which there really is no authentic information to be obtained. I should like to proceed a little further into detail in regard to this matter of the annual income of the friendly societies, if the Commission pleases. From the point of view of the average contribution of each member I think it is interesting. I find that in the affiliated orders the average contribution is 1*l.* 11*s.* per annum, 1*l.* 7*s.* for benefit and 4*s.* for management. I will, just in passing, mention as a curious circumstance that that happens to be the exact average of the contributions of members to a series of 25 of the largest trade unions, which I have taken out and propose to put in later on. It is a curious coincidence, because the disposition of the money in a trade union is very different from the disposition of the money in a friendly society. But it does happen that the contributions of members to the affiliated orders and the contributions of members to the selected body of large trade unions happen to be the same figure, 31*s.* But when we come to look to the contributions in the independent societies they are very much smaller on the average. Indeed, the mechanical average (which is simply worked out by dividing the contributions by the number of members) is only 15*s.* per member, or less than half that of the affiliated orders. But that has to be corrected from two points of view. First of all, the mechanical average does not give the real state of the case, unless you exclude from consideration the extreme cases, and there are extreme cases at both ends of the line. I have shown the contributions in the shape of a diagram, which shows at once that the main stress lies very much higher than 15*s.*, something more near 18*s.* 6*d.* It also has to be corrected from this consideration, that among the independent societies there are are a vast number of societies for burial alone who do not insure sick pay at all, and therefore they ought to be excluded from consideration before you take the average from the general body. But taking all these things into consideration I do not think that the average contribution per number in the independent societies is very much more than 1*l.*, and therefore it shows, I think, that the independent societies want very much to screw up their contributions, and that explains the circumstance that the independent societies show up in their valuations not nearly so well as the affiliated orders do. The independent societies being scattered all over the country, have not learned by experience the necessity of raising their contributions to the extent that the affiliated orders have. And it shows something more, I think. It shows that the independent societies belong to a rather lower stratum in general. I am only speaking of very broad averages. They belong to a rather lower stratum in wage-earning power, we will say, of the population, than the members of the affiliated orders belong to. They are not able to afford quite so much as the members of the affiliated orders can afford. I have no information to give as to what relation that 31*s.*, which is the average that the affiliated orders pay, and is the amount to which independent societies ought to screw up their own payments, has to the earnings of the classes concerned. I suppose, speaking just from one's general impression, it would be something like, perhaps, a week or a week and a half's pay of the persons employed. I suppose that the class who belong to the affiliated orders are a class to which the upper 25 per cent. of the working class belong who earn 30*s.* a week or more. Therefore, we might estimate it as something like a week's pay which they pay to their friendly societies for sickness and death. It does seem to me, looked at in that light, that there would be room for the ordinary member of an affiliated order to pay, say, another week's pay, in order to get himself a pension in his old age. I do not think that one week's pay is really the extreme measure of what a man ought to be able to afford to provide for the future. I am inclined to think, from that point of view, in makes it very practicable for the friendly societies, if they will only take up the question earnestly, and really mean to do it, to require their members to save a little more for the purpose of providing for old age. It seems to me that the great fault of the friendly society system at present is the attempt to provide for old age by a kind of subterfuge, calling it reduced sick pay, and pay for infirmity, and that kind of thing, instead of which their proper course would be to say, "Our object as a friendly society is to "provide for such sickness as happens to a man when he is able to work, "when he is in the full enjoyment of his bodily powers. It is the business "not of our sick fund but a pension society, which may be established in "connection with us to provide for old age," and they should resolutely and sternly shut their sick funds to claims for old age simply.

1328. When, according to the ordinary rules, does a member of a friendly society cease to be entitled to benefits?—Never, according to the great majority of rules. The societies are very few which actually exclude a member from further claiming sick pay at a given age.

1329. They do undertake, practically, to pay sick pay?—They do undertake to pay sick pay during the whole of life, and, practically, that comes to this, that it is a pension. The man is unable to work, and perhaps he has a little touch of illness which is sufficient to salve his conscience in claiming and to excuse the generosity of the members in granting to him relief, when it is really old age which deprives him of the power to work. The friendly societies, I think, ought to face that question, and to say, "That is not the thing which we are providing for. If you want to "provide for that you must pay for it by a separate contribution, and you "must pay for it to a pension fund, and not the sick fund."

1330. You have given us your estimate of the average amount of the contributions of the members of the independent and affiliated societies, and you know pretty accurately the actual number of members of each?—Yes.

1331. And I suppose it has not been your business to make any estimate of the proportion which the members of these societies bear to the total number of industrial labourers in the country?—No, I asked the question of my friend Mr. Giffen the other day when I met him, whether he could help me to anything like an estimate, and he said he had never ventured on anything of the sort, and I am sure where he has failed I should be very sorry to tread. He said, probably speaking, roughly something like 7,000,000 might be taken as the industrial male population of the country. Well, if that be so, really it looks as if, in one shape or another, a very considerable proportion of the industrial male population are insured in friendly societies or trade unions. You see we have in the registered friendly societies, not including collecting societies, 3 861,519 members. Of course, some may overlap, and be members of more than one society. There are many, for instance, who are members of both the affiliated orders, Foresters and Odd Fellows, &c. But, making all allowances for them, we have, at any rate, more than 3,000,000 of members in the registered friendly societies which make returns. Now, if it be a fact, as the Commission of 1874 thought it was (and I daresay they are correct), that the unregistered societies are as large in extent as the registered societies, we should have to add another 3,000,000 for those. If you add to those the members of the trade unions who are not also members of a friendly society (I do not know how many they may be, but there must be some out of the 871,000 members of trade unions), you get a very large population indeed who are members, in one shape or another, of a friendly society or trade union, and who are providing, by their own exertions, for sickness, and a small sum for funeral expenses at death. It would look as if there was really merely a kind of residuum left of those who are in uncertain work or otherwise, and are not able to insure in some shape or another.

Report.

1332. Would the numbers you have given include the members of the co-operative societies?—No, I was speaking entirely of those who were insured for sick pay and for funeral money; and I confess that I am so startled by the result that I give it with the utmost possible reserve.

By Mr. Livesey.

1333. Many of them are in two or three societies?—Very likely indeed.

1334. And those who are in unregistered societies are sometimes also in registered ones?—Very frequently. They overlap very much.

By Mr. Gerald Balfour.

1335. Some trade unions give no benefits, is it not so, and ought not to be described as friendly societies at all?—Quite so.

By Professor Marshall.

1435. The affiliated societies are increasing more rapidly than are the independent societies?—Yes.

1436. What are the causes of that?—I fancy that their system is more popular, and their management is better, on the whole, than that of the independent societies.

1437. Is one cause that a member of an affiliated society can move to another town, and become a member of a local branch without much trouble?—I think that is one cause. There is a kind of freemasonry among them, by which they are known, and find friends, when they go to a different place.

1438. But have not they the power of transferring their account from one part to another?—Yes, they have arrangements for that purpose.

1439. And is not that a reason why they are popular?—I think it is certainly one reason why they are popular.

1440. The societies founded by women have hitherto been entirely independent, have not they, till the formation of the new United Sisters Society?—I think they have. There have been societies of female Druids and societies of female Foresters; they have been usually independent societies; societies; but they have only taken those names in imitation, I think, of the Druids and the Foresters. Then it should also be mentioned that there are a great number of female Tents and mixed Tents of the Order of Rechabites and the temperance orders; and several orders of Daughters of Temperance have been established for females. Report. Affiliated Orders.

1441. Can you tell me whether the percentage of women's societies that would be insolvent, according to the quinquennial returns, is larger than that of men of the same orders?—I do not know.

1442. The Foresters have it under consideration to admit women as members, have they not?—I believe they have resolved to allow of courts being established consisting wholly of women. I do not think they have authorised mixed courts.

1443. Comparing the relative advantages of the United Sisters Friendly Society and a court of the Foresters society, which should you think to be the more advantageous?—I do not think that that is a question I could undertake to answer. I think that from a financial point of view, as I have tried to explain, a court is really a separate society, and therefore I can imagine a court of Foresters being a very advantageous body for a female to join.

1444. But you could not express any opinion upon the general question about which the friends of women's friendly societies are just now so much concerned—that is, as to whether it is better to form them independently or to join men's societies?—I do not think it advisable to have societies or branches consisting of men and women. I should imagine that, speaking generally, it is more advantageous to have a society or a branch consisting wholly of women, because the liability to sickness is a very different thing in women from what it is in men; but I do not know that I ought to venture to express any opinion further than that.

1476. There is one question I forgot to ask when talking about affiliated societies. Take the case of a man in, say, Bradford, who is a member of the Foresters, and who moves elsewhere, say, to Newcastle, and transfers his membership to Newcastle; can this be a source of financial danger? I mean is it found in practice that if a court has managed its affairs well, and shown a good balance to the good in their accounts, it is rather apt to be sought out by people from a distance?—The transfer is not an absolute right. In a portion of my notes which I did not read, thinking that they went rather too much into detail that was made clear, and with your permission I will refer back to that point. I quote from the provisions as to clearance in the rules of the Ancient Noble Order of United Odd Fellows. Bolton Unity, which, although not one of the largest, is one that has lately got a complete set of amended rules. I have one of their provisions relating to clearance, and then I remark upon that: it appears from these rules that the clearance is not the absolute right of the member. It is surrounded with many conditions, and a lodge is under no obligation to accept it. If a lodge is not satisfied that the amount to be paid over to it from the member's original lodge is sufficient to cover the extra risk incurred through the increased age of the member, the lodge will refuse to accept the clearance. A member who does not draw his clearance may, however, without giving up his membership of his lodge and becoming a member of another, remove to a distance from the place where his lodge is situate, and pay his contribution and receive benefits through the medium of another lodge, paying a small fee (usually 1 s. per annum) for the services of the secretary of that lodge. He can also have medical attendance from the surgeon of that lodge on paying the usual quota of the surgeon's salary. The only disadvantage he is at is that as he is not considered a member of it, he cannot vote or take part in its management, and his distance prevents him from doing so in the management of his own lodge.

1477. But in general, is not it true that many people refuse to join friendly societies where there is no branch of an affiliated order, on the ground that if they were to remove they would practically lose all advantages?—That is certainly one great reason of the popularity of affiliated orders.

Report — Affiliated Orders.

1478. And save in exceptional cases, a member of an affiliated order can do so?—I believe the objection is not often raised in practice, but they have power to raise it.

I have thought that it would not be improper to reprint the foregoing evidence in this Report, and in doing so I have not attempted to revise it in any way, or to correct any inaccuracies of expression into which I may have been betrayed in the course of a long oral examination. Some of the matters which I was called upon to discuss appear to be of importance to the members of affiliated orders. In particular, it seems to be desirable that, while the excellence of their central organisation is kept well in view, the independence and autonomy of their branches should also not be overlooked. Both elements appear to be essential to the prosperity of the Orders. Even in the case of the Manchester Unity of Odd Fellows, which has done more than any other Order to keep its branches in the right path, the day is necessarily far distant when it can with justice be represented as one body, and the aggregate of the separate funds of its branches represented as common funds of the whole. It is true that it has excellent provisions in its general rules for the relief of distressed lodges by the district and the relief of distressed districts by the Order, and reserving to the central body of the Order a negative voice in any distribution of surplus funds by the more prosperous lodges; but all these fall far short of that actual centralisation of the lodge funds and responsibility for the sick and funeral benefits of every member of the whole organisation which would have to be reached before the funds of the respective lodges can rightly be treated as funds of the Order at large. Whether, indeed, the Order would not, if such an aggregation of funds were possible, lose more by the destruction of the independence and weakening of the responsibility of the lodges than it would gain in financial symmetry and stability, is a point to be well considered if ever the question should become a practical one. Meanwhile, it would certainly be desirable that the matter should be placed in its true light on all occasions when the affairs of the Orders are brought before the public.

The periodical reports of the Orders to their members, with copies of which we are favoured, frequently contain interesting statistics; for example, the Ancient Order of Foresters has published in its quarterly report for January 1893 the following Return of the ages of 516,305 of its members on the 31st December 1891:—

One or two points in this return are worthy of notice. As many as 505 out of every 1,000 members are between 16 and 34 years of age, a fact which shows strikingly the effect of the introduction of new members in keeping down the average age of the members of a society, and postponing for it the difficulties arising from the increasing claims of the older members. On the other hand a very considerable number of the members appear to have attained extreme old age. Of the age of 75 and upwards there are 2,329 members; 85 and upwards 403; and there are as many as 97 members of the great age of 95 and upwards. It is to be gathered from this that the moral and physical qualities which lead to membership of a friendly society conduce also to a healthy old age; that circumstance should be borne in mind by those who are responsible for the preparation of annuity tables for friendly societies.

Another important Order has issued a pamphlet (60 pp. quarto) containing the valuations as at the 31st December 1890, of the whole of its Lodges, which is especially interesting, as being a valuation made at one time of every existing branch, showing at a glance the position of all. The general result shows considerable deficiencies, and the central body of the Order are understood to be giving the matter their serious consideration, with a view to steps being taken at the next general meeting of the Order to improve its position. The summary, as prepared by the valuers, is as follows, omitting "000's":—

Affiliated Orders.

It is to be borne in mind that the above summary represents nothing but the aggregates of the separate valuations of 970 financially independent bodies (878 lodges, and 92 districts); some of which have much larger relative deficiencies, and others much smaller, some, indeed, possessing a surplus; and, as we have already seen, each lodge stands upon its own bottom, must meet its own deficiency, or may enjoy its own surplus, as the case may be. As it happens, however, that the total number of branches in this Order is so very near 1,000, the balance sheet we have just quoted, in which the last three "0's" are omitted, will serve very well as the balance sheet of an imaginary average lodge of the Order, of which there will be just as many lodges in a better condition as there are in a worse. It may be worth considering what steps such a lodge should take to meet such a deficiency? Some steps it is bound to take, for it would be morally wrong for the lodge to allow a single new member to join it while it was in such a financial condition as that above disclosed, if, indeed, any person could be found so foolish as to be willing to become a candidate for membership. What is the meaning of the deficiency of 573*l.*? It may mean that the benefits promised, estimated as being worth 2,252*l.*, are so much greater than they ought to be; that the 276*l.*, which is all the lodge has invested, including the 43*l.*, which is its share in the funds of the district, is so much less than it ought to be; that the contributions payable, estimated as being worth 1,494*l.*, are so much less than they ought to be; or all three together. In general, a valuation deficiency will consist of two parts; one part, the cash deficiency arising from the lodge having paid out in the past more, and received in contributions or in interest less, than it ought to have paid and received; the other part arising from the members having agreed to pay less or receive more in the future from the lodge than the valuer has assumed it would be just for them to agree to pay or to receive. The latter portion would be met by raising the rates of contributions or lowering the benefits or both, till they reach a scale corresponding to that assumed by the valuer to be the right scale; the former portion must be separately met, either by raising a fund in cash or by requiring from the present members a separate contribution by way of levy or otherwise until the amount has been realised which has been lost to the lodge by its improvident action in the past.

As we do not know how much the contributions ought to be increased, how much the benefits ought to be reduced, and how much ought to be raised in cash, to meet the deficiency of 573*l.*, let us assume that an equal portion of the deficiency is to be raised in each of these three ways.

The result would be as follows:—The benefits would have to be reduced by an average of one-twelfth, or one penny in every shilling (or they might be reduced in duration instead of in amount to an equivalent extent, which would probably be better); the contributions would have to be increased an average of one-

Report.

Affiliated Orders.

eighth, or 1½*d.* in every shilling; and an extra levy of something more than tenpence per month for the five years would have to be paid by each member, the number of members being 80. There would seem to be nothing in these three measures which would be absolutely impracticable. There are just as many lodges in the Order in question which will have less to do to secure the same object as there are which will have more to do.

It is very possible that the lodges, especially those having a larger relative deficiency, may lack the courage to face their position in this thorough manner, and may be content with measures that will merely improve and not absolutely rectify it. Having regard to the fact that the deficiencies have been the slow growth of years of erroneous management, arising from want of knowledge on the part of the members and of those who have gone before them, we need not quarrel with them if they take this view, and try (as other orders have done) to improve their position by degrees; but unfortunately these deficiencies have a tendency to grow, and the natural growth of the deficiency will probably be too rapid to be neutralised by any mere palliatives, so that the question will be the more urgent at times of future valuation, the less resolutely it is faced now.

Suggestion as to local charities.

This consideration of the means that ought to be adopted to meet a valuation deficiency, leads to a suggestion that may be useful to those authorities concerned in framing and revising schemes for local charities. A clause is not unfrequently introduced into such schemes enabling the trustees to assist individual members of an approved Friendly Society by paying a portion of their contributions. Such an application of charitable funds, however well meant, appears to be very undesirable; it must place the member whose subscriptions are partly paid out of charity in a false position towards his brother members, and it cannot fail to have a pauperising effect. If, however, the trustees were empowered to pay a sum down or annual sum into the funds of a Friendly Society, upon condition that the members of the society modified their rates of contribution and benefit and otherwise adopted such improved conditions of management as, in the opinion of the valuer, would meet the deficiency shown by the valuation, such an application of the charity funds would not be open to any serious objection. It would probably afford to the society the very inducement that is now lacking to set its house in order, and would relieve the members from the burden, which in some cases they find to be more than they can bear, of meeting deficiencies arising from the mistakes of their predecessors. To convert a failing society into a successful one, to set it on its legs, so that it may be a benefit to future members, and may honestly invite members to join, would indeed be a fruitful work of charity; and the many funds, which the kindly intentions of our forefathers have set aside to be distributed in doles, that in the changed habits of the times, are found to do more harm than good, might, if judiciously applied in some such manner manner as that suggested, be made of real and lasting benefit. It sometimes happens, indeed, that the authorities experience difficulty in finding suitable applications of the funds in question; in such cases, I hope that the hint here thrown out may be of service in indicating how such funds may be used to effect the maximum of good with the minimum of harm.

The Public Auditors.

The accounts of a Friendly or Co-operative Society may be audited either by one of the public auditors, or by two or more persons appointed as the rules of the society direct.

For the year ending 30th June 1892, there were 63 public auditors appointed. Of these, 17 were not employed by a single society. The remaining 46 were employed by 146 Friendly Societies and 145 Industrial and Provident Societies.

Notwithstanding the moderate scale of fees by which the services of persons possessed of such qualifications as the Lords of the Treasury require in the case of a public auditor can be obtained, it appears, therefore, that only seven Friendly Societies out of every 1,000 employed them.

With regard to Industrial and Provident Societies the proportion is larger, being 11 in every 100; but the force of this consideration is much weakened when it appears that 100 out of the 145 audits were entrusted to three out of the 63 public auditors.

These gentlemen were recommended for appointment as public auditors by the representatives of the societies themselves, and are the persons whom the societies would probably employ in any case, whether they held the appointment of public auditor or not.

The only distinction is, that if not public auditors they could not act alone, but a second auditor would require to be appointed in each case. From this point of view, it is rather surprising that so many as 89 per cent. of the Co-operative Societies should fail to employ them than that 11 per cent. should do so. It may be added that the public auditors employed by Friendly Societies are, in general, quite distinct from those employed by Co-operative Societies; the exception being one gentleman, who succeeded in obtaining the confidence of six Friendly and eight Co-operative Societies.

At the suggestion of the Co-operative Union and other bodies, a considerable increase has been made in the number of public auditors for the year 1893, which it is hoped may extend their usefulness.

III.—Benevolent Societies.

The one benevolent society registered was in connection with the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes.

Report.

IV.—Working Men's Clubs.

Although 14 working men's clubs were registered as Industrial and Provident Societies, the number of Working Men's Clubs registered under the Friendly Societies' Acts was 42, making 56 altogether, as compared with 35 in the year 1891. The names of 10 out of the 42 indicate a political connection, one is promoted by the Gordon League, one is for the benefit of Swiss workmen, two are brass bands, and three are in connection with particular trades.

V.—Specially Authorised Societies.

Of the 19 registered, 14 were money clubs, being 10 less than in 1891. The others were a Servants' Aid Society, having for one of its objects the relief of members out of employment; a British Cab Owners' and Drivers' Protection Society, for legal assistance to members; a Society of Operators in Massage and Medical Electricity, for scientific purposes; a Derbyshire Foresters' Investment Association, for receiving and investing the funds of Courts of the A.O.F.; and a Universal Cookery and Food Association, for the promotion of the science and art of cookery.

VI.—Industrial and Provident Societies.

Besides the 14 Working Men's Club Societies above mentioned, the 107 societies registered during the year included seven financial societies and six freehold land societies, reducing the number of co-operative societies of the ordinary type to 80, an increase of seven over 1891; of these 30 (five more than last year) were of the productive class.

The usual Appendix to my Report for 1891 has been issued, containing particulars relating to Industrial and Provident Societies, derived from the returns to the 31st December of that year. I have thought, however, that it would be of service to those interested in these societies if their liabilities and assets were set out in somewhat greater detail. Table XII. (see pages 28—31) has accordingly been prepared, giving particulars of the liabilities and assets, county by county. The general results are as under:—

One item of particular interest in the foregoing account is that of 2,497,855*l.*, representing the investments in buildings and land, mostly for the convenience of members; and as I am not aware that authentic information on that question has been published since I read a paper on the Co-operative Land Movement, before the Statistical Society on 16th June 1874, based on the returns for the year ending 31st December 1872, it may be convenient to show the progress which has been made during the 19 years :—

In the above, and also in the detailed statement, the item "Other Liabilities" comprises the whole of the liabilities (other than Share and Loan Capital) of the societies to the members, and includes the balances of the numerous funds in connection with Co-operative Societies (the Savings Bank Funds alone amount to 385,539*l.*), unappropriated profit and outstanding accounts due by the societies, &c.

"Loan Capital" includes loans and deposits and bank current advances.

"Buildings, Fixtures, and Land used in Trade." This item, in a few instances, includes, in addition to those enumerated in the heading, other items, as in the return of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, Limited, where steamships are included under this heading.

"Investments yielding Interest." "Buildings, &c., and Land and Mortgages." Advances on freehold or leasehold security are included in this column.

"On other Securities" comprises the investments in shares of other industrial and provident societies, and all other securities except those included in the preceding column.

"Other Assets" includes, amongst other items, cash in hand, and balance of current accounts at bank, together with outstanding debts due by the members.

The Total (16,673,390*l.*) includes the funds of societies whose capital is held by other co-operative societies, e.g., the Co-operative Wholesale Society. In these cases the amount of shares, &c., held by other co-operative societies will thus have been included twice.

The number of returns received in 1892, for the year ending 31st December 1891, from ordinary co-operative societies, was 1,148, or with 68 land societies, 1,216, an increase of 61 over the previous year; 169 ordinary and 13 land, in all, 182 societies made no returns, a decrease of 45 on the previous year. The total number of members returned was 940,183, or, with 8,360 in land societies, 948,543, an increase of 56,433 over last year. Excluding land societies, the sales were 37,827,825*l.*, Sixty-eight land and building societies (five more than last year) received 94,426*l.* (3,987*l.* less than last year); expended on land and buildings, 25,827*l.* (1,016*l.* less); on management, 9,465*l.* (1,173*l.* more); had 230,260*l.* share capital (25,014*l.* more); owed 182,443*l.* (44,589*l.* less); had a balance profit of 16,940*l.* (9,959*l.* less); but a balance loss of 3,460*l.* (244*l.* more); and the value of their land and mortgages was 378,165*l.* (12,517*l.* less); of their other assets, 48,018*l.* (17,261*l.* less). These figures indicate an unfavourable year, but the contraction of business in these societies was not so great as its expansion in the previous year had been. Two societies had over 900 members, the Borough Land and Building, Burnley, now reaching 1,472 Ten societies returned over 10,000*l.* in land and mortgages; the same society still heading the list with 140,956*l.*, which, however is a decrease of 18,499*l.* Only one other society returns over 20,000*l.*

In addition to the 31 ordinary industrial and provident societies which last year returned over 5,000 members, three others now exceed that number, viz.: Lancaster, 5,195; Keighley, 5,064; and Crewe, 5,006. The following 13 societies (three more than last year) have more than 10,000 members:—

Industrial and Provident Societies.

The business transacted by the larger societies shows a considerable increase during the year. Twenty-one societies, instead of 16 in the previous year, and 12 in the year before, show sales of over a quarter of a million, fulfilling the prediction hazarded in my last report. The following 12 societies (instead of nine as last year) sold for over 300,000*l.* :—

That 12 societies should increase their business in a single year to the extent of nearly two millions of money, is a very remarkable fact.

The like satisfactory increase is shown in the profits earned by societies. All the 13 societies that were mentioned last year as having returned profits for 1890 exceeding 40,000*l.* increased their profits in 1891 (except the Civil Service Supply Association), and three more societies are added to the list, as follows:—

That the larger societies should have increased their profits by more than 10 per cent., and the smaller societies theirs by more than 11 per cent. on the average, confirms the generally favourable impression as to the prosperity of Industrial and Provident Societies during the year 1891, which the statistics previously given must have made. In the 10 years, 1882–91, these societies have increased their members by 82 per cent., their sales by 89 per cent., and their profits by 174 per cent.

While I congratulate the Industrial and Provident Societies on the progress shown by these statistics, I cannot omit to record the great loss they have sustained by the death of my learned and venerated friend, Mr. Edward Vansittart Neale. More than 40 years ago that good and generous man, acting in conjunction with Maurice and Kingsley, with Judge Hughes and my immediate predecessor in office, devoted himself to the cause of the working man, perceiving in the co-operative system the best remedy for much social and economic evil. The early disappointments and heavy losses which he experienced did not weaken his faith in the principles he had adopted, or discourage him from continuing to labour for their successful application. He remained the munificent supporter, the untiring advocate, and the enlightened adviser of the co-operative movement during his whole life. He brought to the legal difficulties of the members a mind that was singularly subtle and ingenious, as I may venture to testify from a knowledge that extends back to my student days. He was one of the originators of the annual congresses that have done so much to promote the welfare of co-operative societies. In 1875, at an age when most men think of retiring from work, he manifested his unselfish devotion to the movement by undertaking the laborious office of general secretary to the Co-operative Central Board, involving constant journeys between Manchester and London. He continued to perform the duties of that office until he had reached the age of 80, when the co-operators showed their gratitude to him very gracefully by founding a Vansittart Neale Scholarship at Oriel College, Oxford, of which he was a member. Mr. Neale was born in 1810, and called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1837. In early life he inherited the estates of Neale, of Allesley, county Warwick, and in his later years those of Vansittart, of Bisham Abbey, Berks. Besides his writings on co-operative and economic questions, he was author of valuable works in theological and general literature.

VII.—Trade Unions.

The total number of Trade Unions registered from the 29th June 1871, when the Trades Union Act was passed, which first admitted them to registry, to 31st December 1891 was 756.* The total number of Trade Unions on the register on 31st December 1891 was, however, only 493; as many as 263 having ceased to exist, or been removed from the register. Of these, 320 made returns in the year 1892, for the year ending 31st December 1891, up to the date when Appendix M. to my last Report was printed. Sixty-six had not existed for a complete year, and the remaining 107 had failed to make a return; against these proceedings have been taken, with the following results:—

* The number of registries appears to have been understated in some previous reports.

TABLE XVII.

Returns received	21
Returns promised	16
Unions dissolved, ceased to exist, or withdrawn from registry	56
Not to be found	12
Summonses not yet heard	2
Total	107

The number of Trade Unions which have ceased to exist or been removed from the register is therefore increased to 331, or 43 per cent. of the total number registered. The total number which have actually made returns for the year ending 31st December 1891, is increased to 341, leaving only 18 Trade Unions from which returns were due to that date which have not made them, and of these 16 have promised that the returns shall be made forthwith, and from the remaining two a penalty will, no doubt, be recovered when the summonses which have been taken out come on for hearing.

It may be interesting to compare the statistics derived from the reports of the last three years, though they have to be taken with caution, as branches of Trades Unions are capable of registry as separate Trades Unions, and may, therefore, in some cases appear twice over.

The considerable increase shown for the year 1891 arises, to some extent, from the great number of unions registered in 1890, whose returns now appear for the first time. This, however, only partially accounts for it. It would seem probable that the unregistered Trade Unions are more than half as many as the registered Trade Unions; and it also seems probable that the funds and income per member of the unregistered Trades Unions are not half as much as those of the registered Trade Unions. If this is so, it is a curious circumstance, for there is nothing in the Trade Union Acts that in any way fetters the discretion of registered Trade Unions as to the rates of payment or other details of management; and there is no apparent reason, therefore, why a wealthy Trade Union, or one requiring large contributions from its members, should seek registry, and a poorer one, or one managed on lower contributions should avoid it. There appears to be every reason to believe that the indisposition to register which was shown by Trades Unions in the early years of the operation of the Act of 1871 has, to a large extent, ceased to exist, and that the proportion of the number of unregistered Trade Unions to that of the registered Trade Unions is diminishing.

The return in its present form, as altered at the suggestion of Mr. G. Howell, M.P., in 1891, shows at a glance the increase or decrease during the year in the funds of each Trade Union. The following are the most notable cases:—

Twenty unions, as compared with 11 in 1889, returned for 1891 more than 20,000*l.* funds or income, or more than 20,000 members. Omitting the last two of these, which have not been established long enough for the purpose of comparison, the other18 have increased in the two years their funds by 367,524*l.*, their annual income by 200,139 l., and their members by 96,610, and have thus considerably strengthened their position. As showing the marked difference there is between the financial arrangements of Trade Unions and those of Friendly Societies, it may be remarked that eight out of the 20 had less than one year's income in hand; nine more had less than two years' income in hand; two more a little over two years' income, and one a little over three years' income. Upon the average of all the 300 smaller Trade Unions, the accumulated funds are less than one year's income; in the six last unions on the list of the first 20, and on the average of all the 300 smaller unions, the accumulated funds are less than 1*l.* per member. The average in the 14 larger Trade Unions is 2*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.* per member, or something less than one and a-half years' income. The gross annual income per member in the 14 wealthier Trade Unions is 1*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.*; that in the 306 poorer unions is 15*s.* 6½*d.*

The Trade Union Act (1871) Amendment Act, 1876, s. 16, authorises the registry as a Trade Union of any combination for regulating the relations:

(a) Between workmen and masters.
(b) Between workmen and workmen.
(c) Between masters and masters.

The returns furnished to this office comprise, in consequence, unions belonging to three different classes. The ordinary type of Trade Union, to which all those in the foregoing list appear to belong, is that which regulates the relation between workmen and masters. But there are also unions which appear to belong to the other two classes, as the Amalgamated Society of Watermen and Lightermen of the River Thames, the Hull Smack-owners' Association (since dissolved), and others consisting of working men employed by the general public, and desirous to regulate between themselves the terms upon which they will accept employment; and the Association of Master Lightermen and Bargeowners of the Port of London, the Cabinet Trades Employers' Association, the Master Tailors' Association and others, which appear to regulate the relations between masters and masters. It is fair to say that the figures relating to unions of these two classes are not in general so large as to make a material difference in the results shown by the return. They are, however, within the legal definition of a Trade Union, and entitled to be registered as such.

Report.

Trade Unions.

Both Mr. Ludlow and myself were questioned by members of the Royal Commission on Labour as to the proper relation of Trade Unions to this Department. Mr. Ludlow was asked by Sir Michael Hicks Beach:

1775. Have you had your attention directed to any difficulties that have occurred in the case of Trades Unions from the funds which had been subscribed for benefit purposes being devoted to trade purposes?—There have been very many complaints, in one union particularly, the National Agricultural Labourers' Union. Mr. George Mitchell has been very active in bringing forward cases of that description. I am afraid myself that there is no remedy for it, and that the Trades Union existing primarily for the relief of members out of employment, and the bettering the conditions of their employment, every other purpose must yield to that, and I cannot myself see how it is consistent with the nature of the Trades Union that an embargo should be laid on any of their funds if they are required for their own primary purposes. Great hardships may no doubt arise in that way. There is that unsafety about all Friendly Society benefits which are granted by Trades Unions, but I think it is a necessary one, and as a rule I must say I think Trades Unions have done their very utmost to keep faith with their members respecting other benefits than merely donation, Trade Union benefits proper. Taking even their superannuation benefits, which are known to be a very heavy burden upon Trades Unions, I believe in almost every instance they have kept faith with their superannuated members, raising levies periodically themselves in order to do so.

1776. Has any instance come under your notice, besides that of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union, in which sick pay, or superannuation pay, or death grants, have been stopped for want of funds?—No, I do not think anyone has come officially before me. That is the most prominent case, and it is a very prominent one.

1777. Have instances come before you in which Trades Unions have levied under their rules considerable sums in order to keep faith?—Yes. I do not know that officially, but I know it privately.

1778. You are not prepared to advocate any restrictions on the power of Trades Unions to offer benefits of that kind, and receive contributions for them?—I am not. I think that indirectly those sick benefits are a very useful function in moderating the action of the Trades Union. At first, before any funds are raised, young Trades Unions are apt to become very aggressive and very extravagant, and to launch themselves into conflicts, which generally turn out to their disadvantage, but the more funds they accumulate the more prudent they become, and at the same time, the greater weight they acquire in the adjustment of the difficulties of labour. A society like the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, which has, I think, 140,000*l*., or rather more, of funds, it is evident will neither rush into a conflict conflict rashly, nor, on the other hand, will it be rashly encountered when it does enter into one.

1779. These societies practically do not keep their funds for different purposes separate at all, do they?—Yes, they do, some of them; the Iron-founders for instance do, I know. They keep their own funds very distinct indeed.

1780. Do they keep the fund for management apart from the fund for payment to members?—Yes, I believe many or most of the Trades Unions do.

1781. Do they allot certain parts of the contribution to management purposes, and certain other parts to trade purposes, and for sick benefit purposes?—I do not think it is of so much consequence, I must say, on the ground I have already stated, in Trades Unions, as it is in a Friendly Society.

1782. In a Friendly Society you would consider that the fund for management and the fund for any other class of expenditure should be kept entirely distinct?—Entirely distinct.

By Sir John Gorst.

1783. Do you say it could not be done in the case of Trades Unions?—Strictly, they could not, because I say in the case of conflict everything must go, so that I do not see the same necessity in their case as in the other.

1784. Could not the Trades Unions place it out of their power to divert their funds, even in the case of a labour conflict which had once been hypothecated for the benefit purposes, or again to touch, even in the case of a labour conflict, funds which had once been hypothecated to redeem their benefit promises?—They could do it, but it might be to the ruin of the Trades Union, and therefore to the ruin of the men who had contributed those funds.

By Sir Michael Hicks-Beach.

1785. You in fact put trade purposes so far ahead of all other purposes in the case of Trades Unions that you are willing to run all risk?—I think so. I think it follows as a necessary consequence from the purposes of the nion.

1786. I suppose you agree with Mr. Brabrook that where a Trades Union distinctly stated in its rules that a certain part of its contributions was received for purposes of trade, and a certain other part for purposes of sick pay or benefits, that the rule should be adhered to?—No doubt.

1787. That is so, in not a few cases, is not it?—It is.

1788 And therefore in those cases the Trade Union would hardly be able to fulfil what you would consider to be its proper work?—That is so, certainly, if relief in sickness takes precedence of relief when out of employment. I think it is a dangerous thing in a Trade Union to do so.

By Mr. Jesse Collings.

1876. Going back to your remarks on Trades Unions, what is, generally speaking, to be gained by the attainment of the objects of Trades Unions and Friendly Societies?—There is a very great difference between their objects. The object of a Trades Union is the maintenance and advancement of the condition of the labourer as such in a particular employment, but the object of the friendly society is simply to ensure certain benefits, generally speaking, in sickness or in death.

1877. And are not the objects of the friendly societies, as you have described them, undertaken also by trades unions?—No doubt.

1878. Then the trades union is a friendly society and something more?—It is a friendly society and something more in many cases.

1879. Then taking the friendly society work of the trades union, do we understand from you that there is no supervision over the trades union in respect of that department of their work, such as there is in the case of friendly societies?—No, there is no supervision. They are not required to have valuations, that would be really absurd in their case, and in other respects there are not the same safeguards as there are in friendly societies

1880. But if a trades union undertakes friendly society work, are you of opinion that that branch of their work should not be subject to the same provisions and the same safeguards as similar work undertaken by friendly societies?—I do not see how it can be.

1881. Have the rules of trades societies which it is desired to register to be approved before they are registered?—We never express approval even of any friendly society's rules.

1882. Then they have to be submitted to the registry office?—Yes, and if they contain certain provisions required by the Trades Union Acts, they are registered.

1883. Then, mentioning the National Agricultural Labourers' Union, are you aware that there are a large number of men who have paid into the benefit part of that union, and who find themselves now unable to get any payment in return in their sickness?—I am perfectly aware of it.

1884. You will admit, also, that is a grave and unfortunate position for them at an age when by infirmity they cannot enter into any other society?—No doubt.

1885. Now, taking that labourers' union, one of their rules provides, for all those members who shall pay the benefit contributions hereinafter mentioned, a weekly allowance during sickness, and a payment of a sum of money at death. Those rules, I presume, were submitted to a Government Department?—No doubt.

1886. Then, do I understand from you, that there should be no compulsory power under which the managers of a union like that should be made to keep the funds so paid in for the purposes for which they were paid in?—I have already stated that such provision appears to me to be contrary to the essential purpose of a trades union. People must take that risk when they join them—that inasmuch as it exists, as I have stated, for the maintenance and improvement of the condition of the worker, they must take the risk of every individual benefit being made subordinate to that. If they did not choose to take that risk they ought not to join the trades union, but ought to confine themselves to the friendly society.

1887. But as to the objects, as stated in the rules, which rules are laid before the labouring classes, it is distinctly stated that they are for benefit in sickness and other benefits, and the payments of the labourers are invited on that ground?—No doubt.

1888. Then are you still of opinion that there should be compulsion under which the men who invite that payment should hold that sum safely for the purpose for which it was paid in?—I do not see how it is possible for the State to interfere with the appropriation of the funds of trades unions so long as they are not for an absolutely illegal purpose.

1889. But under the Friendly Societies Act, section 16, I think it is, the registrar has power either to prosecute, or to allow others to prosecute, a society for appropriating sums paid for one purpose to another purpose. I believe he has that power under the Friendly Societies Act?—Just so.

1890. Then are you of opinion that that should be also applied to the trades union?—When trades unions themselves ask for it, then I should be quite willing to see it; but at present I should certainly not attempt to force it upon them.

1891. I think you have said, in answer to one of the members of the Commission, that you would be quite willing to extend it to the building societies?—Yes.

1892. But not to the trades unions?—But not to the trades unions.

1893. Might I ask you for what end you would extend it to the building societies?—That is scarcely the question. I think you do not understand my position, which is, that that primary purpose of the trades union of keeping up and improving the condition of the workers in it must take precedence of everything else; but when the time comes when the working classes should feel that confidence in the State, that they should feel disposed to allow it such interference, then, of course I should have no objection to it. At present I think it would be a very dangerous interference with the operations of these societies, which, I believe, are dearer to the working classes than those of any other description.

1894. Were

By the Duke of Devonshire.

1894. Were not you going to point out the difference as to the building societies?—A building society is a society merely for the purpose of advancing money on real security. Of course there is no objection whatever to making any enactments you please as to the regulations for that purpose. That is quite a different thing.

By Mr. Jesse Collings.

1895. I am only asking these questions with a view of getting some remedy against the repetition of a case which, I presume, you admit has created a great deal of suffering and disappointment to a large body of very deserving and poor men. The object of my question is to get your opinion as to what alteration of the law might be made in order to prevent the recurrence of such a misfortune as that?—The answer is that I do not imagine that any alteration of the law under the present circumstances would be sufficient for the purpose. What has to be done is to teach the working classes the exact state of things, and how, if they do subscribe to such a fund, they must do so, taking the risk of all its contingencies, namely, that of being swallowed up for trade purposes. Now I enter upon another branch of the subject: Whether there has been on the part of any society such action as has unduly interfered with the proper appropriation of its funds. I do not pretend to say as to that. It is possible that the society referred to may have taken steps, but that would be merely an individual matter. With reference to the general subject of what is called misapplication of trades union funds, and turning them from one purpose to another, I do not think there is any legal remedy, unless, as I say, the working classes generally are willing to give the State that further power over their organisations.

1896. When you speak of the primary object of trades unions, are not the objects placed before the public in their rules?—No doubt they are.

1897. And is not Rule No. 4 one which invites payments for benefits in sickness and death as important a rule as Rule No. 2, which is for protecting trade interests, &c.?—I do not think it is as important to a trades unionist, otherwise he would enter a friendly society instead of entering a trades union.

1898. Then would you give us your opinion as to whether a labouring man would not be far more secure in subscribing to a good friendly society than to a trades union? I mean having regard to the question of sick benefits and superannuation provisions, and so forth?—Undoubtedly he is far more secure legally in entering a friendly society than a trades union. There is no doubt of that. He has virtually no legal security in going into a trades union.

1899. Then he has no security at all in the trades union that he would secure in old age or in sickness benefits for which he has made the payments?—None whatever, but the honour of his fellow members, which, as a rule, as I say, has displayed itself in levies and special contributions for the purpose. But you must just observe this, that it is very risky in an employment such as that of the agricultural labourer, which is very poorly remunerated on the whole, for any man to start such a number of benefits as that of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union. I think anyone who had common sense must have felt when that Union was started that they would never be able to carry out all their benefits, quite apart from any question of mismanagement. I am very sorry for the agricultural labourers who engaged in it, but I must say that I think what has happened sooner or later must have happened. The agricultural labourers are not at present in that condition in which they could pay sufficient contributions for securing all the benefits which that Union professed to secure to them.

1900. Then another question on that. Do you think it for the public good, bearing in mind what you say, and speaking more particularly of the humbler classes of labourers, such as the agricultural labourers, to have a Government Office to register a society and to receive their balance sheets every year, when the competent and able men at the head of that department, such as yourself, for instance, can see that there is likely to be a catastrophe at some time or another with regard to them, and yet do nothing.

Report.

Trade Unions.

Mr. Ludlow's Evidence.

nothing. The question I want to ask you is, Do you think it unadvisable for a Government Department to register such a society or continue to register it after it has got information as to the character of the society?—I think it is perfectly impossible for any Government Department to guarantee the solvency either of a friendly society or a trades union or of any other body which comes to it; absolutely impossible.

1901. I was not asking about insolvency, but are you aware of the very fact that the management of a trades union can say to an intending member or contributor, "Our society is registered at the Government Registry by the Registrar General," is likely to give a confidence to this perhaps ill-informed humble labourer that ought not to exist at all in connection with the fact of its being registered?—I can only say that from the time I entered the Friendly Societies Office till I quitted it we never wearied in taking every opportunity we could of warning people that the fact of registration was no guarantee of solvency. In every possible shape and on every possible occasion we have set that forth, and we could not do more than that.

1902. It is not a question of any want of energy on your part or care on the part of the department that I put my question. But my question led up to this, whether some alteration of the law is possible by which extra powers might be given to the department to more clearly prevent a calamity which has never been remedied with regard to legal contributors. That is the only object of the question?—I think the registration of trades unions does confer decided benefits on them, and I should be very sorry to withdraw those advantages from trades unions generally because there are some which do not fulfil all that is required of them. I should be extremely sorry to see the bulk of honest and well-meaning trades unions which are upon the books deprived of their advantages because of one black sheep, and I am afraid you must call that particular union a black sheep which you have in mind.

1903. You have no power to prevent that in the case of your seeing in the balance sheet some of the funds taken for trade purposes, and taken perhaps to any extent?—I do not wish to have any power to prevent it.

1904. It does not come within the province of the department to pass any remark upon it or to warn them as to the danger of that. Is that so?—No, at this moment I am not certain how far we should be aware of it in the first instance.

1905. I understand you to say you thought it the duty of the managers of the trades union to lay hold of the benefit fund for the purpose of carrying on labour warfare if they thought it necessary?—If it is absolutely necessary to the existence of the trades union, I think they must do it.

1906. But supposing it is a speculation, such as the starting of a newspaper or buying a farm, what then?—Starting a newspaper—that all depends upon whether it has been properly authorised by the trades union.

1907. Then it comes this, that your opinion is that there is no guarantee to a labourer who pays into the trades union society for the purpose of a sick fund and superannuation that in his time of need when he gets old, he shall ever get any repayment out of the fund?—Certainly not. And there is no guarantee in a friendly society. The friendly society may fail, as it often does.

1908. Yes, but there is this distinction, that whereas a friendly society must devote the funds they have received for the purposes for which they have received them, the trades union might swallow them up in employing them in other things?—No doubt.

1909. Therefore, there is that distinction between the two?—Yes.

1910. Have the friendly societies power to raise levies?—Yes.

1911. And the trades union?—The trades unions make much greater use of the power to levy than the friendly societies.

1912. Then is it not the fact that when levies are ordered or voted, if labourers, for instance, who have paid into the sick fund for a long period cannot pay those levies, or do not pay them, they cease to become members, and forfeit their benefits from the sick fund under any circumstances?—If that is the result of the rule they would.

1913. So

1913. So that a trades union might impose such an amount of levies as might throw off all the poorer part of their members?—They might no doubt, and the same would occur in any trades union if its power of levy really exceeds the capacities of the members to pay them.

1914. Then with regard to this Union which is still going on, it would be your opinion that a labourer would be comparatively safe, or at any rate he would be free from the danger which has already happened to a society by investing in a friendly society which had not the dangers spoken of in connection with a trades union?—If a friendly society has properly calculated a scale of contributions and benefits no doubt he would be better.

1915. Admitting the steps you have taken to point out to the labourers that the fact of registration is not in any way a guarantee of the soundness of the society, are you aware that in the remote parishes of the country, in villages and so forth, nevertheless, the fact that it is registered does carry to the minds of these labourers almost universally a feeling of some sort of security that the fund which they make by their contributions shall be kept for the purpose for which it was intended?—That is quite possible, and I can only trust to the general diffusion of common sense and education to remove that idea.

1916. But waiting for the diffusion of education and common sense would make it too late for those who are waiting for benefits, and would not it, in your opinion, be better that the Government Department should not register?

By the Duke of Devonshire.

1917. I think Mr. Ludlow has answered that question. I understood him to say that in his view it was an advantage, in spite of that, that they should be registered?—Yes.

By Mr. Jesse Collings.

1918. Do not you think it would be better to do away with this misleading proceeding that now exists with regard to registering a society, leaving it as it should be in the eyes of the poorer labourers?—No doubt my successor would be only too glad to recommend suggestions to the Government with a view to the amendment of the law.

1919. Would you extend the law as to voting in friendly societies to the trades unions?—No.

By the Duke of Devonshire.

1920. Just one question, not as a question of legislation but as a matter of your opinion; I should like to know whether you consider it is a desirable thing that the union should assign the provisions for benefits to trade protection purposes?—I have already stated that I think there may be advantages connected with that which would justify the proceeding, in the early part of my examination.

1921. Is not it almost certain that as time goes on there will be a very strong inducement to those who manage the union to employ the benefit fund for trade purposes?—I do not think there is any necessity for that. In those cases where they have applied it temporarily to trade purposes they have restored what has been used by means of levies or contributions.

1922. That might be done as a matter of duty, but the inducement is rather the other way, is not it. After a trades union has been in existence for a certain number of years, and those who are entitled to its benefits begin to take advantage of them, there is rather an inducement, is there not, on the part of the younger men who manage the union to apply those funds for the purposes which they may think more urgent than those for which they have been contributed?—I think experience shows the contrary; it shows that the older a union is the more prudent it is in its transactions as a rule. There may be exceptions, no doubt, but that is the rule, I think. The younger unions are always ready to start with a big strike.

Report.

Trade Unions.

Mr. Ludlow's Evidence.

1923. Some of the newer unions do not profess to find benefits, do they?—They do not, and I quite admit that it is a very difficult matter to say how, in the unions which are now being extended to the quite lower strata of the labouring classes, any benefits beyond the most necessary trade protection benefits can be provided for, simply as a matter of pounds, shillings, and pence: but wherever these benefits can be provided for properly it adds to the security and the wise government of the union.

By Mr. Abraham.

1924. Is it possible for any trades union officials to use any of their funds without such power being provided for them by rule?—They ought not to do it. Whether it is done I really cannot say.

1925. Do you know of any cases where it has been done?—These cases do not come before the Friendly Societies Office, except the one case which Mr. Jesse Collings has been examining me about in regard to the Agricultural Labourers' Union, that is, but my knowledge of it is purely accidental, and it does not come before me as the result of the documents which are laid before me in my office, but from private application by Mr. Mitchell.

1926. Then, generally speaking, in trades unions their officials have power to spend their moneys, provided it is done by rule, and by rule only?—No doubt.

1927. These rules are made by the majorities of the men themselves, are not they?—Yes.

1928. So that no hardship can be brought upon trades unionists as such, but those which they themselves in making the rules have consented to?—Your question would only apply to those who are original members. It could not apply to the case of members joining afterwards, who had no share in the making of the rules, and simply accepted them.

1929. But, as a rule, when a man becomes a member he has previously had a copy of the rules of the society?—Yes.

1930. So that he is well informed of the means and the ways of managing the society?—Yes.

1931. Have you any means of knowing, officially or otherwise, that trades union officials have been in the habit of using the moneys of their societies for purposes for which they were not empowered to use them by the rules?—No, I cannot call to mind a specific case.

1932. So it is not a question of the society being misled by its officials, but a question of power being given by rule?—Precisely, only at the same time the rules may have been originally framed by officials in a state, you may say, simply of ignorance, and in such a manner that they cannot be entirely carried out.

1933. But all the rules are passed by the majorities in the meetings to which they have sent their delegates, the annual meetings and so forth, and these rules when they have to be altered are brought before the general body of the men?—In many cases there are no delegates at all, that is to say, that many small trades unions have no delegates. The rules go directly before the whole body perhaps.

By Professor Marshall.

1934. Might I ask with regard to the differences between building societies and trades unions. Is it not that the law with regard to building societies is insufficient, because the members of the building societies are not adequately protected against the indiscretion or ill-conduct of the officers of the building society?—I think that is to a great extent the fault of the present law.

1935. And there is no such fault with regard to trades unions?—No, I do not think so.

1936. As a matter of fact, whatever is done by the office itself in the case of the trades unions is done with the full knowledge of all the members of the union, and after full discussion?—I think that is the case as a rule, although the law does not provide for it at all, but, as a rule, I must say that I consider that, generally speaking, the rules of trades unions express very fairly the views of their members.

The

The opinions which I had myself ventured to offer in my examination on the previous day are fully confirmed by the high authority of my predecessor in office. How high that authority is, may be inferred from the following questions addressed to him by Professor Marshall.

1850. I think you have made a careful study of the conditions of the working classes in England for a longer time than anybody has now alive? —I think I have gone more round the social question than anybody now living, although many persons are far better informed as to particular branches of it.

1851. I think, in conjunction with Mr. Lloyd Jones, you wrote a book on the progress of the working classes?—I did.

1852. That, I think, was the text book for the subject in all countries for a long time, and might I ask you to give the Commission your general impression as to the changes in the condition of the working classes during the time of your observations?—I think the condition of the working classes has changed immensely, but not so much, I am happy to say, as the change in public opinion on the subjects relating to that class. I find now that boys and girls almost fresh from school are at a point of advancement in relation to this question at which in 1848 we could not bring grown-up people to, and were considered heretics and revolutionists for trying to bring them to. I think the change in public opinion on that subject has been something perfectly marvellous. I cannot express it sufficiently. The working class also has developed enormously in intellectual acquirements and habits of business and largeness of outlook, though perhaps they have lost a little of that enthusiasm and spirit of generous aspiration which I think distinguished my working-men friends of the earlier days. Now the black spots in the country may, I think, almost be counted on the fingers. In former days it was very nearly all black with but few white spots.

1853. I understand you to hold that the condition of the working classes has improved very fast, but not so fast as public opinion has as to the proper standard of the condition of the working classes?—I think that is so.

I am indebted to Dr. Schneider of Potsdam, a member of the German Reichtstag, for the information that he, with Dr. Max Hirsch and other political friends, introduced a Bill into the last Session of that body to secure to trade unions in Germany the possibility of registration. The Bill did not pass into law, but will be again introduced. The arguments which induced the German Legislature to withhold from trade unions the benefit of legislation appears chiefly to be founded on the social democratic tendency of the English trade unions, especially those more recently established. The statistics already given in this report may possibly have some bearing on this question, and tend to remove the apprehensions entertained.

The returns received at this office have been, as in previous years, placed at the disposal of the Board of Trade, for the purpose of the compilation of statistics relating to trade unions by the Labour Correspondent of that Board.

VIII.—Building Societies.

A return of the Building Societies incorporated to the 31st December 1891, with the last statements of their accounts, in the usual form, was ordered by the House of Commons on 16th May 1892, and presented and ordered to be printed on the 27th June. It contains for England and Wales the names of 2,632 societies, and an abstract of the statements of account of 2,262, having 563,933 members, an average of 249 to each, and an annual income of 18,610,538*l.*, an average of 8,227*l.* to each. The following is an aggregate balance sheet of their liabilities and assets:

Table XXI.

	Liabilities.	Assets.
Due to holders of shares	33,345,012	—
Due to depositors and other creditors	14,551,531	—
Due to societies on mortgage securities	—	46,038,442
Other assets	—	3,674,560
TOTAL	47,896,543	49,713,002
Balances of unappropriated profit	2,045,776	—
Balances of deficiency	—	229,317
TOTAL £.	49,942,319	49,942,319

These figures show a diminution of business in each branch, partly due to the omission of certain societies which had furnished no statement in the interval between the presentation of the last previous return and the preparation of this, partly to a real decrease in the favour with which building societies are regarded by the public. Thus the disappearance of the Portsea Island Building Society from the list reduces the Hampshire societies from 55 to 54 in number, and from 1,079,980 l. to 527,676 l. in capital. The Lancashire returns increase in number from 492 to 494, but their capital decreases from 7,847,024 l. to 7,583,276 l.

A return of the Building Societies incorporated under the Building Societies Acts which have terminated or been dissolved or have otherwise ceased to exist was ordered by the House of Commons on the 5th April, and presented on the 2nd June. It contains for England and Wales the names of 1,237 societies out of 3,723, the total number incorporated since the passing of the Act, showing that almost exactly one-third of the societies incorporated since 1874 (whether established before that time or not) have ceased to exist. It should be recollected that many societies established under the Act of 1836 have become incorporated under that of 1874, mainly for the purpose of dissolution; and also that many societies, both of those established before and after 1874, being terminating societies, have ceased to exist merely because they have completed the purpose for which they were founded. This is stated in terms of 26 societies in in the return, and probably applies to many others of the 131 which were dissolved by a mere notice to the Registrar, that the provisions of the rules in that behalf had been complied with. The number of formal instruments of dissolution registered was 410; the number of societies wound up by the Court 38; the number which had ceased to exist by union with others, 82; by transfers of engagements to others, 32; and in respect of as many as 466 societies, letters had been returned through the Post Office as "not known," or irregular intimation had been given that the society had been dissolved or was abortive. In other words three out of every eight of the societies which had ceased to exist had not complied with the requirements of the law as to dissolution, but had either failed altogether to do any business, or had been so unsuccessful in their efforts that it was to no one's interest to put them through the form of a legal dissolution.

This fact adds point to the remarks so often repeated in previous Reports on the evil caused by the multiplication of Building Societies beyond the public demand for them, and they will be found to be still further confirmed when the return is examined in detail. In the column of remarks, any deficiency apparent in the last published statements of accounts of each society has been noted; not as affording a measure of the ultimate loss to the members, which was probably much greater, but as, in some degree, giving an indication of the causes of failure. A note has been added where the society is one which has been reported to the Secretary of State for default in making returns, or where a prosecution has been actually instituted against it, stating the result; and the great number of these notes leads to the inference that, where a society fails to comply with the provisions of the Act in this respect, there are strong grounds for suspecting that it is, to say the least, being badly managed. A very large proportion of the whole number of societies which have had to be reported to the Secretary of State is contained in this list of dissolved societies, and in many cases the default occurs over and over again in successive years. The cases where litigation has arisen in the course of the dissolution or winding-up are also noted. After taking into consideration all favourable possibilities, there can be no doubt this return tells a sad tale of heavy losses inflicted upon the members by mismanagement and by fraud.

The number of dissolutions has been largely increased during the later months of 1892. As shown by the Table on page 5, the total number of dissolutions by instrument and notice during the year was 114.

Among the amendments to the law which I took occasion to recommend in my last Report was, "that provision should be made for control by the members over the trustees appointed for the purpose of dissolving a society under Section 32" of the Act of 1874, or the liquidators appointed where an instrument is not executed. I have since had an opportunity of explaining, as the reason of this recommendation, that "the dissolution of a Building Society has this peculiarity, that in general the debts cannot be got in at once, but the repayments of the borrowers have to be received as they become due during a more or less lengthy period; hence the dissolution frequently drags on for a number of years. During those years the liquidators are practically masters of the situation; they make no returns to the Registrar; they need call no meetings; if they choose to render no account to a member who demands it, it is not easy to see what remedy he has, except a Chancery suit. It seems to me, therefore, that it would be desirable to enact that, during the progress of the dissolution of a society, the same rights should extend to the members, the same returns be made and the same meetings be held, as were required during the active existence of the society, until notice can be given of its complete dissolution." The great number of dissolutions now in progress makes this recommendation one of importance.

The following facts show the necessity of some control over the officers dissolving Building Societies. On the 24th December 1891, a dispute between Alfred Garnham and the Meteor Permanent Investment Building Society was submitted to this office, pursuant to the rules of the society, by Messrs. Leggatt, Rubinstein & Co., solicitors for the plaintiff. Together with the submission, an application for an Order for Discovery was made. Notice of the submission and application was given to the society, and no sufficient cause having been shown against making the order, it was granted on the 9th January 1892, requiring Mr. R. A. Enright, the secretary and liquidator of the society to deposit its books at this office within 14 days from the service of the order, and to attend on the 19th February to make discovery. The order was served on the 12th January, and was not complied with, but on the 27th January Mr. Garnham's claim was paid. On the 5th April a dispute between John Lott and the Islington Green Building Society was submitted to this office as an ex parte application under the rules of the society by the same solicitors. On 20th April an application for an order for discovery was made. Notice of this application was given to Mr. Enright, who was also the secretary and liquidator of this society, on 25th April. In his answer, dated 29th April, he stated, inter alia, that "a special meeting of members was held 29th May 1890, to consider the position of the society, and a resolution was then passed to liquidate as per rules. The said liquidation is now closed, and a final balance sheet has been issued to the members, and a copy was sent to Mr. Lott, together with a cheque, 10*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.*, the amount due to him, on 6th April last. Every information has been afforded Mr. Lott, and during the last twelve months he has employed no less than three separate firms of solicitors to act for him in this matter. Mr. Lott has caused me considerable annoyance by writing and making most untrue statements to members, and by writing to the 'Star,' &c., and I have threatened him with legal proceedings, and I verily believe that these proceedings are only brought to cause me annoyance, and I respectfully ask you not to make any order, as he has had his money, and has no further claim either either against the society or myself." This answer being communicated to Mr. Lott's solicitor, they persisted in their application, and notice was given on 17th May to Mr. Enright, appointing the 27th May for hearing the application. Mr. Enright then attended, and after opposing the application on the general ground stated in his letter, submitted to the order being made. Mr. Lott having in the meantime returned the cheque sent to him, Mr. Enright, in the presence of the Registrar, made a formal tender to Mr. Lott of the sum of 10*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.*, which was refused. An order was accordingly made that Mr. Enright do deposit at the office of the Registrar all balance sheets, minute books, name and address books, registers of shareholders, certificate and transfer books, ledgers, cash books, day books, bankers' pass books or book, register of withdrawals, and other books of the society, and that he do appear at the place above mentioned on the 11th June and make discovery of all things within his knowledge relating to the matters in dispute. He appeared accordingly, and it was then stated that such books as had been deposited by Mr. Enright had been examined by an accountant on behalf of the plaintiff, but that they did not include the minute book, the cash accounts from July 1889 to the present time, the name and address book, and register of shareholders, the certificate and transfer books, the bankers' pass book, and counterfoil books. Mr. Enright stated that there were no certificate and transfer books, and undertook to send the remainder of the books required. The case was then adjourned to 5th July. Previous to the 5th July Mr. Enright requested a further adjournment, having been summoned to serve on a jury. This request was communicated to the solicitors for Mr. Lott, who it seems declined to consent, but through some misunderstanding they did not appear and Mr. Enright did at the time appointed. They thereupon applied for a fresh appointment, fixing the 13th July, which was agreed to, and Mr. Enright again attended. Messrs. Leggatt & Co. applied for an immediate award in favour of the plaintiff, on the ground that Mr. Enright had failed to produce the bankers' pass book. Mr. Enright having stated that the book was lost or mislaid, Messrs. Leggatt's application was overruled, and they were directed to proceed with the case on its merits. Mr. Enright was then sworn and examined at length, and a witness was also examined on behalf of the plaintiff. The effect of this evidence will be stated presently. After a long hearing, Mr. Enright was directed to obtain from the bankers a duplicate of the pass-book, and the case was further adjourned to 16th July to enable him to do so. The case was then heard at great length, and, at the close of the hearing, Messrs. Leggatt & Co. applied for costs. The question then arising, what authority the Registrar had to allow costs, it was discovered for the first time that the Rules of the Society (unlike those of the Meteor) provided for the settlement of disputes by arbitration and not by the Registrar. The Rules had not been put in evidence by either party. Upon an objection thereupon taken by Mr. Enright to the jurisdiction of the Registrar, it was held that, although the original submission was not in proper form, not containing the written agreement to refer prescribed by the Regulations, Mr. Enright, by submitting to the Order for Discovery and to the whole of the subsequent proceedings had "agreed to refer the dispute to the Registrar" within the meaning of the Act, and that after the whole case had been heard it was too late for him to raise an objection to the jurisdiction. He thereupon withdrew his objection. The facts of the case are as follows: The Society was established in 1881. On 6th December of that year Mr. W. Parfitt was declared entitled to an advance of 400*l.* free of interest. On 14th February 1882, a letter from Mr. Parfitt, foregoing his appropriation, was read to the Board. On 23rd May an appropriation of 400*l.* was sold to J. King at a price of 60*l.* per 100*l.* The Board not being satisfied with the security offered by him, it was granted to Mr. Bellingham at 55*l.* per 100*l.* and accepted by him. On 27th February 1883, Mrs. Mannering was declared entitled to an appropriation of 200*l.* free of interest. On 31st July an appropriation was sold to Mr. R. A. Enright at a price of 26*l.* 10*s.* per 100*l.* On 11th September an advance of 350*l.* was granted to Mrs. Mannering upon condition of her paying 12*l.*, the cost of a loan to the Society of 200*l.* necessary to make up the amount. On 29th July 1886, Mr. A. Pizzala was declared entitled to an appropriation of 400*l.* free of interest. By the rules up to this time all appropriations were repayable at the rate of 10*l.* per cent. per annum, the amount of premium in the case of sale appropriations lengthening the time of repayment. By an alteration registered 21st October the repayments were reduced to 8 per cent. At the same time it was provided that a member might discontinue his subscriptions on appropriated shares upon payment of a fee of 2*l.* 10*s.* per share in the case of an advance by ballot, and of 2*l.* per share in the case of an advance by sale; and that a member might consolidate his unappropriated shares by transferring them (less working expenses) to the return of appropriation account. On 28th November 1884 cheques were drawn to Mr. Enright for an appropriation of 300*l.* to be used by him as sufficient money came in to meet them. On 12th May 1885 the society agreed to purchase Mr. Pizzala's appropriation for 53*l.* 14*s.* (including subscriptions). On 23rd June the appropriation was re-sold to Mr. Young for 44*l.* 10*s.* per cent., or 178*l.*; but on the 10th November an advance of 700*l.* was granted to Mr. Enright (who seems to have acquired Mr. Young's rights), to enable him to purchase a house from Mr. Naunton, the society's solicitor. Mr. Enright suggested that another solicitor should be employed to act in the matter. As the society had not funds to make the advance, 500*l.* was agreed to be borrowed, and was ultimately lent to the society by Mr. Naunton. On 25th September 1888 a special general meeting authorised Mr. Bellingham to redeem his mortgage by payment of the principal unpaid, and premium due, 83*l.* 14*s.*, the society foregoing all premiums not yet due and paying the costs; and at the same meeting an alteration of rules was agreed to, allowing a mere majority of members at a meeting meeting called for the purpose, to dissolve the society, appoint a liquidator, and fix his remuneration. On 14th June 1889 the secretary was authorised by the board to arrange with Mrs. Mannering to redeem her mortgage, and to have the sum payable by her advanced to himself at a further charge upon his property, already in mortgage to the society. She paid 182*l.* 16*s.* By this transaction Mr. Enright became the society's only mortgagor. Of his first mortgage of 300*l.*, 200*l.* appears to have been granted without interest, and 100*l.* for a premium of 26*l.* 10*s.* Upon redeeming it on 14th June 1889, 17*l.* 19*s.* was allowed off the premium. Upon his second mortgage of 300*l.*, 79*l.* 10*s.* premium was charged. Of this, 61*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* was written off. Upon his third mortgage of 400*l.*, 178*l.* was charged. Of this 170*l.* was written off. The further charge of 182*l.* 16*s.* was never entered against him in the books of the society. The balance of these various mortgages on 29th May 1890 stood at 763*l.* 10*s.*, the repayments made having been by transfers of shares which Mr. Enright had bought from dissatisfied shareholders, amounting to 499*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; but there was no evidence upon what terms he had bought them, except that he admitted he had made profit by the transaction. On that day a special general meeting was held, at which "after a lengthy discussion, it was unanimously resolved that this society be dissolved according to Rule 30; that Mr. Robert Alfred Enright, of Albion-road, Stoke Newington, be, and is hereby appointed liquidator or special trustee. That the liquidator's remuneration be 5 per cent. on all payments. That Messrs. F. Kreele and J. A. Grasemore be, and are hereby appointed auditors for the purpose of the liquidation. The said liquidator or trustee shall have power to make, with the consent of the auditors, an allowance to borrowing members for earlier redemption, and also to pay to depositors and other creditors their claims in full, and to apportion the loss among the remaining shareholders according to the number of shares held by them." In March 1892, Mr. Enright issued to the shareholders his final balance sheet, purporting to be signed by the auditors, and a copy of it bearing their signatures is entered in the books of the society. It states the "amount due on mortgages" as 763*l.* 10*s.*, and allows a rebate for early redemption of 76*l.*, carried forward to a final dissolution account as "To cash received from mortgagors, 687*l.* 10*s.* As a matter of fact, when the auditors signed that document, Mr. Enright had not paid any portion of it. On the 9th June 1892, he paid 155*l.* odd to Mr. Naunton, being the balance of the 500*l.* lent by him to the society, and received back his deeds. He credited himself with 50*l.*, paid for the purchase of an appropriation of 400*l.* not advanced; with 10*l.* for printing, afterwards explained to include other charges; with 30*l.* for salary; with 32*l.* 10*s.* for his remuneration as liquidator, and with 2*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.* to cover expenses of audit, postage, &c., leaving a sum of 407*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.* still due by him to the shareholders in respect of their 1,194*l.* 1*s.* 6*d* paid capital, equivalent to a loss of 3*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* a share. Of this, he states about 150*l.* has been called for and paid by him, and the remainder he is prepared to pay on demand. All these transactions have been carried through his own private banking account, and not through that of the society. In the account he neglected to give credit for 28*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.*, the cash balance on 5th April 1890, and the auditors nevertheless passed the account. Mr. Lott claimed a return of the whole of his money, 21*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* (erroneously entered in the books of the society as 21*l.* 10*s.*), and his solicitors were willing to accept in satisfaction of their costs a lump sum of 31*l.* 10*s.* Mr. Enright, on the other hand, claimed the costs of the adjournment which he attended when they were absent. Held, that Mr. Enright was bound to indemnify the society against the loss incurred through him in the case of Pizzala (53*l.* 14*s.*, less 8*l.*), to account for the profit made by him in the case of Mannering (18*l.*), and to refund the 28*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* cash balance, making together, 92*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*, which, divided among 149 shares, is 12*s.* 5*d.* per share, or for Mr. Lott's share, 1*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*; and that the costs ought to be paid by Mr. Enright, in addition to the 10*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.* previously tendered to Mr. Lott, and the 6*d.* error. Award as follows:

"The liquidator of the society shall rectify his accounts by crediting the society with—

28	13	10	cash balance omitted;
45	14	–	the difference between the amount paid by the society for Mr. Pizzala's appropriation, and that paid by the liquidator as premium thereon;
and 18	–	–	the amount allowed to the liquidator as mortgagor in respect of the further charge not entered against him in the books of the society;
making together £. 92	7	10

John Lott shall contribute to the losses of the society 9*l.* 4*s.*, and no more. The liquidator of the society shall pay to John Lott the sum of 12*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*, being the balance of the amount paid by him upon his shares, 21*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*, after deducting the said sum of 9*l.* 4*s.* The liquidator shall pay the costs properly incurred by John Lott in the matter of the dispute, including those relating to the Order of Discovery, not exceeding 35*l.* in the whole. This award shall be complied with, and conformed to within 21 days."

It was made on the 26th July, but instead of complying with it Mr. Enright left the plaintiff to take proceedings in the county court to enforce it, and gave notice of defence on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Registrar to make it. On the evening before the hearing of the petition in the county court, however, he paid the full amount awarded, with all the costs of the county court proceedings.

On

On this curious case it is not necessary to say more than that it shows how a building society may be so managed that the profit may be derived by one man, and the loss borne by his fellow-members. Certainly, no legislation could possibly help members foolish enough to place themselves in the hands of their secretary in the way the members of this society did, but the publication of these particulars may possibly induce members of other societies to look more vigilantly after their own interests.

During the present year (1893) four hearings have been given to similar disputes arising in the West Kensington and Fulham and General Gordon Building Societies, of which also Mr. Enright was liquidator. The particulars of these will appear in next year's Report.

Nine other disputes were settled by the Registrar during the year 1892, of which the following are the particulars:—

1. Construction of Rules.—By rule 35 of the society certain sums "shall be deducted annually for working expenses from subscriptions paid upon unappropriated shares." By rule 7, shares may be issued after the first appropriation has been made upon payment of entrance fee and current subscriptions; the arrears of subscriptions without fines up to the date of admission being payable by instalments of 6*d.* per share per week, "or shall be paid within one month after such share shall obtain an appropriation." By rule 18, "members holding two or more shares may consolidate them, the working expenses from date of the registration of the society being deducted, as per rule 35." By rule 33, the annual statement of the society's income and expenditure is to include a deduction of the working expenses, as per rule 18. The plaintiff contended that upon the true construction of the rules working expenses should be deducted from the subscriptions when actually paid, and not before. The society contended that working expenses from the date of registration of the society were to be deducted from every share, even though issued after that date, and whether the subscriptions from that date had been paid or not. Held, that the plaintiff's contention was correct. By rule 2, "the number of members shall be limited to 500; no member to have more than one vote whatever number of shares he may hold." By rule 3, "a member may hold one or any number of shares, but in no case shall he hold more than four in a group." By rule 13, "the salary of the secretary shall be at the rate of 30*l.* for members up to 300; 35*l.* for members from 300 to 400; and from 400 to 500 shall be 45*l.*, which may be altered at any annual meeting (14 days' notice being given, as per rule 33), and be paid quarterly." The society and the secretary contended, and the plaintiff disputed, that members in rule 13 means groups of shares. Held, that members in rule 13 means individual persons. The society and the secretary contended that they were at liberty to increase his salary from quarter to quarter if the number of members increased, but that it was not incumbent upon them to diminish it if the number of members diminished. Held, that the salary was a yearly salary, payable quarterly, and was to be estimated upon the number of members at the beginning of each year, and not subject to diminution or increase during the year. Award to be complied with within three months. Porter v. Chelmsford 661*st Starr-Bowkett Building Society*; 20th May.

2. Withdrawing Member: Alteration of Rules.—On 29th September and 10th October 1891, H, a director of the society, gave notice to withdraw his shares. He continued paying subscriptions and acting as a director. On 19th January 1892 an amendment was passed by which the amount payable to him on withdrawal would be increased to the extent of 25*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* or thereabouts. He took part in promoting the amendment, and signed the copies for registry. In July the directors drew a cheque for the amount payable under the old rule. He claimed the 25*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* in addition, addition, and also compensation for not being allowed to share in the ballot in July, the secretary having refused his subscription on the day of the ballot. Held, that he was entitled only to the amount due to him under the old rule. Award, that H. was not entitled to the 25*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* claimed, nor to compensation for loss of appropriation, and that 1*l.* 2*s.* out of the 2*l.* 2*s.* deposited by him with the society for costs be returned to him.—Hurd v. United Wards Building Society; 11th November.

3. Withdrawing Member; Alteration of Rules.—On 15th June 1889 plaintiff gave notice to withdraw. On 11th March 1890 an alteration of rules was made, directing that after that date "only one-half of the repayments should be applied towards withdrawals," instead of the whole, as provided in the original rules. If this alteration was binding on the plaintiff his turn would not yet have arrived; if not, he would be entitled to immediate payment Held, that it did not bind him, and award for payment within 21 days.—Rosenthal v. Norwood and West Kent 610th Starr-Bowkett Building Society. Hearing, 12th December 1892; Award, 9th January 1893.

4. Consolidation of Shares.—N., holder of two books, each representing two shares, applied to the director of the society to transfer the four shares to one book, and consolidate them into two shares, pursuant to rule 25, which says, "members holding more than one share may reduce the number by consolidating the same (but not below one share), that is by transferring their subscriptions forward to the credit of the reduced quantity of shares." The directors refused, upon the ground that the word "member" in the rules means "book," and that to allow N. to reduce the number of books would be equivalent to allowing him to withdraw before the date fixed in the rules. Held, that the word "member" in the rules had its natural meaning, and award that N. is entitled to consolidate as claimed. Award to be complied with within one calendar month.—Nettleton v. 1*st Manchester Perfect Thrift Building Society;* 20th December.

5. Right to Appropriation.—By rule 24 of the society "no member shall be entitled to take part in an appropriation whose subscriptions, and any fines are not fully paid up to and inclusive of the previous subscription night, excepting for the first appropriation meeting, when members may be admitted by paying up the full subscriptions previous to the drawing of the appropriation; at all future appropriations members must have paid four weeks' subscriptions to entitle them to participate therein." On 7th January the society gave notice to its members of two appropriations, to be made on 11th February, "but subscriptions must be paid to 4th February, not later than that date (4th February), to enable members to participate in either appropriation." On 11th February, before the appropriation meeting, a director was in attendance in a separate room to receive subscriptions. Plaintiff paid his subscription, obtained an official receipt, attended the appropriation meeting, and was declared entitled to the appropriation. Objection being taken, plaintiff and the society joined in a submission to the Registrar. It appeared that the condition on the notice had not been made a bye-law or formal resolution of the Board, and had not in practice been enforced. As it went beyond the requirements of the rule, held that it was invalid, and that plaintiff having, before the appropriation meeting, paid his subscription up to and inclusive of the previous subscription night, was entitled to the appropriation. Award accordingly.—Mentzel v. Boatmen's Institution and General Mutual Benefit Building Society; 29th March.

6. Right to Appropriation.—On 31st July 1890 plaintiff was declared entitled to an appropriation of 300*l.* He was not then ready to take it up, nor had the society the money at the bankers until 1st April 1891. No notice was given to him that the money was ready, except by the balance-sheet issued in July 1891, and a cash statement in the table on subscription nights. In March 1892 the board directed the secretary to call upon the plaintiff to take up the appropriation, and commence paying back at once. In doing so, Mr. Otter, the secretary, wrote: "Of course this should have been done some time since, according to the rule, but you have not complied with the same.

same. I enclose a letter from a party who may be willing to purchase. Can you let me know the lowest figure you are prepared to accept, inclusive of subscription?" On 19th March 1892 plaintiff sent Otter a cheque for 6*l.*, which he entered and initialed in plaintiff's book. By the rules of the society "if the member obtaining the appropriation is not prepared to complete his purchase at the time his money is ready at the bankers, he must commence the repayment in advance by paying to the society at the rate of 4*s.* per week for each 100*l.* to be advanced, dating from the first subscription night after the money is ready, until he shall have completed the mortgage; the member, failing to do this for six weeks, shall forfeit it to the society. A member having commenced his repayments in advance, and failing in any such repayment, shall be fined 6*d.* per week for each 100*l.* If such repayment be unpaid for more than six weeks, then the appropriation and the monies paid thereon shall be forfeited." It was argued for the society that this operated a complete forfeiture, without previous notice to the member, either that the money was ready or that the forfeiture had been incurred; and that the directors had no authority to waive any such forfeiture, and were willing to repay the 6*l.* received under a mistake as to their powers. Held, on the contrary, that the rule did not operate a forfeiture until after notice to the member; and that, if any forfeiture had been incurred, the directors had waived it. Award that plaintiff is entitled to an appropriation of 300*l.* To be complied with or conformed to within one month, upon his paying to the society the sum of 12*s.* per week, counting from 24th June. The effect of this would be that if he failed in six weeks' payments he would forfeit the appropriation.—Death v. 2*nd Plaistow* 232*nd Improved Starr-Bowkett Building Society;* 1st July.

7. Right to Appropriation.—Hannah Bell became a member of the society on 29th September 1890 at the age of 24, and held two shares. On 21st March 1892 she paid subscriptions in advance to the 23rd May, and was informed by the then secretary that no fines were then due from her. She died on 7th May. It was afterwards discovered that 4*d.* was due from her for fines. By rule 13, in case of a death of a member over 15 and under 50 years of age at the time of joining the society, after he or she has been a member for one year at least, if clear on the books at the time of his or her death, the next appropriation shall be deemed to belong to such deceased member's estate. Held, that Hannah Bell was clear on the books at the time of her death. The late secretary (who has now been removed from office) had falsely represented to the directors that the society had obtained the full number of 399 members contemplated by its rules, in which event under rule 12 the appropriations would be 100*l.* per share up to 400*l.*, and the society had accordingly made appropriations of 400*l.* each. After the death of Hannah Bell it was discovered that the society had not its full number of members, in which case an appropriation can be only for the share of 100*l.* Held, that the personal representative of Hannah Bell is entitled to an appropriation of 100*l.* only. Award accordingly. Award to be complied with within three months. No order as to costs, the claimant having succeeded on one point, and the society on another.—Bell v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne Perfect Thrift Building Society; 24th October.

8. Charges on Appropriation.—The society was incorporated on 1st January 1883. By rule 17, the surveyor was to be paid a fee of one guinea for inspecting and reporting on property valued up to 400*l.* By rule 12, the directors had power to appoint committees, including appropriation committees, with such powers and remuneration as they deem expedient. Any committee formed on behalf of any member shall be paid for by such member. By rule 37, expenses incurred in respect of any property mortgaged or offered in security by any member are recoverable from the member. On 1st July 1884 the directors resolved to appoint an appropriation committee for each appropriation, consisting of two directors in rotation, and that the member requiring the advance pay 10*s.* 6*d.* for the remuneration of such committee. Every applicant for an appropriation was required to fill up a form at the head of which was a direction that it was to be delivered "with the surveyor's fee, 21*s.*, and 10*s.* 6*d.* for the directors' survey committee." Plaintiff applied for an appropriation of 400*l.* in 1890, filled up the form, paid the 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*, and received the appropriation. He applied for two other appropriations of 400*l.* each in 1891, filled up the form, paid 3*l.* 3*s.*, and received the appropriations. Considering that the 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* for directors' survey committee was an overcharge, he submitted to the Registrar a claim for that amount to be refunded. Held, that he was not entitled to have it refunded, and award accordingly. —Harrison v. Boatmen's Institution and General Mutual Benefit Building Society; 25th March.

9. Substitution of Security.—Plaintiff bought of a member an appropriation of 400*l.*, repayable by 50 quarterly instalments without interest. He secured it on one freehold house and two leasehold houses. After having paid 20 instalments, he sold the two leasehold houses to a railway company. He had another advance of 400*l.* on two freehold houses, of which advance half had been repaid. He made proposals to the directors to consolidate these mortgages, but without effect. They insisted on his redeeming the one which was affected by the sale to the railway company, and he did it by payment of 205*l.*, 2½ per cent. discount being allowed him. Being dissatisfied, he applied for an award directing the society to lend him 100*l.* on the security of the freehold house formerly included in the first mortgage. Held, that this was discretionary with the directors, and award that plaintiff was not entitled to such advance, and that 1*l.* 2*s.* out of the 2*l.* 2*s.* deposited by him with the society for costs be returned to him.—Barrett v. United Wards Building Society; 11th November.

The year 1892 has been an eventful one for Building Societies, in consequence of the failures of the "Liberator," which was the largest London Society, and the "Kent and Surrey," the "London Provident," and other societies. These failures greatly diminished public confidence in Building Societies; and were followed by a "run" upon several societies, which were in the habit of receiving deposits repayable on demand. In the case of the principal society of the class, the "Birkbeck," one of those established under the Act of 1836, and not incorporated under that of 1874, it had its resources so largely invested in available securities, that it was able to meet every demand, and the "run," indeed, strengthened the credit and reputation of the society, instead of weakening it. The failures of the year have, however, convinced everybody that an amendment of the Building Societies Acts is a matter of great urgency. As the subject is now under the consideration of a Select Committee of the House of Commons, I do not propose to discuss it in the present Report.

IX.—Loan Societies.

The following is a summary of the return relating to Loan Societies for the year ending 31st December 1891, presented to both Houses of Parliament in compliance with the requirements of the Loan Societies Act (3 & 4 Vict. c. 110), but not ordered by either House to be printed; together with a comparison of its results with those of the previous year:—

Table XXII.

	Total.	Increase in 1891.	Decrease in 1891.
Number of societies making returns	298	-	11
Number of members	34,576	-	240
Amount actually advanced and paid by depositors and shareholders in the year.	£. 83,495	£. 3,903	—
Total amount due to depositors, shareholders	£. 258,714	-	£. 9,157
Sums in borrowers' hands	£. 241,703	-	£. 1,803
Amount circulated in the year	£. 243,070	£. 1,548	-
Number of applications for loans	65,032	-	823
Number of borrowers to whom loans are granted	58,117	-	576
Amount paid for interest by borrowers or sureties	£. 18,864	£. 4	—
Expenses of management	£. 9,814	-	£. 246
Net profits, after paying expenses	£. 12,791	£. 115	—
Loss (if any) during the year	£. 1,679	-	£. 37
Number of summonses issued	2,545	-	507
Number of distress warrants issued	359	-	32
Amount for recovery of which summonses were issued	£. 6,024	-	£. 900
Amount recovered	£. 4,893	-	£ 346
Amount of costs incurred by society in recovering loans	£. 689	-	£. 78
Amount of costs paid by borrowers or sureties	£. 487	-	£. 39

Upon the whole, these figures indicate a slight improvement during the year, the hostile proceedings taken against borrowers being only 1 summons for every 5*l.* profit earned, instead of 4*l.* as last year. As many as 25 societies, instead of 21, as in 1890, returned more than 300 members, the largest continuing to be the "Surprise," Churton-street, Pimlico, with 1,100 members, which has, however, recently sustained a considerable loss by embezzlement. The next are still the Portsea Society, with 711, and the Crawford-street Society, with 688. Two others have more than 600; one over 500; and 4 over 400.

Only eight out of these 25 societies have capital belonging to the members in excess of 3,000*l.* These rank from 3,563*l.* to 5,582*l.*. Only 3 of these have more than 10*l.* per member; the largest being the "Whitefriars," with 18*l.* 12*s.* per member. The total number of societies with more than 3,000*l.* capital is 15, one more than in last year. Of these, one at Nottingham has 5,573*l.* belonging to its five members; one at Bradford, also, with only five members, has 4,150*l.*; two at Hull, with 15 members each, have, respectively, 4,454*l.* and 3,320*l.*; one at Nottingham, with 17 members, has 15,781*l.*; one at Crewe, with 19 members, 3,051*l.*; and one at Bradford, with 34 members, 4,200*l.*

It may be curious to observe whether these societies of small capitalists bear more hardly on their borrowers than the generality of Loan Societies. If the relation of the summonses and distress warrants to the amount circulated may be taken as a test of this, it would seem that it is so. The summonses were 7½ per 1,000*l.* circulated on the general average; in these seven societies they were 16⅔; the distress warrants, which were on the average 1 per 1,000 l., rise in these societies to 3⅓ per 1,000*l.*

X.—Scientific and Literary Societies.

Certificates were granted during the year entitling the following societies to exemption from local rates:—

1. Bury St. Edmund's Athenæum.
2. Rugby Public Library.
3. Paddington Free Library.

XI.—Savings Banks.

We have been in frequent communication with the Inspection Committee of Trustee Savings Banks as to the provisions required by them to be inserted in the rules of the Banks for securing a better audit of their accounts, and for regulating special investments, in the cases where such investments are allowed. The Committee have required all Banks to make provision in their rules for frequent attendance by the auditor at the office of the Bank, and inspection by him of depositors' books, so that not less 10 per cent. of the whole number of books shall be inspected by him in the course of a year.

The scheme of the Committee provided for the retirement by ballot of one of the four original members each year, and on the 20th November 1892, Mr. Ludlow was ballotted to retire. I have to thank him for kindly consenting to continue his valuable services for a term of four years as the member of the Committee appointed by the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies. The Committee have also expressed their gratification at the renewal of his appointment.

Particulars of the 45 disputes settled during the year between depositors or other claimants and the Post Office and Trustee Savings Banks will be found in the Appendix, arranged in the form of an alphabetical digest. It is thought that this is a more convenient plan than inserting them in the body of the Report, but I hope it will not cause them to be overlooked. The cases under the heading "Creditor," "Error," "Forgery," "Guardians," and "Presumption of Death," with others, afford interesting and sometimes romantic glimpses into the manners and customs of depositors in Savings Banks.

Report.

Railway Savings Banks.

It is certainly worth noting, that the workers in one particular branch of industry, to the number of 21,000, should have entrusted their employers with savings amounting to more than one and a-half millions sterling, and increasing with interest at the rate of nearly 200,000*l.* a year. The average amount of each depositor's account in the various railways is as follows:—

1. Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire	117·4
2. South Eastern - - - - -	76·9
3. Metropolitan - - - - -	52·6
4. Caledonian - - - - - -	109·6

8. Lancashire and Yorkshire - - -	39·4
9. Great Western - - - - -	17·7
10. London, Chatham, and Dover - -	26·4

The numbers indicate the order of seniority of the banks. The general average is 73·5*l.* The average rate of interest, calculated on the mean capital of the year is, 3·86 per cent. The average amount of each deposit during the year is, 2*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*, varying from 6*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.* in the Great Eastern, to 19*s.* 9*d.* in the Metropolitan; and the average amount of each withdrawal during the year is 14*l.*, varying from 18*l.* 18*s.*, in the Caledonian to 5*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.*, in the Great Western.

The South-Eastern Railway Company has obtained parliamentary powers enabling the directors to advance money to persons of all ranks in the Company's service to assist them to purchase their dwelling-houses, whether freehold or long leasehold. The rate of interest payable by the borrower is to be 4 per cent. per annum, and the time for repayment is to be spread over a sufficient number of years to meet the convenience of the borrower. No fees whatever are to be charged beyond the actual costs out of pocket, not exceeding two guineas, exclusive of stamp duty. The object of the directors in exercising this valuable authority is to enable the staff to buy their houses on the cheapest terms possible.

XIII.—Friendly and other Societies in the Colonies and Foreign Countries.

By the courtesy of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and other official and private persons, I am supplied, from time to time, with returns relating to provident movements in the colonies and abroad. Abstracts of some of them will be found in Appendices (C), (D), (E), and (F). I have especially to return my thanks to Dr. Kursteiner, of Gais, Switzerland, for the interesting information he has been so kind as to furnish, of which an abstract is given at pages 140, 141.

SCOTLAND.

REPORT of the Assistant Registrar of Friendly Societies for Scotland to the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies for the Year 1892.

Friendly Societies.

During the year three new societies were registered being nine less than last year, and about half the average number registered in recent years :—

1. City of Edinburgh Lodge of Juvenile Shepherds, Sick, Funeral and Friendly Society.
2. St. Brycedale Juvenile Foresters' Friendly Society.
3. Ayrshire Foresters.

No benevolent societies, working men's clubs, or specially authorised societies were registered.

Thirteen societies registered complete amendments and 19 registered partial amendments, both being slightly in excess of last year's numbers.

Five societies were dissolved by instrument:—

1. Elm Lodge of Free Gardeners, 56, Fife. Certified in February 1882. Number of members, 19 ; assets, 22*l.* ; equally divided.

(No Districts.)

1. Elliot Lodge, No. 762.

National Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

1. Loyal Blairmore Lodge, No. 1,131, Keith District.

No conversions of societies into branches were registered.

Fifty-four branches registered complete amendments, and 108 registered partial amendments of their rules, which taken together exceed by 10 last year's figures, which were much over the average.

Two hundred and fifty-four societies and branches registered new appointments of trustees, and 75 registered a change of office; both being in excess of last year's numbers.

Two old societies composed of ministers of the United Presbyterian Church, one instituted in 1792, and the other in 1797, amalgamated under the name of the "United Presbyterian Ministers Friendly Society, registered No. 160, Edinburgh.

One Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters seceded from the Order:—Pride of Alton, No. 6,117, Dumfries District.

One hundred and ninety-nine valuations were received, of which 53 were from societies and 146 from branches.

Six societies and a branch claimed and obtained exemption from valuation.

The Assistant Registrar for Scotland finds a great disposition on the part of friendly societies to enlarge their powers of investment, being dissatisfied with the limited investments permissible under Section 16, Sub-section 1 of the Act, because they are able able to get a higher rate of interest by investing in securities less certain to command money and consequently offering higher rates than can be obtained on first-class securities. In some cases he has had to pass powers of investment which were beyond the limitations of the Act, but in doing so he indicated his opinion that the committee and trustees which sanctioned such investments might, in the event of loss arising upon them, be held personally responsible to their societies.

The Assistant Registrar considers that it would be wise and prudent in any amending Act to enlarge somewhat the securities available to friendly societies in Scotland, seeing that almost all the great insurance companies and banks have now by private Acts of Parliament, and trustees under private trusts by a public Act, obtained larger and wider powers of investment than were regarded as sufficient in times past.

Industrial and Provident Societies.

Twelve new societies, or double last year's number, were registered, which is fully up to the average of last decade:—

1. Clydesdale Co-operative Creamery Society, Limited, 40, Renfrew.
2. Old Cumnock Co-operative Society, Limited, 46, Ayr.
3. Bellshill Building Society, Limited (London Co-operative), 164, Lanark.
4. Douglas Provident Co-operative Society, Limited, 166, Lanark.
5. Millheugh Building Society, Limited (London Co-operative), 167, Lanark.
6. Firth of Clyde Co-operative Society, Limited, 41, Renfrew.
7. United Co-operative Baking Society Employés Bonus Investment Society, Limited, 168, Lanark.
8. Friockheim Co-operative Society, Limited, 35, Forfar.
9. Tarbrax Co-operative Society, Limited, 165, Lanark.
10. Methil Co-operative Society, Limited, 46, Fife.
11. Co-operative Quarrying Association, Limited, 18, Dumbarton.
12. St. Mungo's Working Men's Club and Institute Society, Limited, 169, Lanark.

Fifteen societies registered complete amendments, and 36 registered partial amendments, together 51, being 11 over last year's figures.

Six societies registered a change of office, which is the usual yearly average.

There were no dissolutions by instrument, nor any wound up under the Companies Act, but one society was broken up:—

1. Newhaven Industrial Co-operative Society, Limited, 41, Edinburgh.

One society changed its name:—

"Industrial Co-operative Pottery Society, Limited," 12, Linlithgow, from "Bo'ness Industrial Pottery and Manufacturing Society, Limited."

Report.

Scotland.

One amalgamation took place :—

"Dumfries and Maxwell Town Co-operative Society, Limited," 13, Dumfries, and "Queen of the South Co-operative Society, Limited," 12, Dumfries, uniting under the name of the "Dumfries and Maxwell Town Co-operative Society, Limited," 13, Dumfries.

No English nor Irish societies recorded their rules in Scotland.

During the past year the Assistant Registrar had for the first time to consider whether a number of persons joining together to form a club "for providing for the use of the members the means of social intercourse, mutual helpfulness, mental and moral improvement, rational recreation, and the other advantages of a club," could have the club registered under "The Industrial and Provident Societies Acts, 1876," as being a society for carrying on a "labour, trade, or handicraft" within the meaning of Section 6 of the Act. His opinion was against the legality of registering the club, as not falling within the definition of a society under the Act, but on conferring with the Chief Registrar he found that it had been the practice to register such clubs in England under the said Act, and he therefore felt that it would be creating an anomalous state of matters if he declined to register such clubs in Scotland. He accordingly registered the club, but he thinks it right, in his Report, to state his doubts whether such clubs are really within the Act.

Building Societies.

Thirty-eight new societies received certificates of incorporation, which is four more than last year's number, and greatly in excess of the record in any previous year. With the exception of two they are all either "Models" or "Economics," the promoters of which, respectively, are Mr. Arthur Conner, of Manchester, and Mr. Joseph Peers, Rosedell, Lancashire.

The following is a list of the year's transactions:—

1. Strathmore "Economic" Building Society, 3, Perth.

Trade Unions.

Only two were registered during the year :—

1. Operative Skinners Protective Union, No. 66.
2. Larkhall and Upper Ward of Lanark Miners Association, No. 90.

Nine unions registered complete amendments, and four partial amendments, against 11 registered last year.

Three unions had their registry cancelled by request, while three more were broken up or ceased to exist. One union, the "Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants for Scotland," amalgamated with the English union of a like name, thus removing seven unions from the register within the year. Their names and numbers are :—

Cancelled by request.

1. Associated Scottish Iron Shipbuilders Holders-up Trade Union, 88.
2. United Pattern Makers Association, Trade Union, 45.
3. Port Glasgow and District Drillers' Society, Trade Union, 63.

Broken up or Ceased to exist.

1. Scottish Oil Workman's Union, Trade Union, 87.
2. Foundry Labourers of Great Britain and Ireland, Trade Union, 73.
3. Cambuslang Miners Labour Protection Association, Trade Union, 70.

Amalgamated with English Unions.

1. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants for Scotland, Trade Union, 7.
2. The National Scottish Horseman's Union, Trade Union, 74, united with the Amalgamated Carters Society, Trade Union, 15.

One union intimated a change of office.
Five English unions recorded rules or alteration of rules.

Three unions changed their names :—

1. "Associated Scottish Iron Shipbuilders Helpers Association," Trade Union, 64, to the "Amalgamated Shipyard Helpers Association."
2. "Amalgamated Carters Society," Trade Union, 15, to "Associated Carters Society of Scotland."
3. "Sewing Machine Makers," Trade Union, 72, to "Amalgamated Society of Sewing Machine, Cycle and Toolmakers."

Savings Banks Registered under Act of 1863.

Eighteen savings banks registered under this Act received certificates of complete amendments, and four of partial amendments of their rules against five certified last year.

Post Office Savings Banks.

Six cases of dispute were referred to the Registrar, and his decisions are appended:—

1. Re Post Office Savings Bank, Stranraer, and Deposits of Rebecca Higgins, 29, Fisher-street, there. Claimant, John Higgins; award, 12th March 1892.

The Registrar awarded that the balance left in the bank should be paid to the claimant John Higgins.

2. Re Post Office Savings Bank, Kirkcaldy, and Deposits of Mrs. Catherine Brodie. Claimant, Alexander Brodie; award, 22nd April 1892.

Mrs. Brodie, at the time of her death, had the sum of 178*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* at her credit in the above savings bank. Alexander Brodie, her husband, with two sons and a daughter by the marriage, survived her. He stated on oath that although the money in the bank was in his wife's name, it truly was his, and represented the savings from his earnings over a period of 22 years, and had been deposited in his wife's name merely for convenience.

One of the sons was resident abroad and his address is unknown. The other son and daughter were resident in Scotland, and on being communicated with, both acquiesced in the claim made by their father.

The Registrar therefore awarded that the sum standing at the credit of the deceased Catherine Brodie should be paid to her husband Alexander Brodie.

3. Re Post Office Savings Bank, Dundee, and Deposits of William Macdonald alias Gordon. Claimant, John Ewen; award, 20th July 1892.

This case is somewhat peculiar. John Ewen, farmer, Tarland, Aberdeenshire, made an affidavit that, while attending a market there, on 25th November 1891, he was robbed by a pedlar named William Macdonald of the sum of 91*l.* Macdonald was tried and convicted of the robbery at Aberdeen on 21st January 1892. In the course of the trial it was ascertained that part of this money was deposited by Macdonald in the Post Office Savings Bank, Dundee, in the name of "William Gordon." The sum lodged in bank, 30*l.*, embraced the sum or part of the sum, of 10*l.* which Macdonald on the same day stole from James Anderson, farmer, Barhillock, Aberdeenshire. Ewen and Anderson asked that the said sum of 30*l.* should be divided between them in proportion to their respective losses. On communicating with the Post Office authorities they state that the only deposit known to them to be made by William Gordon in the Post Office Savings Bank, Dundee, is that of 30*l.* on the 30th November 1891 (five days after the robbery was committed), and that they had no reason to doubt the claimants' statements.

Macdonald, a prisoner in Perth Prison, was written to, but refused to give any particulars.

Macdonald's wife was also written to at her last known address, but the letter failed to find her.

After considering all the circumstances of the case the Registrar has come to the conclusion, not without difficulty, however, that the claimant is entitled to receive payment out of such deposit along with James Anderson in proportion to their respective claims, and he decided accordingly.

4. Re Post Office Savings Bank, Dundee, and Deposits of William Macdonald alias Gordon. Claimant, James Anderson; award, 20th July 1892.

The particulars of this case being given in No. 3, it is not necessary to repeat them here.

5. Re Post Office Savings Bank, Doune, and Deposits of Marjory Paterson. Claimant, John Wood; award, 16th August 1892.

John Wood, a draper, in Doune, Perthshire, and a son-in-law of Marjory Paterson, claims the money standing in his mother-in-law's name, in above bank. The pass-book shows transactions over many years, during which Mrs. Paterson's right to the deposits had never been called in question. John Wood avers that his wife and Mrs. Paterson took away money from him years ago from a shop he then had, and he supposes that it is this money which is in the bank. His letters, however, are almost unintelligible, and he can produce no evidence whatever in support of his allegation.

Mrs. Paterson's late employer, a landed proprietor in the district, asserts that it is within his knowledge that the money is hers. Her daughter, Mrs. Wood, also states that the money is her mother's.

The Registar awards that the money should be paid to Marjory Paterson.

6. Re Post Office Saving's Bank, Edinburgh, and Deposits of Mrs. Sarah Jane Cunningham. Claimant, Sarah Jane Cunningham; award, 18th November 1892.

In 1879 Mrs. Cunningham opened an account with a post office branch, in Edinburgh, and had various transactions until 1886, when, after withdrawing 1*l.*, on 25th January of that year, she had no further transactions till May 1892, when she sent her bank book to the Post Office to get payment of the balance due to her. The Post Office officials returned the book with a withdrawal entered by them of 3*l.*, on 16th April 1886. Mrs. Cunningham denies the accuracy of this entry, and states she never withdrew this sum, and the receipt shown by the Post Office, she says, is a forgery. She says, further, that her bank book was lost in her repositories after the withdrawal of 1*l.*, on 25th January 1886, and was only found in one of her boxes in the beginning of this year. The Post Office authorities are unable to produce the warrant upon which the 3*l.* was paid.

Section 28 (6), of the Post Office Regulations (1888), provides that "The warrant shall be presented at the Post Office named therein, together with the depositor's book. (7), The paying officer shall enter the amount repaid in the depositor's book, and attest the entry with his initials, and the dated stamp of his office."

Neither of these two provisions were observed; the bank, thereby, unintentionally, no doubt, helped to the perpetration of the fraud. It is now an accepted principle in law, that where a third party has committed a fraud the loss must fall on the person who gave the greater facilities towards its perpetration.

In this case, the Registrar thinks the Post Office did, and he decides that the withdrawal of 3*l.* entered as paid on the 16th April 1886, be deleted.

Railway Savings Banks.

The Fifteenth Report of the North British Railway Savings Bank has just come to hand; showing transactions up to 31st January 1893. The number of open accounts up to that date is 1,404; an increase of 101 over previous year. The amount at the credit of the depositors was 218,739*l.*, an increase of 24,047*l.* on on that of previous year. There were 6,288 transactions of deposit, and 1,046 transactions of withdrawal, being 262 more deposits, and 90 more withdrawals, than in 1892. The amount of deposits exceeded the withdrawals by 15,901*l.*

Literary and Scientific Societies.

No certificates were issued under Act 6 & 7 Vict. c. 36.

The sum of 110*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* was drawn in fees, against 77*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.* drawn in 1891, an increase of 32*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.*

4,118 communications were received, and 3,812 were sent out during the year, being respectively 99 under, and 175 over, last year's numbers.

DISPUTES settled by the REGISTRAR under the SAVINGS BANKS and POST OFFICE SAVINGS BANKS ACTS, in 1892.

Savings Bank Disputes, (1892.)

1. The late Mr. John Sparks, of Gosden, was in the habit of receiving money from his employees and giving them at the end of each year tickets for clothing, paying the bill out of the money deposited with him, with added money of his own. An account was opened in the Savings Bank in the name of Mrs. John Sparks as treasurer of the Shalford Benevolent Fund, on 24th June 1831. On 22nd February 1836, 13*l.* was left in, and no further transaction took place till 12th April 1852, when 11*l.* 12*s.* was paid in. Mrs. Sparks died about that time. On 31st January 1853, and 20th February 1854, payments were made to J. Patrick, Mr. Sparks's butler, closing the account. It was afterwards re-opened and 7*l.* 16*s.* paid in. The last payment-in was on 18th December 1854, when the balance was 47*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* Mr. Sparks died March 1855, and a bill for clothing paid on 14th February 1854 was produced, which appeared to be in excess of the sums Mr. Sparks had received. Mr. Sparks and his executors are now all dead, and Mrs. Eastwood, his heir-at-law, applied for authority to have the money used in charitable purposes for the benefit of the poor people of Gosden. Mr. William More Molyneux, of Loseley Park, was willing to act with her in distributing the fund, and by consent of the trustees of the Savings Bank the deposits (now amounting to 131*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.*) were ordered to be paid to Mrs. Eastwood and Mr. Molyneux "to be applied by them in providing from time to time the attendance of a nurse upon sick people at Gosden."—Guildford Savings Bank, re Shalford Benevolent Fund. Hearing, 6th December 1889; award, 19th May 1892.

2, 3. An account for the Thurstaston Cow Fund was opened in 1872 by the Rector and Churchwardens of that parish. An account for the Thurstaston Charitable Fund was opened in 1857, and the interest drawn until 1881; the trustees of this fund being J. Realey and W. Jefferies, both of whom are now dead. The rector is confined to his bed with paralysis and unable to transact business; one of the churchwardens is dead, and the purposes of the Cow Fund are obsolete. Upon application by the Rev. R B. Rackham, curate in charge, to the Charity Commissioners, that body directed that the funds of the two charities should be invested by the official trustees of charitable funds. Award, for payment to Mr. Rackham, to be paid by him to the credit of the official trustees. Production of the deposit book dispensed with in the case of the charitable fund. Liverpool Savings Bank, re Thurstaston Cow Fund, ex parte Rackham; and re Thurstaston Charitable Fund, ex parte Rackham; 19th December.

CHILDREN.

4. Dispute submitted in 1889, when the deposit book was retained by one Laidler. A hearing was appointed for 22nd March 1889, but no one attended, and no evidence was offered. On 22nd October 1891, the children of the deceased depositor furnished a statutory declaration in support of their claim. Laidler, on being written to, answered that he had no claim, and had delivered up the deposit book to one Barron. Barron was written to, but made no answer. Ultimately the children obtained the deposit book from him. Award, for payment to them.—York Savings Bank, re Nelson; 8th April.

CREDITOR.

5. William Jones had 7*l.* deposited. As part security for advances made to him by George Lazenby, he gave Lazenby his deposit book. Jones has not been heard of since 1874. Advertisements in the "Northern Echo" and "Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper" brought no response. Award for payment to Lazenby as creditor.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Jones, ex parte Lazenby; 11th March.

6. Depositor, James Brown, a farm labourer, died 13th January 1892, leaving an only son, Stephen Brown. Deceased had resided since March 1891, with Elizabeth Howard, his step-daughter. On 2nd January 1892, he paid 5*l.* into the Post Office, of which Howard claimed 1*l.* 2*s.*, as her own money, 3*l.* 9*s.* for the undertaker's bill, and the balance towards an expense of 1*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.*, for refreshments at the funeral. She retained the deposit book. Stephen Brown alleged that she also detained furniture and effects of the depositor, but this was denied by her. His solicitor thereupon expressed his intention to take out administration to the deceased, and commence proceedings against Mrs. Howard in the local county court. Held, that this statement by the solicitor afforded no ground for the Registrar refusing to make an award, and award accordingly, that out of the deposits 4*l.* 11*s.* be paid to Elizabeth Howard, and the balance to Stephen Brown.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Brown, ex parte Howard; hearing, 29th April; award, 18th May.

7. Mary Ann Soanes opened a deposit account on 2nd January 1882, and at her death in March 1892, the balance was 29*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.* Her husband died on 31st July 1891. She left no relatives. Daniel Soanes, her husband's brother, paid the funeral expenses, 7*l.* 15*s.*, 1*l.* for rent, and 1*l.* to the woman in attendance. He also contributed 2*s.* a week for the support of the depositor and her husband from the time of his receiving an injury which disabled him for life in 1877 to his death, and had paid his funeral expenses. The Rev. Josiah Foster, Independent minister, deposed to an interview with the depositor about two days before her death, in which he urged her to make a will, but she declined, saying all her money would go to her husband's brother. She left no creditor other than Mr. Soanes. Held, that in the circumstances Daniel Soanes might be admitted to claim as a creditor in respect of the allowance made by him during lifetime as well as the funeral expenses of the depositor; and award for payment of the deposits to Daniel Soanes, as creditor of the estate.—London Provident Institution, re Soanes; 29th July.

8. Frederick Turner died at the Leavesden Asylum, having been maintained at the cost of the guardians of the parish of St. Marylebone since 17th July 1876. He was buried by them at a cost of 1*l.* 1*s.* Before entering the asylum, he had given his book to John Graham, his landlord, as security for a sum of 3*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*, due for his rent and maintenance. Award for payment of 1*l.* 1*s.* to guardians; 3*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* to Graham; and balance to guardians.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Turner, ex parte Graham; 9th December.

DEED OF GIFT.

9. Martha Mitchell, wife of David Mitchell, had a deposit account at the time of the death of her husband, in December 1885. By his will, he declared the deposits in the names of his wife and children to be his property, and directed that they should be brought into account in the distribution of his estate amongst them. The children drew out their deposits, but Mrs. Mitchell did not draw out hers, and repudiated any liability to treat her deposit as part of her husband's estate. She had made a will on 24th April 1883, bequeathing her estate to her daughter Rachel. On the 21st March 1892, she executed a deed of gift of the money in the Savings Bank to Abner Dale, as trustee for the same daughter and her children. She died the same day; the amount of the deposits was 153*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.* Claims were made by Abner Dale and by the executors of David Mitchell. Held, that neither claimant had any title under the Savings Bank Acts; and award for payment to the legal personal representative of Martha Mitchell.—Congleton Savings Bank, re Mitchell; 2nd December.

Savings Bank Disputes. (1892,)

DETENTION OF BOOK.

10. Depositor left a will which was duly proved. Her eldest son, being dissatisfied with the provision made for him, took possession of the deposit book, and refused to give it up. He attended the hearing, but showed no title to the deposits. Award for payment to executors, with or without production of book.—Manchester Savings Bank, re Hodgkinson; 18 March.

ERROR.

11. On 24th July 1885, Mrs. Mary Alice Patterson attended at Park-place Post Office to receive 7*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, for which she had given notice of withdrawal. The amount was duly entered in the deposit book, and in the accounts of the office, and there was no record of any error in those accounts; but the depositor declared that she only received 4*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*, and on 15th June 1891 made application to the Registrar for an order for payment of the difference, 2*l.* 18*s.* Upon a positive declaration by Mrs. Mary Louisa Stafford, of 119, Upper Hill-street, Liverpool, the officer by whom the pay ment had been made, that it was 7*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*, held that the depositor had not proved her claim, and award accordingly. Post Office Savings Bank, re Patterson. Hearing, 24th July 1891; Award, 1st June 1892.

12. On 29th February 1892 Mrs. Emma North, widow, of 177, Bridge-road, Battersea, attended at the office, 242, Battersea Park-road, to get a half-penny stamp, and a dog license, and to pay in a deposit to her account. She transacted the business of the stamp and the license, getting one shilling change, and then as she stated put down a sovereign, a halfcrown, and the shilling, and requested that 1*l.* 3*s.* should be credited to her deposit book. An entry was made in the deposit book, which was returned to her. Her sight being bad, she did not notice the figures in the book, went about some other business, and returned home in less than an hour, when she discovered that only 3*s.* had been entered to her credit. She immediately returned to the office (which is in a grocer's shop) when the clerk said she could not ascertain whether a mistake had been made until she balanced up her cash, which she did the next morning, and found it correct. The depositor thereupon appealed to the authorities, by whom she was referred to this office. Her evidence was supported by a young lady of her acquaintance, who happened to be transacting business at the office at the time, saw a sovereign within the barrier, and heard the depositor ask that 1*l.* 3*s.* might be added to her book. On the other hand, the post office clerk bore a good character, had been 15 years in the service without any accusation of irregularity, and her accounts for that day were perfectly correct. She gave her evidence with clearness and candour, and declared she never had received the sovereign alleged to have been deposited. Held, that the independent evidence as to the sovereign having been placed within the barrier must be taken as conclusive as to its having been placed within the control of the officer of the department, and that, therefore, the Postmaster General is liable. The probabilities of the case appear to point to the sovereign having been lost. Award that depositor is entitled to be credited with the sum of 1*l.*, placed by her on the desk of the receiving clerk on 29th February 1892, but omitted to be credited, having apparently been lost.—Post Office Savings Bank, re North; 18th June.

13 Ellen Miller, widow, of 104, Portman Buildings, Lisson Grove, had a deposit account (Crawford-street, 8827) through which she had invested in stock two sums of 7*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* and 5*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.* consols, and two sums of 88*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* and 98*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.* Local Loans Stock. The latter investment was by means of a transfer from an account in the name of one of her daughters. After this purchase her account stood at 16*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* On 28th September 1891 she signed notice of withdrawal at the Crawford-street Post Office for 13*l.* On 2nd October the warrant was issued, and she presented and signed it on the 3rd. The withdrawal was duly entered in her deposit book, and initialed by the clerk, Miss E. R. Chew, who reported to the Controller that she was satisfied she had paid it to the right person. On all these documents the sum is stated as 13*l.* On 1st April 1892 depositor complained to the postmaster postmaster at 310, Edgware-road that she had only received 1*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* and not 13*l.*, and he communicated with the authorities. On 20th April she wrote to the secretary of the General Post Office, stating that she had received 13*s.* only instead of 13*l.* On the 16th April she had been shown the warrant and notice of withdrawal. At the hearing she swore it was her intention only to withdraw the quarter's dividend upon the stock transferred from her daughter's account (that, however, would have been 14*s.* 9*d.*, not 13*s.*); that she received a bit of gold and three or four shillings, and showed them to her daughter Rose on her return; that her eyesight was bad, and she did not see the documents she was signing; that she locked up the book without showing it to her daughter or anyone, and did not discover the alleged mistake until six months afterwards, when she was desirous to make another investment, and consulted a friend, Captain Cole, on the matter. Miss Rose Miller stated that she, with help from another sister, had wholly supported her mother since her return from Paris in July 1891, and that her mother had no income whatever, except that arising from their investments in stock. Miss Miller also stated that she was engaged during the day in business in Bond-street. On the part of the Post Office it was clearly shown that the whole proceedings were perfectly regular. On the 28th September the depositor had applied to Mrs. Chew, the post-mistress, to make the withdrawal, and she requested her daughter Gertrude to fill up the withdrawal notice, stating the amount aloud in the hearing of the depositor. On the 3rd October, another daughter, Ethel, received the warrant from the depositor and paid the money, initialing the deposit book and warrant, and signing the report at the same time. Notwithstanding the production of these documents the depositor persisted in the statement, after being cautioned, that it was not Ethel but Gertrude who paid her the money. The accounts of the office for that day's transactions were perfectly correct. The depositor obtained the attendance of Mrs. Cole, wife of Captain Cole, at the hearing, but she knew nothing of the circumstances, and could only speak to character. Award that the 13*l.* had been duly paid. —Post Office Savings Bank, re Miller; 24th June.

14. On 9th July 1891 a deposit was made to the account of Lilian Kate Burden. It was entered in her deposit book as 3*l.*, but entered in the record of the local receiver as 5*l.*, and an acknowledgment for 5*l.* was sent to the depositor. Held that under 24 Vict. c. 14, s. 2, if the Postmaster General contested the correctness of the entry on the acknowledgment, the burden of proof rested upon him. The officer of the Post Office cross-examined the depositor and called her mother as a witness. The daughter said the money was paid into her account by her mother, to whom she gave only 1*l.* of it, but she saw the 5*l.* in her mother's hand before the deposit was made, and was sure it was 5*l.* She was not sure whether her mother went to the post office herself or sent a man. The mother was equally certain the sum was 5*l.*, but thought it likely she gave it to Richard Bray, an old man in her employment, over 80, now suffering from epilepsy, to deposit. She had every confidence in him, and the post office was in the immediate neighbourhood. He had been seen by an officer of the post office, but did not recollect the particular transaction. It was stated in the official reports that the clerk who had received the money, who is now dead, was 2*l.* 1*s.* short in her accounts on the day in question, which she made up out of her own pocket, but no evidence was given as to this. Held, that the Postmaster General had not shown that the deposit in question was other than 5*l.* Award, that the deposit made in the name of L. K. Burden on 9th July 1891 be entered in her deposit book as 5*l.* and not 3*l.*, so as to agree with the acknowledgment given by the Postmaster General.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Burden; 4th November.

FORGERY.

15. John Fletcher, in July 1891, had 182*l.* 4*s.* in the Post Office Savings Bank. Being advanced in years and in feeble health, a neighbour named Wright appears to have taken upon himself to interfere in Fletcher's affairs, and possessed himself of the deposit book. He forged Fletcher's signature signature to a notice of withdrawal, and got a neighbour named Elbourn to witness the forgery. He obtained a form of authority for Fletcher to sign, directing payment to himself on Fletcher's behalf, forged the signature, again got Elbourn to witness the forgery, got a medical man named Middleton to testify that the depositor was capable of attending to business, and got a justice of the peace named Hurrell to sign a certificate that he had read the document over to Fletcher "who appeared fully to understand it." None of these people had seen Fletcher sign the document, but they all appended their own signatures "as a matter of form," and did not read what they signed. The money was paid to Wright. Held, that the Postmaster General had no valid discharge in the forged document, and that the money must be paid over again to Fletcher. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Fletcher. Hearing, 22nd January; Dr. Cooper for claimant; award, 27th January.

Appendix (A.)
Savings Bank Disputes. (1892.)

16. Depositor, Morris Kanter, a foreign Jew, had saved 11*l.* to the knowledge of a fellow workman, who purloined the book, forged a notice of withdrawal, and obtained payment on 19th July 1891. On 20th July, Kanter missed his book and made enquiries; he also took steps to prosecute the suspected man, but delays took place for which he was not responsible, and the man escaped. Award, for payment over again to Kanter.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Kanter; hearing, 29th January; award, 30th January.

17. W. Newton, mariner, had 5*l.* 15*s.* deposited. In January 1891 he was employed as mate on board a steamship, and up to that time the deposit book remained in his possession. On the 8th January he arrived at Newport, Mon., remained four days there; sailed for Cardiff, and remained four days there, and on the 17th sailed for the Mediterranean. On 16th February, at sea, he missed his deposit book from the box in his berth where he used to keep it. On 17th February he arrived at Bayonne, and on the 18th wrote to the Postmaster General. On 7th March he arrived in Bristol, and found a letter from the Post Office awaiting him, informing him that 5*l.* had been withdrawn on the 21st January at Maindee. The notice and receipt were forged. Award for payment to depositor.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Newton; 30th April.

18. On 2nd November 1889 Ellen Woosey had 93*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.* to her credit. In January 1890 she went to live at Walton with her sister, Jane Rothwell, having previously given notice to withdraw 10*l.*, and left her book at the bank, where it remained until September 1891. She asked Jane, when the notice expired, to fetch the 10*l.*; but Jane returned without the money, and with a power of attorney, which was executed by Ellen and witnessed by two persons brought in by Jane. On 11th January 1890, the 10*l.* was withdrawn. About a week after this Ellen gave notice to withdraw 15*l.*, which she received on 29th January. On 4th June, she left Jane's house and went to live at Burscough. She drew no more until 21st January 1891, when she received 5*l.* On 6th May she received another 5*l.*, making 35*l.* altogether. In August or September, Jane came to Burscough to see Ellen, and while there a clerk from the savings bank called to explain that the account had been overdrawn. It then appeared, as Jane Rothwell afterwards admitted at an interview with the managers of the bank, that she had on several occasions forged the name of her sister to notices of withdrawal and presented powers of attorney which had not been signed by her. It appeared from the evidence of the actuary of the bank that Ellen Woosey requested him to keep her pass-book at the bank, so as to save her the trouble of taking it with her; and the payments out, both those that Ellen admits she received herself, and those that were paid to Jane on the forged powers of attorney were entered in the pass-book, which was replaced in the pigeon hole. Held, that this was not a compliance with the statute and the rules of the bank, which require the pass-book to be produced on every occasion of deposit or withdrawal. Award for payment of 58*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.*, with interest.—Ormskirk Savings Bank, re Woosey; 10th July.

19. Hugh

19. Hugh Duffin, the depositor, left his book in the hands of Michael Lagan, the landlord of a tavern at Gateshead, as security for a debt. Lagan refused to give it up until the debt was paid. Duffin then applied to the Post Office in November 1882 for a new book, stating his book to be lost, which he afterwards explained to mean lost to him. In January 1887 the book was produced at the bank, and a deposit of 2*s.* made. On 2nd August 1887 the account was closed by the withdrawal of 16*s.* at Felling Post Office, Durham. In November 1891, Duffin wrote from Belfast claiming 12*s.* as due to him, and stating that Lagan, who had the book, was dead. He appears to have died in 1885. Upon being informed of the withdrawal, he declared it to be a forgery, and stated that he had never recovered possession of the deposit book, and was in Ireland when the withdrawal took place. He furnished a statutory declaration in support of these statements. Held, that having parted with the deposit book under circumstances which would not entitle him to recover possession of it without paying his debt to the holder, he could not make a title to the deposits as against the Post Office, whether the receipt was forged or not. Award, not entitled.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Duffin; 9th April.

FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

20. Deposits were accepted from Crichton Magill, as treasurer of the Liverpool Corporation Independent Benefit Society, a provident institution, but it was in reality an unregistered friendly society. Upon an intended division of the funds, Thomas Woods, and others, claimed as past members that they were entitled to a share. The society contended that as they had ceased to be members they were not so entitled. Neither party attended the hearing, but Mr. Woods furnished a statutory declaration, which the society did not answer, though invited to do so. Award, that the deposits are the proper moneys of Thomas Woods, and others, being, or having been members of the Liverpool Corporation Independent Benefit Society, an unregistered friendly society, and that they be paid to Crichton Magill on their behalf.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Magill, ex parte Woods. Hearing, 15th January ; award, 27th February.

21. The Turner of Preston Lodge was a registered branch of the Original Grand Order of Total Abstinent Sons of the Phoenix. It seceded from that Order in December 1887, and notice of secession, signed by the secretary of the Order, was duly registered 28th May 1889. On 30th July 1892 the lodge registered itself as a branch of the Amalgamated Independent O.T.A.S.P. In the meantime another Turner of Preston Lodge had been registered as a new branch of the Original Grand O.T.A.S.P. At the time of the secession, the lodge had in its possession a sum of 12*l.*, which it had received from the Order on the death of a member to pay his funeral allowance, but which had not been claimed. By Rule 57, a seceding lodge is required to "forego all claims to any benefits they were entitled to receive previous to seceding from the Order." Held, that the 12*l.* belonged to the Original Grand Order. The general secretary of that Order appeared on behalf of 20 members, who dissented from the secession, and are now members of the new Turner of Preston Lodge O.G.O.T.A.S.P. He stated that each such member had paid the Order 1*s.* 2*d.* as a reserve levy in consequence of the funds of the lodge having been diverted from the Order, and moved that in fairness this should be returned to them out of the deposits. The general secretary of the A.I.O.T.A.S.P., who appeared for the trustees of the lodge, declined to assent to this proposal. The facts of the case not being otherwise seriously contested : award, that out of the deposits 12*l.* be paid to the trustees of the O.G.O.T.A.S.P., and the balance to the trustees of the Turner of Preston Lodge A.I.O.T.A.S.P.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Turner of Preston Lodge O.G.O.T.A.S.P., ex parte Turner of Preston Lodge A.I.O.T.A.S.P., and ex parte Original Grand Order; 6th December.

FUNERAL EXPENSES.

22. Depositor had 5*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* to credit of his account. He had no relatives, and Charles Collins as "a friend of his from childhood" defrayed his funeral expenses, amounting to 5*l.* 4*s.* 1*d.* Award for payment of that amount to Collins.—Brighton Savings Bank, re Lane, ex parte Collins; 21st March.

Funeral Expenses.

23. Lucy Louisa G. had been maintained at the Metropolitan Asylum for Imbeciles at Leavesden, at the cost of the guardians, from 9th December 1870 to her death on 13th December 1892. Her illegitimate daughter, who had had possession of the deposit book, in which a sum of 29*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.* was credited, had the body removed from the asylum, and ordered a splendid funeral, at a cost of 25*l.*, on the grounds, as she stated, that the deceased "had been a great sufferer; had been brought up well; and was well deserving it." She considered the deposit was intended as a provision for the funeral, and had understood that the guardians would have no claim upon it. As she appeared to have acted in good faith, the amount (although larger than has been allowed in previous cases) was awarded to be paid to the undertaker, and the balance to the guardians.– London Provident Institution Savings Bank, re G., ex parte B., and ex parte Guardians of the City of London Union; 3rd December.

GUARDIANS.

24. On the death of a depositor, the Postmaster-General satisfied himself that she had left no relatives, and ordered payment of certain claims out of the deposits, but referred that of the Guardians of the Poor for 5*l.* for maintenance of the deceased, to the Registrar. Upon proof by statutory declaration, award for payment of the 5*l.*, with 2*s.* 6*d.* fee, out of the deposits, to the collector of the Guardians. The deposits were not thereby exhausted.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Jennings, ex parte Booth; 4th January.

25. Depositor had been an inmate of the infirmary from February 1890 to November 1891, when she died. Mrs. Davis, her sister, paid the funeral expenses, 4*l.* 10*s.*, which were refunded to her out of the deposits. The relieving officer claimed the balance, but at the hearing agreed that 1*l.* of it should be allowed to Mrs. Davis for her personal expenses. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Chapman, ex parte Relieving Officer of St. George's Union; 20th May.

26. Depositor had been an inmate of the infirmary from February 1890 to March 1891, when she died. The relieving officer claimed the deposits (8*l.* 13*s.*) towards the cost of her maintenance, but agreed at the hearing that 1*l.* should be allowed to A. C., and E. C., nieces of the deceased, for their expenses. Award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Middleton, ex parte Relieving Officer of St. George's Union; 20th May.

27. Edward Exelby, of Askham Bryan, in the County of York, died on 5th December 1891, leaving William Exelby, Elizabeth Buckle, Mary Jackson, and Martha Pearson, his lawful children and next-of-kin. Though he had deposits amounting to 25*l.* 11*s.*, he had been receiving relief from the Tadcaster Union since 25 July 1887, and the next-of-kin consented to the payment of 10*l.* 11*s.*, towards the satisfaction of the claim of the Guardians. Award accordingly for payment of 10*l.* 11*s.* to the Guardians, and the balance equally among the next-of-kin.—York Savings Bank, re Exelby, ex parte Guardians of Tadcaster Union; 27th June.

HUSBAND.

28. Elizabeth Wade, wife of William Wade, left her husband in April 1881 in company with Abram Anderson, with whom she cohabited until her death, passing as Mrs. Anderson, and making deposits in the Post Office under the name of Elizabeth Anderson. At the time of her death, her daughter, Rose Emily Wade, was in Anderson's house in attendance upon her. Anderson registered the death in the name of Elizabeth Ann Anderson, and paid the funeral expenses in the name of Elizabeth Wade Anderson. He also claimed the deposits as widower of deceased, but upon being asked for his marriage certificate, admitted that he was not so. It was alleged, but not proved, that he had been repaid the funeral expenses by an Industrial Assurance Company. He then made application to the Registrar upon the ground that the money was his, entrusted by him to the deceased for the purpose purpose of being deposited; but he did not appear or offer any evidence at the time fixed for hearing the case. William and Rose Wade attended and gave evidence in support of the husband's claim. Award for payment to husband. Post Office Savings Bank re Anderson; 6th May.

Husband.

JOINT ACCOUNT.

29. Deposit of 102*l.* in the joint names of William and Mary Ann Tuer, husband and wife. Wife deserted her husband and left him with five children, and her present address is not known. Upon evidence of the facts by statutory declaration of relatives of wife, award for payment to the husband of one half of the deposits.—Manchester Savings Bank, re Tuer; 27th April.

30. Charles Henry Wilkinson, on 11th July 1884, deposited 30*l.*, and on 1st September 1885 added 5*l.*, in the joint names of himself and Susan Cox, his mother. She has not been heard of since April 1888, and repeated advertisements, including notice of hearing of the dispute, had failed to trace her. Upon Wilkinson's evidence that the money was his own savings, supported by testimony as to character from his employers, award for payment to him alone.—Post Office Savings Bank, ex parte Wilkinson. Hearing, 29th November. Award, 2nd December.

LAPSED LEGACY.

31. By the will of James Burden, it was directed that out of the share of Eliza, his daughter, should be deducted two sums of 20*l.* each, to be paid to her illegitimate sons on their respectively attaining 21 years of age. The executors, Frederick Burden and James Gardner, deposited 20*l.* in the Post Office Savings Bank in their own names, as trustees for Henry Burden. He died before attaining 21 years of age. The Controller of Legacy and Succession Duties was of opinion that the legacy thus lapsed increased the share of the mother, and authorised a return of legacy duty accordingly. Gardner desired to withdraw the deposit in order to pay it to her, but Burden, the other trustee, declined to join in the receipt, being of opinion that the legacy had lapsed into the residue of the estate. Held that Gardner was right, and award for payment to him.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Burden, ex parte Gardner; 23rd December.

LUNACY.

32. Elizabeth Royle, the depositor, was an inmate of the lunatic asylum at Macclesfield at the charge of the Guardians of the Altrincham Poor Law Union. Upon removing her to the asylum, the relieving officer paid 1*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.* for rent due from her, and 2*l.* for removing her furniture to the Knutsford workhouse, where it is stored by the Guardians. After notice to her brother and nearest relative, also an inmate of the workhouse, who offered no opposition, award for payment to the Clerk to the Guardians on their behalf.—Manchester Savings Bank, re Royle, ex parte Guardians of Altrincham Union; 30th March.

NOMINATION.

33. Hannah Skelton, a depositor, on the 19th January 1886, nominated Anne Eliza Cooper to receive her deposits in the event of her death. She married Philip Lenny on the 22nd December 1889, and on 7th August 1891 executed a will specifically bequeathing the deposits to him. No revocation of the nomination was ever made, and notice of the will was not given to the bank in the lifetime of the depositor. Held, that the nomination was still in force.—Hull Savings Bank, re Lenny, ex parte Cooper. Hearing, 15th December 1891; award, 16th January 1892.

[In a case Fielding and Lord v. the Equitable Pioneers Society, 7th January 1892, before his honour Judge Edwin Jones, who has kindly supplied the Registrar with a report of the proceedings, the judge decided that a nomination prevailed over a subsequent will, and that a will could not operate as a revocation of a nomination unless it was left in the custody of the society.]

Nomination.

34. Mary Harris, aged 82, on 17th May 1892 executed a nomination in favour of John William Holdsworth, one of her grandsons, in the presence of an officer of the Savings Bank. She died three weeks after, leaving 54*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.* to her credit in the account. John Harris, one of her sons, objected to payment to the nominee, upon the ground of some alleged irregularity in the payment of a withdrawal of 10*l.* on the 11th June, and also on the ground of certain dealings of the deceased with the estate of her husband and with a previous deposit account in the same bank, which had been closed in 1876. Voluminous evidence by way of statutory declaration was furnished by both parties, with the result that the nomination was shown to have been perfectly regular, and that the evidence in respect of the alleged claims against the deceased was not sufficient to displace it. Award for payment to nominee.—Carlisle Savings Bank, re Harris; 3rd December.

PRESUMPTION OF DEATH.

35. On 1st May 1869 Mrs. Bridget O'Riley opened an account in trust for Denis O'Riley, her grandson. She died 1876, Denis O'Riley went to sea, and has not been heard of since 1874. His mother, Winifred O'Reilly, claimed the deposits upon presumption of his death. Notice having been given to the son of the original depositor, award for payment to Winifred O'Reilly.—Post Office Savings Bank, re O'Riley, ex parte O'Reilly; 8th January.

36. On the death of a depositor, it was agreed by three out of four of his surviving brothers and sisters that his deposits should be paid to William John Bowler, one of them. Three-fourths were accordingly paid, the balance remaining in the bank to await any claim by the remaining sister, Annie Elvin, widow. She has not now been heard of for 13 years, and is believed to be dead. Award for payment of balance to William John Bowler.—London Provident Institution Savings Bank v. Bowler; 15th February.

37. Upon an affidavit in Scotch form by Agnes Fletcher, 25 years of age, domestic servant, residing at Moray Bank, Lenzie, near Glasgow, that her mother died about 10 years ago and her father, Alexander Cherry Fletcher, engineer, 42, Roach-street, Liverpool, had deposited in the Liverpool Savings Bank certain sums now amounting to 31*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.*, according to pass-book No. 74,798, now in deponent's possession; that he went amissing on or about 20th October 1884 and had not since been heard of; that she made every effort by advertising in the newspapers and communicating with the police to discover his whereabouts without success; and that the money was urgently required for the support of her brother and two sisters who have not yet attained majority. Held, that the father might be presumed to be dead. It appearing that the rules of the Savings Bank gave discretion to pay to the claimant as one of the persons beneficially entitled to receive the deposits of a deceased person the whole of the deposits. Award, that the deposits be paid to Agnes Fletcher, upon her undertaking, to the satisfaction of the trustees of the Savings Bank, to apply three-fourths thereof towards the support of her brothers and sisters.—Liverpool Savings Bank, re Fletcher; 18th October.

38. Edward Lyness, seaman, left England in April 1852. He was last heard of in New York on 2nd July 1853. He left his deposit book with his sister and only next-of-kin, Jane Hayes. She advertised for him, but without result. Held, that he may be presumed to be dead, and award for payment to sister. The deposits were 14*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*—London Provident Institution Savings Bank, re Lyness, ex parte Hayes. Hearing, 2nd December; award, 23rd December.

REAL OWNER.

39. John Thomas Chatterton, father of R. J. Chatterton, the depositor, retained the deposit book, and claimed the deposits (4*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.*) as his own. He did not attend the hearing on 22nd April or furnish any evidence in support of his claims within a limited time thereafter. Award for payment to depositor.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Chatterton; 7th May.

40. Martha

40. Martha Whilding Woolley, wife of James Woolley, of Much Wenlock, was daughter of Martha Groves, of Bushmore, near Church Stretton, and had been in the habit, while in service before her marriage, of sending her mother money, which the mother alleged was for the purpose of assisting to stock the farm, and the daughter alleged was for investment in a bank. The mother did in fact invest 30*l.* in her daughter's then name in Messrs. Eyton and Company's bank at Church Stretton. The bank never saw the daughter and understood her to be quite a child (she being, in fact, 28 years of age) and allowed the mother to withdraw the 30*l.* with 9*s.* 10*d.* interest on 9th January 1890. In March, as alleged by the daughter, she asked her mother to withdraw 5*l.* as she was then ill. The mother paid her the 5*l.* and on 20th March deposited in her own name 25*l.* 10*s.* in the Post Office Savings Bank. Held that, the money having been deposited in the daughter's name in the private bank, and withdrawn therefrom without her consent, she was entitled to follow it in the Post Office Savings Bank, and award accordingly.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Groves; ex parte Woolley.—Hearing, 1st April; award, 25th June.

41. Ann Elenor Scott Morgan, who was engaged to be married to Frederick Bruce, had previous to 1891 a deposit of 33*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* in the Post Office Savings Bank. On 26th May she paid in 25*l.*, and on 20th June 5*l.* On 3rd May 1892 she withdrew 20*l.* and on 23rd May 30*l.* She died on 3rd June, leaving a balance in the bank of 15*l.* –s. 7*d.* Bruce stated that the two sums of 25*l.* and 5*l.* was given by him to the depositor to deposit for him until they should be married; that he wrote to her on the 18th May requesting her to withdraw it for him, and that the 30*l.* withdrawn on 23rd May ought to have been paid to him, and he claimed that the balance should be paid to him as a creditor of her estate. Emma Wilson, sister of the deceased, who was in attendance upon her during her illness, admitted having received the 30*l.* and applied 10*l.* of it towards paying the doctor and other expenses, reserving the 20*l.* for herself as remuneration for her trouble, asserting that she did so by her sister's authority. At the hearing on 1st November it appeared that the local postmaster had attended at the woman's bedside and paid her the money, and as it seemed desirable to ascertain whether he had any particular reason for doing so, the case was adjourned to 14th November for his attendance. He then explained that the only reason was the necessity that the money should be paid to the depositor herself, and that he sent it to her as stated out of courtesy as knowing the parties. Bruce then brought evidence of two landladies of the deceased, both of whom had been told by her of the fact of Bruce having given her the 30*l.* Award for payment of the balance of the amount to Bruce. Mr. Souter appeared for the claimant; on the 1st November the father of the deceased opposed the claim in person: on the 14th November he was represented by Mr. Humphreys (Borden and Co.) who applied for a further adjournment, to bring evidence that Bruce owed money to the deceased, but it was held that no such claim could prevail against the trust in his favour, of which clear evidence had been given.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Morgan; ex parte Bruce; 14th November.

Trade Unions.

42. By rules of a Trade Union, registered in 1885, it was provided that "the Executive Council shall be elected triennially by a delegate chosen from each branch of the society that has 10 members and upwards." "The general secretary shall be elected by a majority of votes of the whole society, and shall continue in office so long as he gives satisfaction to a majority of two-thirds of the members." There shall be a treasurer and four trustees, elected by the Executive at their first meeting after their election by the delegates." "That the triennial delegate meeting be moveable, the next place of meeting to be decided by the delegates assembled." At the triennial delegate meeting held in 1888, there was a notice of motion on the agenda for alteration of rules, and the following proceedings took place: "Resolved, that the next delegate meeting be held at Liverpool on Whit Monday 1890. That the Executive be empowered to frame a new code of rules, and send the same to all branches at least three months before the delegate meeting; the new rules to be finally settled by the delegates at the delegate meeting." At this time, the registered office of the Trade Union was at Birmingham, its secretary was Mr. Joseph Lees, and its trustees were Messrs. C. Langston, J. Whitfield, E. Sanders, and G. Ludlow, in whose names the deposits in question still stand. The resolution fixing the meeting for 1890 was moved by the delegate from Newcastle, and seconded by Mr. W. H. Johnson, the delegate from Birmingham. On Whit Monday 1890, the delegate meeting was held, and a new code of rules adopted, in which, among other things, the central office was removed to Newcastle, and certain members in that city were appointed an Executive Council or E. C. The Birmingham E. C. thereupon objected that the proceedings were invalid, on the ground that the rules did not allow of a delegate meeting being held before 1891, the end of the triennial period beginning 1888; though the meeting had indeed been called by themselves as an ordinary triennial meeting. The new rules, in consequence, were not registered. The Birmingham E. C., claiming to be still the E. C. of the Union, wrote to the branches on 3rd December 1890, claiming payment of levies, in order to found proceedings for suspension against those who adhered to the Newcastle E. C. It was stated that the total number of members was about 1,250, of whom about 1,000 sided with Newcastle, and 250 with Birmingham. By the rules, "any branch refusing to comply within 21 days after being called upon, shall be suspended from this society until such money has been paid." Without waiting the 21 days, the Birmingham E. C. on 13th December suspended all the branches which sided with the other party. Early in 1891, Mr. Lees resigned the office of secretary, and Mr. W. H. Johnson was elected in his place by the votes of 190 out of the 240 members recognised by the Birmingham E. C. That E. C. called a meeting on Whit Monday 1891, at Birmingham, although that place had not been fixed upon by the previous delegate meeting, as required by the rules. That meeting was attended only by the adherents to Birmingham. Mr. Johnson, in his evidence, stated that he gave notice of it to all branches, including those suspended, but his statement was contradicted by Mr. Sewell, who gave evidence on behalf of the Newcastle branch, and it was not supported by a letter which he produced as one of those giving the notice. Without imputing perjury to Mr. Johnson, the Registrar was satisfied that no such notice was given as would lead the branches of the Newcastle party to suppose that a regular meeting of the Union was to be held, by the proceedings of which they would be bound, and which they would be permitted to attend. Evidence to the foregoing effect having been given, the case was adjourned, and the parties were requested to furnish any further documentary evidence that would tend to clear up the questions at issue. Some such evidence having been furnished by both parties, the Registrar wrote to them as follows: "I have arrived at the conclusion, on the evidence before me, that neither the proceedings at the meeting of Whit Monday 1890 nor those at the meeting of Whit Monday 1891 were valid, and that no valid suspension of the branches represented by Mr. Dendy (the solicitor who appeared for the Newcastle E. C. and the lodges in association with it) has taken place. I am not therefore prepared at present to make an award in favour of either party. If my opinion is correct, it would follow that the election of Mr. Johnson, as secretary, was also invalid, the branches in question not having been consulted on the matter. I, therefore, suggest that a vote of the whole society be taken, pursuant to the rules, on the question 'who is to be secretary?' And that the whole society be invited at the same time to come to a determination on the other matters in dispute." After some correspondence between the parties, the Birmingham E. C. declined to agree to the suggestion, and an award was made for payment to two of each party as trustees for the Union. The effect of this would be that they would have to agree upon the reunion of the whole body or upon a fair distribution of the funds before receiving the deposits.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Amalgamated Society of Mill Sawyers and Wood Cutting Machinists. Hearing, 13th November 1891; award, 19th February 1892.

[Both parties have since agreed to the registry of the new rules adopted at Liverpool.]

43. Account

43. Account opened by a branch of a Trade Union in the names of its separate trustees. The branch seceded. By Rule 24 of the Trade Union, "the funds of the Union shall not be centralised, but shall be controlled by the branches through their properly appointed officers, subject to such charges as from time to time shall be made for special causes by resolution." No such charge had been made. Held, that the funds of the branch belonged to its trustees. The members representing the branch at the hearing of the case offered to allow 10*l.* of the deposits (which amounted to 37*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.*) to the central body, but Mr. Stevenson, the General Secretary of the Union, refused that offer, and demanded 24*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* Award, that the deposits be paid to Thomas Magrath, John Quigley, and Martin Roach, as trustees for the Branch.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Warrington Branch, No. 11, of the United Builders' Labourers' Union; 3rd June.

TRUST.

44. On 30th January 1885 there was standing to the credit of an account headed "Edward Litchfield, minor, 5, Royal East-street; Thomas Litchfield, trustee," the sum of 12*l.* 6*s* 11*d.* Thomas had died on 9th December 1884, when Edward was about six years of age. The savings bank, considering that Edward "was accordingly incapable, either of giving or joining in any receipt or until he attained 14 years of age, as survivor, of appointing any attorney to act on his behalf; and that Thomas, if he had placed the money in the savings bank with the intention of benefiting Edward, had placed himself in the position of parent to him; treated Charles Tidd, as executor of Thomas Litchfield's will, as the only person who, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, was competent to give a receipt for the money;" and they paid him the deposit. Charles Tidd had not paid or applied the money to or for the benefit of Edward Litchfield. Held that the savings bank was wrong; that under the statute the money absolutely vested in Edward as survivor on the death of Thomas, and that the receipt of Charles Tidd was no discharge. Award that the deposits, with interest, be paid to Edward Litchfield.—Leicester Savings Bank, re Litchfield; 9th July.

WITHDRAWAL.

45. Account opened, 26th March 1870, by Mrs. Emma Walker, then a widow. On 23rd August 1873, the date of the last deposit, it amounted to 80*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* In 1876, the depositor married Benjamin Symons, but no notice of the marriage was given to the Post Office, and no transactions took place until her death on 4th June 1890, when the amount stood at 121*l.* 17*s.* On the day of her death, Emma Walker, spinster, her daughter by her first husband, gave the deposit book to a Mrs. Priscilla Maddox to take charge of, and after a few weeks reclaimed it. On 24th July 1890 she withdrew 10*l.* under the signature of Emma Walker, and on 18th August gave notice for the withdrawal of 5*l.* more. Before the payment of that sum, she was required to sign a fresh declaration, which she did as "Emma Walker, married," and to satisfy the local postmaster that she was the person in whose name the account was opened, which she did. Other withdrawals followed, the last being on 27th July 1891, amounting in the whole to 73*l.* 7*s.* By this time, Emma Walker had quarrelled with Mary Ann Simpson, with whom she was lodging, and who informed Symons, the widower, of the existence of the deposit account, which he then heard of for the first time. He promptly took out administration to his wife's estate, and claimed the undrawn balance, amounting to 51*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, which was paid to him. He then applied to the Registrar for an award directing the Postmaster General to pay to him the 73*l.* 7*s.* wrongfully withdrawn by his stepdaughter. Dr. Sydenham Jones appeared for him, instructed by Mr. Phillips, and Mr. Arnold appeared for the Post Office. Upon the evidence of the applicant's witnesses, it appeared that the money in question was money left to the depositor by her own family connections, and Mrs. Maddox deposed, on cross-examination, to an interview with the depositor, in which she had stated "that she had put it in her daughter's name, because she wished her daughter to have it." This evidence was objected to by Dr. Jones, but was admitted as tending to show the motives with which Emma Walker, the younger, had acted, and to clear her character. Held, however, that it gave no legal authority to the Post-master General to pay the deposits, and award in favour of claimant.—Post Office Savings Bank, re Walker, ex parte Symons; 27th May.

Withdrawal.

46. On 2nd August 1865, John Read Tomlin, of Stoke Field, in the county of Nottingham, opened an account in trust for John Read le Brockton Tomlin, his son, aged 11 months. In 1878, after the death of the father, Mr. Becher Tidd Pratt, solicitor, one of his executors, left the deposit book at the bank to be made up, with Thomas John Capern, the then actuary, who shortly after went abroad, having stolen a large sum of money belonging to the bank. It did not appear when Mr. Pratt applied for the book, but the trustees of the bank complained that he did not do so within a reasonable time. When he did apply, it was not to be found; but an entry of payment, dated 21st October 1878, of 20*l.* 18*s.* 3*d.*, closing the account, appeared in the bank ledger. No receipt for the deposit could be found. Upon a statutory declaration by J. R. le B. Tomlin that he had not received it, and upon the like evidence from Mr. Pratt, as executor of the father, award for payment to J. R. le B. Tomlin.—Newark Savings Bank, re Tomlin; 23rd June.

APPENDIX (B.)

LAW CASES interesting to Members of Friendly and other Societies reported since the publication of the CHIEF REGISTRAR'S last REPORT.

(Extracted from the Law Reports.)

Law Cases. Dissolution by Award. (1892.) Feb. 29. Mar. 3. Wilmot v. Grace.

Friendly Society—Dissolution—Award of Chief Registrar—Appeal—Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 60), s. 25, ss. 8 (d), (e), (L. R., Vol. I., Q. B. ; 1892, p. 812).

Where a friendly society has been dissolved by the award of the Chief Registrar under Section 25 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, a member having a claim on the funds of the society is not entitled, under Sub-section (8) (e) of that Section, to take proceedings to set aside the dissolution merely on the ground that he is dissatisfied with the provision made for satisfying his claim.

Appeal from a decision of the deputy judge of the county court of Derbyshire, holden at Alfreton.

The plaintiff was a member of the Ripley Baptist Benefit Society, registered under the Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 60). On 26th September 1891, upon the application by certain members of the society, other than the plaintiff, the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies, acting under Section 25, made an award dissolving the society. The proper notice of this award was duly given. On 24th November 1891, the plaintiff commenced an action in the Alfreton county court against the defendant, as treasurer of and representing the society. The plaintiff's claim was as follows : " The plaintiff claims, under the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, Section 25, that he, being a member of the Ripley Baptist Benefit Society, register 279, is entitled to a weekly allowance of 3*s.*, under rule 14 of the said society, and a sum of 8*l.* as burial money on death, under rule 11. The society having been provisionally dissolved by the award of the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies in 1891, and the sum of 2*l.* 16*s.* 2*d.*, and 7¼*d.* in the £. on moneys available for division over £100, having been awarded to the plaintiff as his appropriation of the funds of the said society, the plaintiff is dissatisfied with the amount of the said award, and claims against the society the sum of 21*l.* as his appropriation of the funds of the said society ; and the plaintiff claims the sum of 21*l.*, or, in the alternative, that the order of dissolution be set aside."

The deputy county court judge held that he had no power to set aside or in any way vary the award of the Chief Registrar, and that until the award was set aside he had no jurisdiction to entertain the action.

The plaintiff appealed.

STANGER, for the Plaintiff.—The learned deputy county court judge was wrong in holding that he had no power to set aside or vary the award of the Chief Registrar. The plaintiff was entitled to appeal against the Registrar's award of dissolution under Section 25, Sub-section 8 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (1). Clause (d) of that Sub-section is controlled by (1.) By Section 25, Sub-section 1, a society may terminate or be dissolved in any of the following ways : (d) by the award of the Chief Registrar.

Sub-section 8. " With respect to dissolution and the distribution of funds upon the award of the Chief Registrar.

" (d) Every award under this or the last preceding Section, whether for dissolution or distribution of funds, is final and conclusive on the society in respect of which the same is made, and on all members of the same, and other persons having any claim on the funds of the society without appeal, and shall be enforced in the same manner as a decision on a dispute under this Act.

by Clause (e), which clearly contemplates that a member may take proceedings to set aside an award of dissolution. Section 38 enables the Treasury from time to time to make regulations respecting registry and procedure under the Act, and generally for carrying the Act into effect, and by the regulations and forms made by the Treasury in 1888 (regulation 58, forms AY. and AZ.) it is clear that the county court is the forum in which proceedings to set aside an award of dissolution are to be taken.

HEXTALL, for the Defendant.—The county court judge held that the "proceedings" which, by Section 25, Sub-section 8 (e), of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, may be taken to set aside an award of dissolution made by the Chief Registrar must be proceedings in the High Court. It is submitted that that construction of the Act is the right one, and the judge, therefore, was right in holding that he had no jurisdiction. Section 38 does not empower the Treasury to make regulations as to the court in which the proceedings are to be taken. The procedure referred to by that Section means procedure in the office of the Registrar. The regulation and forms relied on for the Plaintiff were, therefore, ultra vires. The award of the Chief Registrar was final and conclusive under Section 25, Sub-section 8 (d), and no appeal lies from it.

STANGER, replied.

Cur. adv. vult.

Cave, J.

1892, March 3. CAVE, J.—This is an appeal from a decision of the deputy judge of the County Court of Derbyshire, refusing to entertain an action claiming relief under Section 25 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875. The plaintiff's claim was as follows :

[The learned judge read it.]

The deputy judge held that he had no jurisdiction to vary or set aside the award of the Chief Registrar for the dissolution of the society. It does not appear that the attention of the judge was called to the Treasury regulations which have been brought to our notice, and his decision did not in any way turn upon them. Now, I am not prepared to decide whether a county court judge has jurisdiction under any circumstances to set aside the award of a Chief Registrar dissolving a friendly society ; the question is one upon which I should feel considerable difficulty. But it is not necessary to decide it here, because there is another objection to the plaintiff's claim, which is, in my opinion, fatal. By Section 25 friendly societies may be dissolved either by the agreement of the members or by the award of the Chief Registrar. With regard to a dissolution by agreement of the members, any member (Sub-section 7 (d)) who is dissatisfied with the provision made for satisfying his claim may apply to the county court, which clearly, therefore, has jurisdiction to deal with that case. But where the dissolution is effected by the award of the Chief Registrar, Sub-section 8 (d) provides that every award under that sub-section, whether for dissolution or distribution of funds, shall be final and conclusive on the society in respect of which the same is made, and on all members and other persons having any claim upon the funds of the society without appeal ; so that, so far as that clause deals with the question, there is no appeal from the award of the Chief Registrar. But then comes the next Clause (e) which provides that notice of the award for dissolution shall be advertised in the "Gazette" and in a local newspaper, and that, unless within three months from the date of the "Gazette" in which such advertisement appear, a members or other person interested having any claim on the funds of the society takes proceedings to set aside the dissolution consequent upon such award, and such dissolution is set aside accordingly, the society shall be legally dissolved from the date of such advertisement. Now, Clauses (d) and (e) of Sub-section 8 must be read together,

"(e) Notice of every award for dissolution shall, within 21 days after the same shall have been made, be advertised by the central office in the 'Gazette,' and in some newspaper circulating in the county in which the registered office of the society is situated, and unless, within three months from the date of the 'Gazette' in which such advertisement appears, a member or other person interested in or having any claim on the funds of the society commences proceedings to set aside the dissolution of the society, consequent upon such award, and such dissolution is set aside accordingly, the society shall be legally dissolved from the date of such advertisement."

The Friendly Societies Act 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 56) s. 9, amends Section 25, Sub-section 8 (d) of the Act of 1875 by providing that the words "or the last preceding" shall be omitted.

together, and their effect when so read is, in my opinion, this: under Clause (d) there is no appeal from the award of the Chief Registrar upon the merits; the award in that respect is to be final and conclusive; but under Clause (e) application may be made to set aside the award, not upon the ground that it is unjust as between the parties, but upon other grounds, such as that the Chief Registrar has exceeded his authority, or that he has not heard all the parties interested. I desire, however, to refrain from deciding to what court that application ought to be made. In the present case the plaintiff alleges that he has only been awarded 2*l.* 16*s.* 2*d*, whereas he ought to have been awarded 21*l.* The appeal, therefore, is an appeal on the merits, being the very class of case to which Clause (d) refers, and in respect of which it provides that the award shall be final and conclusive. Upon this ground I am of opinion that the plaintiff is not entitled to appeal from the award of the Chief Registrar, and, therefore, that the deputy county court judge was right in dismissing his claim.

WRIGHT, J.—I am of the same opinion. I think that the deputy county court judge was right in holding that he had no jurisdiction to entertain the plaintiff's claim. I am of opinion that the case falls within Section 25, Sub-section 8 (d) of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, and, therefore, that the award of the Chief Registrar was final and conclusive, and could not be appealed from. Speaking for myself, I do not think the Treasury had any power to make the regulations and forms, which have been brought to our notice, providing for an appeal to the county court from the award of the Chief Registrar dissolving a friendly society.

Friendly Society—Jurisdiction—Dispute between Members and Society—Dispute as to whether a Person is entitled to be a Member—Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 60), s. 22.

Dispute.
June 22.
Willis v. Wells.

By Section 22 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, "Every dispute between a member, or person claiming through a member, or under the rules of a registered society, and the society or an officer thereof, shall be decided in manner directed by the rules of the society."

The plaintiff was expelled from a friendly society, the rules of which directed that disputes between a member and the officers should be decided by justices. He applied for an injunction to restrain the society, its members and officers, from excluding him:—

Held, that the Act and rules applied only to disputes arising between members and the society, and did not include a dispute as to whether a person who had been expelled from the society was entitled to be reinstated and therefore the court had jurisdiction to grant an injunction.

Prentice v. London (Law Rep. 10 C. P., 679) followed. Application by the plaintiff for an injunction to restrain the New Union Society, its members, and officers, from excluding him from the meetings and benefits of the society, and from refusing to accept his subscriptions, until the trial of the action, or until further order.

The plaintiff, a shoemaker, had for many years been a member of the New Union Society, which was registered under the Friendly Societies Acts. In November, 1889, the plaintiff became ill and unable to work. In order to obtain assistance from the society during his illness he was obliged by the rules to obtain, every fortnight, a medical certificate of inability to work. He received assistance, and obtained the necessary certificate every fortnight down to and including 14th February 1891. On 16th February, finding himself better, he returned to work. By Rule 18 of the rules of the society, "If any member, after receiving the benefit for one week or more, shall find himself able to go to work, he shall procure from his medical attendant a certificate, and give the same to the steward, or forfeit threepence, and receive the benefit due to him according to the number of days." This rule had recently been substituted for a previous rule, which only required a written notice to be given by the member himself. The plaintiff on returning to work gave a written notice, but did not obtain the certificate required by Rule 18. He tendered his contributions to the society, and the fine of threepence referred to in Rule 18, which were refused. He was fined 14*l.*, and on his refusal to pay this fine, was expelled from the society. His solicitors applied to the society to reinstate him, but received no answer. An affidavit by the defendant York, used on the hearing of the application, stated that "as defendants refused to consider plaintiff any longer a member of the society, they thought it best not to enter into any correspondence with his solicitors in the matter."

The application for an injunction was made by summons, which Denman J., referred to the court.

J. Scott Fox, for the plaintiff, in support of the application.—This is not a dispute between a member and the society or its officers within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act and the rules of the society. And there is nothing in the Act or rules to exclude the jurisdiction of this court to entertain the plaintiff's application for an injunction. In re Royal Liver Society (2). The plaintiff ceased to be a member owing to the act of the society in expelling him, and he now seeks to be reinstated. Such a dispute as this is not within the Act and rules. Prentice v. London (3). The contention of the defendants that the plaintiff is still a member is inconsistent with their own act in expelling him. The conduct of the society is in violation of their own rules, and the plaintiff is entitled to the relief which he seeks.

C. C. Scott, for the defendants. The question as to the merits is immaterial for the purpose of the defendants' point, which is that this court has no jurisdiction. This dispute is within the Act and rules. Municipal Building Society v. Kent (4). The plaintiff's claim is that he never ceased to be a member, and his complaint is as to the way in which he was treated as a member. Prentice v. London (5) does not bear out the plaintiff's contention, and the language in the other reports of that case (4) is less favourable to the plaintiff than the language in the report which has been cited.

Scott Fox was not heard in reply.

Grantham, J., I can entertain no doubt as to what our decision ought to be. The merits of the case have not been fully gone into in argument, so it is unnecessary to decide as to the merits; but, at the same time, I am at a loss to understand how this society can justify their action in fining the plaintiff. The question which we have to decide is, whether the present proceedings can be justified under the Act and rules. I am of opinion that the decision in Prentice v. London (2) is directly in point as to this question. No doubt the policy of the Friendly Societies Acts is to limit, as far as possible, the expenses of litigation in cases connected with friendly societies; but we have no right to limit the right to apply to this court, unless such right is in terms taken away by statute. The Statute does take away in terms the right to apply to this court in certain cases. For instance, it is common ground that in cases of disputes between members and the society or its officers the cheaper tribunal is to be resorted to. But the question to be decided in the present case is whether the plaintiff is a member of the society or not. I cannot see how the defendants can contend that he is a member, for the plaintiff says that he offered to pay his weekly contributions and the fine of threepence referred to in Rule 18; but the defendants treat him as a person outside the society, and he is told that he is no longer a member

(1.) By the Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 60), s. 22: "Every dispute between a member or person claiming through a member, or under the rules of a registered society, and the society or an officer thereof, shall be decided in manner directed by the rules of the society, and the decision so made shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal, and shall not be removeable into any court of law or restrainable by injunction."

By Rule 27 of the rules of the New Union Society. "All disputes which may arise between any member or person claiming under or on account of any member and the trustees, treasurer, or other officer of the committee thereof, shall be referred to and decided by justices of the peace.

a member of the society. The affidavit of the defendant York distinctly states that the defendants refused to consider the plaintiff any longer a member of the society. That being so, the present case cannot be treated as a dispute between the plaintiff, as a member of the society, and the society. In Prentice v. London Lindley, J., said, "If the matter in controversy, is whether the party is a member or not, that clearly is not a matter of internal arrangement." Lord Coleridge, C.J., said substantially the same, and Brett, J., distinctly said, "A dispute as to whether a party is a member or not, clearly is not a dispute between the society and the plaintiff as a member." The judgment of Grove, J., is also to the same effect. I cannot say that, because in some of the other reports of that decision the language may be less strong in the direction which I have indicated, the case is not an authority in favour of the contention put forward on behalf of the plaintiff here.

Insurance on death of child.

This case raised a question whether a company not registered as a Friendly Society, but under the Joint Stock Companies Act, to carry on the business of a Friendly Society, including the relief of members in sickness or the payment of funeral expenses, is under the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, and liable to penalties for payments to parents for funeral expenses of deceased children without the certificate of the registrar of deaths, required under the Act, which states the cause of death. The magistrates at Rochdale had convicted the society in this case of an offence against the Act by paying a sum of 4*l.*, on the death of a child under 10, to Alice Kay, the parent, without the production of a certificate issued by the registrar of deaths containing the particulars required by the Act, under Section 28. The society being dissatisfied, the justices stated a case, in which it appeared that the society had been registered under the Act (38 & 39 Vict., c. 60), but that in 1885 the Registrar had cancelled the registry, and that the society had since carried on their business as an unregistered society, and were afterwards registered under the Companies Acts as a company, the articles stating that it was established to provide by subscriptions for the relief of members during sickness or other infirmity, and for insuring money to be paid for the funeral expenses of members, and for all purposes incident to these objects, but not to issue policies of insurance on human life within the meaning of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870. And Article 71 provides for the event of the death of any member, but not of any child of a member. Section 28 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, provides with respect to payments on the deaths of children under 10 years of age: "No society shall insure or pay on the death of a child under 10 any sum which, added to any amount payable on the death of such child by any other society, exceeds 10*l.*, and no society shall pay any sum on the death of any such child to the parent except on the production of a certificate of death by the registrar of deaths containing the particulars required." The society collected subscriptions from its members by collectors and collecting cards, and the one in this case stated that "Alice Kay, of Rochdale," was a member of the society and had paid contributions, and in respect thereof had been entitled to the sum of 5*l.* in the event of the death of her son, John Kay, for funeral expenses, and that he died on 20th April 1892, aged six, and that on 21st April the sum of 5*l.*, being the amount of the funeral expenses incurred by Alice Kay, was paid to her by a collector without the production of a certificate of death, but in other respects according to Article 71 (which, however, applies "in the event of the death of any member"). The magistrates were of opinion that the company had insured the payment of money upon the death of the child, and that they granted assurances on any life for less than 20*l*., and that they had assured the payment of money on the death of a child under the age of 10, and had committed an offence against the Act. The question for the Court was whether the society is within Section 28 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, and subject to Sub-section 2 of that Section.

Mr. ARNOLD HERBERT appeared for the society and argued the case for them. They were not, he said, within the Act, for they did not issue policies on human life within the Life Assurance Companies Act of 1870. There is no written document, no policy of assurance in writing. [Mr. Justice CAVE said by the rules, the payment of certain contributions, shown by the card, would entitle the member to certain benefits.] No doubt; but there is no policy of assurance, and the society's articles provide against such assurances. [Mr. Justice CAVE.—But if the society issue them?] Then they would be liable, no doubt, but they do not.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL (with Mr. H. SUTTON), appeared for the Registrar in support of the conviction, and referred to the Stamp Act of 1891, as showing that writing which was evidence of an assurance was to be deemed a "policy of assurance" (Stamp Act, 1891, Section 91). If the contention of the society were right they would be able to carry on the business of assurance on the lives of children without the safeguards which the Legislature had provided on such assurances. What are these transactions but assurances on the lives of children? Alice Kay assured the payment of 5*l*. on the death of her child, and received it, and might or might not apply it to funeral expenses.

Mr. ARNOLD HERBERT replied on the part of the society, and urged that they had not insured the child's life. [Mr. Justice CAVE.—The society undertook to pay the money on its death and did so.] No doubt they did. [Mr. Justice CAVE.—And the rules, with the card showing the payments, in substance constitute a policy of insurance.] Surely not? [Mr. Justice CAVE.—Certainly. The rules, the articles, and the card create a right to receive the money on the death.]

The COURT took time to consider their judgment.

Insurance (Life)—Policy—Insurable Interest; 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, ss. 1, 3.

Insurable Interest.

In an action to recover the amount of a policy of insurance upon the life of a child, the plaintiff's step-sister, evidence was given of a promise made by the plaintiff to the mother of the child to take care of the child and help to maintain it. No objection was taken on behalf of the defendants that the plaintiff had not in fact incurred any expenditure in respect of the child.

Held, that the plaintiff had an insurable interest in the child's life, and was entitled, in the absence of any objection as to the amount in fact expended by her, to recover the amount of the policy.

Appeal from a decision of a judge of the Leeds County Court. The action was brought to recover 21 l. 10 s., the amount of a policy of insurance effected by the plaintiff upon the life of her step-sister. The insurance was effected in November 1889, when the child was 10 years old; the child died in May 1891. At the trial before the learned county court judge, the plaintiff stated in her evidence that she had promised the child's mother before she died that she would take care of the child, and help to maintain her, and no evidence was called to contradict this statement. It was also stated that after her mother's death the child lived near, but not with, the plaintiff. No objection was taken that the plaintiff had not in fact spent any money upon the child, or as to the amount (if any) expended by her; and the learned judge held that the plaintiff had an insurable interest in the child's life, and was entitled to recover the amount of the policy. Other points, including misrepresentation on the part of the plaintiff as to the state of the child's health and misrepresentation by the defendant's agent, were taken and decided in favour of the plaintiff; but it is unnecessary in this report to state the facts upon these points, as the question of insurable interest was the sole question of law raised upon the appeal.

F. Dodd, for the defendants.—The plaintiff had no pecuniary interest in the child's life at the time of the insurance, for there was no binding agreement on her part to take care of the child, but at most a voluntary promise to that effect. The interest of the plaintiff in the child's life must be a pecuniary interest; Halford v. Kymer (1), Hebden v. West (2); and there is no evidence that the plaintiff ever expended anything upon the child's maintenance. By 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, s. 3, where the insured has interest in the life, he can recover no greater sum than the amount or value of interest of the insured of the life, which means the amount or value of his interest at the time of effecting the insurance, not at the date of the death.

No counsel appeared on behalf of the plaintiff.

Lord Coleridge, C. J.—I am of opinion that this appeal must be dismissed. The facts are simple. The person insured was a little girl of 10, and the plaintiff, who effected the insurance for her own benefit, was her step-sister; the child had no mother, though her father was apparently alive; this is, however, not clear upon the evidence. The evidence of the plaintiff was to the effect that she had promised her mother that she would maintain and keep the child; and there was evidence that she had undertaken that burden. That was a duty not cast upon her by law, but was wholly self-imposed: and in carrying out her undertaking the plaintiff might have had to pay for the education and maintenance of the child, possibly also for its burial. In that state of circumstances it is said that the plaintiff had no insurable interest in the child's life. Now, I agree that the insurable interest must be a pecuniary interest, and that the interest must be in existence at the time when the policy is effected; that is perfectly clear upon the authorities. Is there such a pecuniary insurable interest here? I think there is. The expenses to which the plaintiff undertook to put herself for the maintenance of the child were, as I have said, not expenses which she was bound to incur; and in my judgment, the plaintiff undoubtedly had an insurable interest in the child's life so far as to secure the repayment of the expenses incurred by her. I cannot find that anything has been said in any case to a contrary effect. Taking the ordinary course of business as the guide to determine the law, I should have thought that it was a matter of common knowledge that obligations of this sort were obligations the repayment of which was habitually secured in this way. In my judgment the plaintiff had an insurable interest in the child's life, at least up to the amount of the payments actually made by her on the child's account. No point was taken before the county court as to whether any money had been paid by the plaintiff, or as to amount, if any, paid by her. The question of amount is, therefore, not before us; and on the point of law we must uphold the judgment of the county court judge.

A. L. Smith, J.—I am of the same opinion. No doubt the contention of the defendants is correct, that unless the plaintiff had a pecuniary interest in the child's life at the time the contract of insurance was made, the policy would be void under the provisions of the Statute. I think, however, that the plaintiff had such an interest. A man can insure the life of his debtor. For instance, suppose an agreement by a debtor to pay his creditor 1,000 l. by successive monthly instalments of 100 l., the creditor could insure his debtor's life, and at his death recover in an action on the policy against the insurance company. In the present case there is sufficient evidence of an undertaking on the plaintiff's part in incurring expense in maintaining, bringing up, and perhaps in burying the child. This decision does not trench on the cases in which it has been held that a father has no insurable interest in the life of his son. There is an obligation in law on a father to maintain his son; there is no such obligation here, but an undertaking to incur expense; and I can see no reason why the plaintiff, having incurred and incurring such expense, has not a pecuniary insurable interest to the extent of each sum of money as it was successively expended by her for the child's benefit; of course, so long long as the total amount does not exceed the amount of the policy. We have nothing to do with the question of amount expended, which point was not taken below; the sole point is whether the plaintiff had any pecuniary interest at the date of the policy, and of that there was no evidence. The appeal must be dismissed.

Preference in Bankruptcy.
January 20.

Bankruptcy—Preferential Payment—Debt due to Friendly Society by Bankrupt Treasurer—Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 60), s. 15 (7)—Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 40—Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 62), s. 2 (1).

Section 15 of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, provides that registered friendly societies "shall be entitled to the following privileges," inter alia, "(7.) Upon the bankruptcy of any officer of a society having in his possession, by virtue of his office, any money or property belonging to the society . . . . his trustee in bankruptcy shall, upon demand in writing . . . . pay such money and deliver over such property to the trustees of the society, in preference to any other debts or claims against the estate of such officer."

Held, that under this section the trustees of a friendly society are, upon the bankruptcy of the treasurer of the society, entitled to be paid out of his estate the balance due from him to the society in respect of moneys which he has received for them, even though he has not in his possession those moneys in specie, and they cannot be traced.

The decision of Bacon, C.J., in ex parte Edmonds (30 W. R. 432), approved.

Appeal by the official receiver, as trustee in the bankruptcy of John Miller, against an order of a Divisional Court (Vaughan Williams and Wright, J.J.), discharging a previous order of the County Court at Maidstone, and directing the trustee to pay out of the bankrupt's assets a sum of 100*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.*, which at the commencement of the bankruptcy was due by him to the trustees of a registered friendly society, of which the bankrupt had been the treasurer.

The bankrupt, as treasurer of the society, received the subscriptions payable by the members of the society. On 22nd January 1892 the bankrupt absconded, and on 4th February a receiving order was made against him, on the petition of a creditor, and he was afterwards adjudged a bankrupt. The bankrupt's property consisted of:—Balance at his bankers, 13*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; proceeds of sale of property by trustee, 122*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*; the valuation of a public house to a new tenant, 251*l.* 19*s.*; making a total of 388*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.* realised by the official receiver as trustee in the bankruptcy. The money received by the bankrupt for the friendly society did not at the commencement of the bankruptcy exist in specie, nor could it in any way be traced into any of his assets.

The County Court Judge held, that Section 15, Sub-section 7, of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, did not entitle the trustees of the society to be paid the 100*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* in priority to the other creditors of the bankrupt, and that the trustees must prove in the bankruptcy pari passu with the other creditors.

The Divisional Court, without expressing any opinion of their own upon the construction of Section 15, Sub-section 7, were of opinion that they were bound by the decision of Bacon, V.C., as Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, in ex parte Edmonds (1), to hold that under that sub-section the trustees were entitled to payment in priority. The Court accordingly discharged the order of the County Court, and ordered the official receiver to pay the 100*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* to the trustees of the friendly society.

The official receiver appealed.

Sir

Sir C. RUSSELL, A.G., and MUIR MACKENZIE, for the Appellant. The priority given by Section 15, Sub-section 7 (2) of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, over the other creditors of a bankrupt officer of the society, applies only when the bankrupt has moneys of the society in his possession in specie, or when money of the society which he has received can be traced. Section 167 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1849 contained, in addition to a provision that any moneys or effects belonging to a friendly society, which should be in the possession of a bankrupt officer of the society, should be paid and delivered over to the society, an express provision that "all sums of money remaining due, which the bankrupt received by virtue of his office," should be paid out of his estate in priority to his other debts. Section 23 of the Friendly Societies Act of 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 63) contained a similar express provision. Sections 32, 33, and 34 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, which dealt with preferential debts and claims in bankruptcy, contained no provisions as to friendly societies. The Act of 1849 was repealed by the Act of 1869; but meanwhile the Act of 1855 had been passed, and Section 23 of that Act secured to friendly societies the priority which they had had under Section 167 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1849. Then came the Friendly Societies Act of 1875, by which the Act of 1855 was repealed, and there is a marked change in the language of Section 15, Sub-section 7. Priority is still given to a friendly society as regards money and goods in the possession of the bankrupt officer, but nothing is said about the payment in priority of debts due from him to the society. The omission of the former provision as to the payment of debts shows an intention on the part of the Legislature to limit the priority of friendly societies to the case of moneys or effects in the possession of the officer in specie, or which can be traced. It was necessary that there should be a statutory provision to meet such cases, for until the decision of the Court of Appeal (in 1880) in In re Hallett's Estate (1), the general law on the questions of following trust money and appropriation of payments was not settled. In that case a previous decision of Fry, J., ex parte Dale (2) was disapproved. But even if the literal construction of a statutory enactment would show that such enactment was unnecessary, it does not follow that another and an unnatural construction ought to be given to it in order that it may have some operation. The decision of Bacon, C.J., in ex parte Edmonds (3), by which the Divisional Court considered that they were bound, is not binding on this Court. It in effect construed Section 15, Sub-section 7, in exactly the same way as if it had contained the words which were in Section 23 of the Act of 1855, but have now been omitted. Section 40 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and Sections 1 and 2 of the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888, do not affect the question; they are expressed to be without prejudice to the provisions of the Act of 1875.

HERBERT REED, Q.C., and FRANK MELLOR, for the friendly society, in Crowther v. Elgood (4) Cotton, L.J., at page 695, expressed an opinion that in Section 4, Sub-section 3, of the Debtors' Act, 1869, the words "ordered to pay by a Court of Equity any sum in his possession or under his control," "cannot mean any sum which at the time of making the order was in his possession or under his control, but any sum which had at one time been in his possession or under his control."

The privilege of priority of payment, as against the other creditors of a bankrupt officer, was first given to friendly societies in 1793, by the Act 33 Geo. 3, c. 54, s. 10, and it was continued by 10 Geo. 4, c. 56, s. 20, and 4 & 5 Wm. 4, c. 40, s. 12, and again by Section 167 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1849, and by Section 23 of the Friendly Societies Act of 1855. It cannot be supposed that the Legislature intended in 1875 to take away this privilege which had existed for so long. And, by expressly declaring that the provisions of the Acts of 1883 and 1888 were not to prejudice the provisions of the Act of 1875, the Legislature have adopted the judicial interpretation of Section 15, Sub-section 7, of that Act. The Anna (1): The decision of Bacon, C.J., in ex parte Edmonds (2), has thus received a statutory recognition, and at any rate it has been acted upon by friendly societies for more than ten years as regards the security to be given by their treasurers, and this Court will not now over-rule it. The construction adopted by Bacon, C.J., was right. On the other construction, no "privilege" would be conferred on friendly societies. Trust money or effects which are in specie, or the proceeds of which can be traced, do not vest in the trustees in bankruptcy of the trustee.

Preference in Bankruptcy.
January 20.

MUIR MACKENZIE, in reply.—It cannot be supposed that friendly societies have entered into contracts in contemplation of the bankruptcy of their treasurers. The Court has to construe the words of Section 15, Sub-section 7. The Legislature have repealed one section, and have enacted in place of it another which is expressed very differently.

Lord ESHER, M.R.—In my opinion this appeal must be dismissed.

The bankrupt was the treasurer of a friendly society. At the time of his bankruptcy he had at his bankers a balance of about 13*l.* There were some book debts owing to him, and the money receivable in respect of those book debts was certainly not in his possession ; but the book debts would have to be collected in money. He had also some other property which, if it were realized in the bankruptcy, would produce money. All these things together would put money into the hands of the trustee, as having been the money of the debtor at the time of his bankruptcy, which it would be the duty of the trustee to distribute amongst the creditors. The bankrupt, who had been, as I have said, the treasurer of a friendly society, had received subscriptions in money for the society, but had not paid them over to the trustees of the society, the balance due from him as treasurer being over 100*l.* The trustees of the society claim to be entitled to be paid out of the money of the bankrupt which is in the hands of the trustee, the 100*l.* in priority to the other creditors.

The question whether they are so entitled depends upon the construction of Section 15, Sub-section 7, of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875. The trustees of the society say that that sub-section gives them the priority which I have mentioned. On the other hand it is contended that on the true construction of Section 15, Sub-section 7, the trustees of this society have no such priority, because they cannot show that the bankrupt had "in his possession" at the time of his bankruptcy the money which had been paid to him as treasurer. It is said that the money was not "in his possession" according to the true construction of Sub-section 7. Now, if Sub-section 7 is to be so construed, it must be admitted that the whole course of legislation with regard to the priority given to friendly societies, in case of the bankruptcy of any of their officers, was altered in 1875, after that privilege in favour of those societies had existed by Statute ever since the year 1793. We must consider, as it seems to me, whether the words of Sub-section 7 oblige us to say that there has been such a startling alteration in the view of the Legislature. If the words of Sub-section 7 do not compel us to say that there was, I think the inclination of the Court would rightly be so to construe the sub-section as not to alter that long course of legislation. Unless it is perfectly clear that the Legislature intended to make this alteration, the sub-section ought to be construed as meaning, that, with regard to that which the Legislature have for so long a time thought to be right, they have not suddenly come to the conclusion that it was wrong.

And, when one considers the nature of the case, one would, I may say, almost assume that the Legislature (unless they have inadvertently done otherwise) must have maintained the privilege. Just observe what a friendly society is. Its business consists in the collecting and keeping the money of poor people, which is paid by them in small sums to the society in order that it may be kept for them as a mode of saving their earnings. If their money, which is in the hands of an officer of the society, is to be treated as his money, which is to give him credit with his tradesmen or other creditors, these poor people will have no real and effective means of controlling such an officer, and will be exposed to the greatest risk of ruin. This consideration must strike one's mind very forcibly at the present moment, when friendly societies and other similar societies have been crashing almost every day through the misconduct of their officers ; conduct which is entirely beyond the control of the poor people who have invested their money in the society. I should be very much disinclined to take away that long line of protection, unless I were obliged to do so. I am not speaking of any personal disinclination ; but I believe that is the right judicial view to take of an Act of Parliament.

Now

Now let us see whether Sub-section 7 does clearly take away that protection. There are other parts of the Act besides that sub-section which make it pretty clear to my mind that it was not intended to do so. But if that sub-section had stood alone, and it had been enacted for the first time, I should say that it gives, not merely that it does not take away, but that it gives the protection which is now asserted upon the bankruptcy of any officer of a friendly society "having in his possession, by virtue of his office, any money or property belonging to the society." Now the phrase, "belonging to the society," is not a technical term of legal art. The words "belonging to the society," seem to me as large as could well be used. They point to any money or property which, in ordinary language, would be said to "belong to" the society. It does not say which is "the property" of the society, but any property "belonging to" the society. Then the sub section goes on to provide that "upon demand in writing of the trustees of the society," and so on, the trustee in the bankruptcy "shall pay such money and deliver over such property to the trustees of the society." The trustee is to "pay such money"; but he is to "deliver over such property." "Money" and "property" are clearly distinguished; and I confess that, to my mind, the word "property" here does not include "money." The words are, to "pay" money, and to "deliver" property. If it had been necessary to identify the actual money which had been received, I cannot think that the phraseology used would have been to "pay" the money. Other words, such as "to pay over the money," would, I think, have been used. But the words used are, "pay such money." That is the phraseology ordinarily used when speaking of the payment of a debt. To "pay" money is to pay it in respect of a right which some person has to receive it, not to pay over any particular money or hand over any particular coins.

If it had been intended that the moneys should be identified as the actual moneys deposited with the officer, the words used ought to have been, "deliver such money and such property." But the words are, "pay such money and deliver over such property" to the trustees of the society. Then come the words "in preference to any other debts or claims against the estate of such officer." That is an English idiom. Whenever it is said that you are to do a certain thing, and then it is added, "in preference to," or "in the same manner as," some other thing, according to the ordinary English idiom, the thing of which you are speaking is of the same kind as the other thing to which you refer. The word "other" couples the two things together, and shows that they are of the same kind. Therefore, the payment of the money is a payment of the same kind as the payment of any other debt. The payment of the money is to be "in preference to any other debts," that is, in preference to the payment of any other debts. This money is to be paid in preference to paying money in respect of any other debt. That makes the payment of this money a payment of the same kind as the payment of money in respect of any other debt. The property is dealt with in just the same way; it is to be delivered over in preference to any other "claim." If there is property which is not money, something which is in actual existence, then the society may claim that property, and it is to be delivered over to them in preference to the claim of any one else for the delivery of that property. So, in my view, Sub-section 7 itself shows that the money which the trustee in the bankruptcy is to pay by way of preference to the trustees of a friendly society is treated, not as the actual pieces of money, the gold, silver, or copper, which the bankrupt had received, but as "money" in the ordinary sense of the word. When you are dealing with a bankrupt's estate, it seems to me that, inasmuch as the trustee in the bankruptcy has to pay the creditors, all that property of the bankrupt which will be money in the hands of the trustee is "money" within Section 15, Sub-section 7. Section 15, Sub-section 7, applies not only to that which is money in the actual possession of the bankrupt at the time, but also to everything which will be money in the hands of the trustee with which he has to deal as being the money of the bankrupt. Section 15, Sub-section 7, therefore includes such things as book debts and other things which, in the ordinary course of the bankruptcy proceedings, the trustee must reduce into money before he can deal with them.

But, if we look, not only at Sub-section 7, but also at the introductory words of Section 15, "registered societies shall be entitled to the following privileges," privileges," it is plain that Sub-section 7 was intended to create a privilege But, as has been pointed out during the argument, if Sub-section 7 is construed as meaning that the trustee in the bankruptcy is to hand over to the trustees of the benefit society only the actual specific money which the bankrupt officer held as trustee for the society, without the aid of that Sub-section, under the ordinary law applicable to trust property, the specific money could not be touched by the other creditors of the bankrupt, but must be given up to the trustees of the society. If that were so, Sub-section 7 would confer no privilege at all; it would be a mere statement of the ordinary law. There would be no privilege; there would be nothing but a statement of an already existing legal right. The Legislature must have intended to go beyond the ordinary law; and the only way in which Sub-section 7 can operate to confer a privilege beyond the ordinary law is by construing it as applying not only to specific money in the hands of the officer, but also to a debt due from him to the society in respect of money which he has received for it.

Upon the construction, therefore, of Sub-section 7 alone, I should have come to the conclusion that the trustees of this society are entitled to priority of payment. But, having regard also to the introductory words of Section 15, it seems to me reasonably clear, as clear as legislation generally is, that it must have the larger construction. That larger meaning was put upon it in the year 1882 by Bacon, C. J., in ex parte Edmonds (1); and from that time trustees in bankruptcy and trustees of friendly societies must have had to act upon Sub-section 7 over and over again, and the decision in that case has never been challenged. If, therefore, Sub-section 7 is reasonably capable of the interpretation then put upon it by Bacon, C. J., his decision ought not now to be over-ruled, unless we are perfectly clear that it was wrong.

Moreover, since that decision, two new Statutes dealing with priorities in bankruptcy have been passed, and in neither of them has any step been taken to interfere with that decision. I do not say that that of itself is absolutely fatal to the more strict construction; but it is a thing to be observed, that the Legislature, having, as it must be assumed, that decision before them when they were framing the Acts of 1883 and 1888, did not interfere with the interpretation which had been given to Section 15, Sub-section 7. It may be that we ought now to differ from that decision, if we were perfectly clear that it was wrong; but I am not clear that it was wrong. And it is a circumstance to be very much considered, that a decision of a superior Court as to the construction of an Act of Parliament has remained untouched by the Legislature for a considerable period of time; although they have in that interval legislated with regard to the matter in question, and it has been taken into their consideration. I think, therefore, we ought to say that Section 15, Sub-section 7 has the larger construction which was given to it by Bacon, C. J., in the year 1882. Even if I had greater doubt than I have as to the correctness of his judgment, I should, for the reasons which I have given, feel very strongly that his decision ought to be treated as accurate. In my opinion, this appeal must fail, and the decision of the Divisional Court must be affirmed.

LINDLEY, L. J.—This sub-section is not so plain that there can be no possible doubt about its meaning; but in my view it can be made plain almost to demonstration that the construction adopted by the Divisional Court was right. We must bear in mind one or two very elementary propositions of law. In the event of a bankruptcy, property which is vested in the bankrupt upon trust, or which is in his possession for the purpose of being applied to some specific purpose, does not pass to the trustee in the bankruptcy. In the event of the death of a trustee, the trust property passes, it is true, to his executor, but it does not form part of the assets of the deceased. The executor must deal with such property as the property of the cestui que trust. In the case of an execution under a fi fa, the sheriff cannot touch property which belongs to the debtor as a trustee, for it is not his property. Bearing this in mind, and bearing in mind also that the treasurer of a friendly society is a trustee, what can Sub-section 7 mean? If you read it in the strict, literal sense, as we have been invited to do, the sub-section misses the mark altogether; it affects nothing at all. The words are "having in his possession, by by virtue of his office, any money, or property belonging to the society." Taking the words literally in their strict and narrow sense. the sub-section is not wanted. The trustee in a bankruptcy could not touch the money; the executor could not treat it as part of his testator's assets; the sheriff, under a fi fa, would have nothing to do with it. What, then was the object of the section? The object of Section 15 must be, as the earlier part of it says, to give to friendly societies some kind of "privilege," to give them something which they would not have had without the section; and, unless you read the section in that sense, you render it of no use at all. That is, to my mind, the key to the whole of this controversy. The Attorney General endeavoured to meet that by saying, that the law to which I have alluded was not so clearly settled in 1875 as it is now, and he referred to In re Hallett's Estate (1) in support of his contention. But the law to which I have referred was old and well settled long before 1875. What was doubtful, and what was settled in In re Hallett's Estate (1), was this, how the rule in Clayton's Case (2) was to be applied to a banker's account, when a trustee had mixed trust money with his own money at his bankers. That is a more difficult problem; but it has nothing to do with the section we are now considering, and the decision in In re Hallett's Estate (1) throws no light upon its construction. It seems to me that we are in this dilemma. We must either construe Sub-section 7 as the Divisional Court have construed it, or we must accede to the Attorney General's contention, and read the words literally in their narrowest sense, and so nullify the sub-section altogether. Of these alternatives, there cannot be a doubt which we ought to adopt. But, if we look at the Act of 1888 which amends Section 40 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, all doubt, as it seems to me, is removed. The Act of 1888, by which Sub-sections 1 and 2 of Section 40 of the Act of 1883 were repealed, contains precisely the same words as Section 40 itself. Neither Section 4 of the Act of 1883, nor Section 1 of the Act of 1888, deals with the property vested in the trustee. Section 40 deals with the property which is divisible among the creditors, the proof of debts, and the priority of debts, and it says, first, that "subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts proved in the bankruptcy shall be paid pari passu." This would apply to a friendly society; but there is this provision, "Nothing in this section shall prejudice the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875." How could a section relating to the proof and the priority of debts prejudice the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, if that Act is construed as the Attorney General invited us to construe it? There is a similar proviso in Section 2 of the Act of 1888, and in either case the proviso only becomes intelligible upon the assumption that Section 15, and Sub-section 7, of the Friendly Societies Act refers, not to the property which vests in the trustee in a bankruptcy, but to the proof of debt when the property of the bankrupt officer had vested in the trustee in his bankruptcy.

It appears to me, therefore, that, without referring to ex parte Edmonds (3), and without going into the anterior history of friendly societies, the construction put by the Divisional Court upon Sub-section 7 is right. It follows, of course, that I think the decision of Bacon, C. J., in ex parte Edmonds (1) was right. But if we look at the history of this legislation about friendly societies, the conclusion at which I have arrived is very strongly confirmed. It is idle to suppose that, when the Legislature were re-casting the law relating to friendly societies in 1875, they intended to deprive them of those privileges which they had enjoyed from the year 1793. I think it is impossible, in the face of the language which we have before us, to suppose that. The truth is, that the whole difficulty has arisen from an incautious abridgment of the words of previous Acts. The draftsmen of the Act of 1875 thought that he could shorten Section 23 of the Act of 1855, and in shortening it he has made it obscure. That is the history of Section 15, Sub-section 7, of the Act of 1875. But when we look into the matter, I have not the slightest doubt that the right construction is that which I have mentioned; and therefore, I think that the appeal must be dismissed.

A. L. SMITH, L. J.—I am of the same opinion. Whatever doubt might have been entertained as to the true construction of Sub-section 7, if without any prior legislation it had now for the first time come up for a judica-tion, is set at rest when the legislation relating to the privileges of friendly societies is ascertained. From 1793 down to 1875 it is admitted that these societies had the privilege now claimed for them. The Act which we are called upon to construe was passed in 1875. In 1882, Bacon, V. C., sitting as Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, put a construction upon this Act in favour of friendly societies, and since then two other Acts have been passed recognising this privilege. When I take all this into consideration, the doubt I at one time felt as to the construction of Section 15, Sub-section 7, vanishes. I agree with my brother Lindley that the difficulty which has been suggested has arisen simply from the draftsman in 1875 attempting to curtail a very lengthy section of the Act of 1855, and to bring about the same result by more concise language. In my judgment, the decisions of Bacon, C. J., and of the Divisional Court were right, and, therefore, this appeal ought to be dismissed.

Trade Unions.

George P. Williams was a member of the United Society of Boiler Makers and Iron and Steel Ship Builders, established 1834, and registered under the Trade Union Acts 1871 and 1876. By its rules, as revised in 1890, it was provided (rule 31) under the head of "Funeral Benefit," that at the death of a member the society shall pay the nominee, or other person entitled, the sum of 12*l.*; and that any member may nominate any person to receive his funeral money, in accordance with the 10th clause of the Trade Union Act (1871) Amendment Act. He died in May 1891, having made a will appointing the plaintiff his executrix, and nominated her to receive his funeral money. The society having refused to pay, she brought an action against the secretary in the county court of Monmouth, holden at Newport, and obtained judgment for 12*l.* with costs. The secretary applied to Charles, J. in Chambers for a writ of prohibition, and the application was dismissed. He appealed to the Divisional Court (Lawrance, J., and Wright, J.) who ordered the writ to issue. The plaintiff appealed. Mr. Bailhache appeared in support of the appeal. Mr. Bosanquet, Q.C., and Mr. E. N. Bullen, for the defendant, were not called upon. The Court (Lindley, L.J., and Kay, L.J.) affirmed the decision of the Divisional Court, and held that the county court had no jurisdiction to entertain the claim.

Lindley, L.J., said: "A trade union is a legal body; there can be no doubt about that after the Trade Union Act of 1871; but, notwithstanding that it is legal, certain actions cannot be maintained against its officers. Our attention has been called to Section 4 of the Act of 1871, and to Section 10 of the Amendment Act of 1876. By Section 1 of the Act of 1876 it is enacted that this Act and the Trade Union Act, 1871, hereinafter termed the principal Act, shall be construed as one Act, and may be cited together as the Trade Union Acts, 1871 and 1876, and this Act may be cited separately as the Trade Union Act Amendment Act, 1876. Thus we are to look at the two Acts; and it is clear that the object of the second Act is not to repeal the first, although it may contain sections so opposed to sections in the first as to repeal them by necessary inference. The Act of 1871, by Section 3, sanctions any agreement or trust entered into by a trade union, although the purposes of the trade union may be in restraint of trade. But Section 4 is a prohibition against any court entertaining any legal proceedings for the purpose of enforcing certain agreements; and among those agreements is, in Sub-section 3, an agreement for the application of the funds of a trade union to provide benefits to members. Now the sum sought to be recovered here is payable under one of the rules of a trade union upon the death of a member, and certainly that is a rule which provides a benefit to the member within Section 4, though he may be dead; for he is entitled to appoint some one to receive a sum of money derivable under such benefit So far, therefore, this action cannot be maintained; but Section 10 of the Act of 1876 runs thus: 'a member of a trade union, not being under the age of 16 years, may . . . . nominate any person . . . . to whom moneys payable on the the death of such member . . . . shall be paid at his demise . . . . and on receiving satisfactory proof of the death of a nominator the trade union shall pay to the nominee the amount due.' Now that section standing alone, and without looking to the section in the Act of 1871, is in terms one which seems to impose a statutory obligation on the trade union to pay to the nominee the amount to which the member was entitled under the rules. The question is whether the words 'the trade union shall pay' constitute an obligation which can be enforced by action. I think the object of the section was not to depart from the policy of the earlier Act, but was entirely different, namely, to enable persons of 16 years of age and upwards, without the necessity of making a will, and incurring the expense of probate, to give away any small sums of money that may be due to them from the trade union. I do not think that we can find any sufficient indication of an intention to depart from the terms of Section 4 of the first Act, so as to alter the policy of the Legislature, which was to prevent the introduction of legal proceedings into the affairs of trade unions, and to save trade unions from being subjected to the expense of litigation. When we are told by the Legislature to read the two Acts as one, we must read them in such a way as to make them consistent. In my opinion, the trade union is subject to no more obligations to pay than it was before the Act of 1871 was passed. Section 4 is clear: no action shall be brought for any such sum of money as is sought to be recovered here."

KAY, L.J., was of the same opinion. He said: "If Section 10 had meant to repeal the previous section, I should have expected to find in it some such words as 'notwithstanding anything contained in Section 4 of the principal Act, such nominee shall be entitled to sue.' Not finding any such words, it would be an extraordinary construction of this section to say that, although the member cannot sue, or his executors or administrators cannot sue, yet the nominee of the member, a person brought into the matter by the Legislature, evidently to avoid the expense of probate, shall have power to put the trade union to the expense of an action. I am convinced that this is not the meaning of Section 10."—Law Rep., 1892. 1 Q. B., 702.

Arbitration—Building Society—Dispute between Society and Member—Reference to Arbitration—Special Cases, Power of Court to order Statement of—Time, Computation of—Division of a Day—Building Societies Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 42, s. 36)—Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 49, ss. 19, 24).

Section 19 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, which provides that an arbitrator shall, if so directed by the Court or a judge, state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court any question of law arising in the course of the reference, applies to arbitrations under the Building Societies Act 1874.

So held, affirming the decision of the Court of Appeal (1891, 2 Q. B. 63.)

In an arbitration under the Building Societies Act 1874, one of the parties to the arbitration obtained at Chambers an order nisi calling upon the arbitrators to show cause why they should not be required to state a case for the opinion of the Court. Later on the same day, but without having had notice of the order nisi, the arbitrators made and signed their award. Held, that the jurisdiction of the Court was not ousted, and that the order nisi was rightly made absolute.

APPEAL from an order of the Court of Appeal (1).

A dispute which had arisen between the appellants, a building society, and one of its members named Knight, was in accordance with the rules of the society referred to arbitration under Section 34 of the Building Societies

Societies Act, 1874. During the arbitration a request was made to the arbitrators on behalf of Knight to state a special case for the opinion of the Court upon a point of law which had arisen in the course of the proceedings. This the arbitrators refused to do. On the 16th January 1891, upon an application made on behalf of Knight, an order nisi was made at Chambers that the arbitrators should state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court the questions of law arising in the course of the reference, unless cause was shown to the contrary. It appeared from an affidavit of the arbitrators that on the same day (16th of January) they made and signed their award before either of them had notice of the order nisi. Whether the order nisi was made before the making and signing of the award was not alleged.

The order nisi was afterwards made absolute.

Upon appeal to the Queen's Bench Division (Wills, J., and Vaughan Williams, J.) discharged the order upon the ground that Section 19 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, does not apply to arbitrations under the Building Societies Act, 1874. This decision was reversed by the Court of Appeal (Lord Esher, M.R., Fry, L.J. and Bowen, L.J.) (1) 1892. 24th March.

Cook, Q.C. (Macoun with him) for the appellants ;—The appeal rests on two grounds : first that the Court had no jurisdiction to order the arbitrators to state a case ; secondly, that even if it had the order was made too late. As to the first, Section 19 of the Arbitration Act 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 49), which requires arbitrators to state a case if directed by the Court, does not apply to the Building Societies Act, 1874. Section 24 of the Act of 1889 enacts that the Act shall apply to every arbitration except in so far as the Act of 1889 is inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration. Now the Act regulating this arbitration, viz., the Building Societies Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 42) by Section 36 gives the arbitrators an absolute discretion—they "may at the request of either party state a case." Where a power amounting to a discretion is given, it is a matter for the determination of the person to whom the power is given, and for no one else. A power to compel arbitrators to state a case is inconsistent with an absolute discretion ; and this is especially so in the case of an Act like the Building Societies Act of 1874, by which the Legislature intended to provide a cheap, speedy, and final method of settling disputes in lieu of ordinary litigation. The construction adopted by the Court of Appeal gives the High Court an appellate jurisdiction from the arbitrators, and defeats the object of the Act of 1874. In the earlier Act there is no obligation, in the later there is. The two are therefore inconsistent. It is also worth notice that the Building Societies Act of 1874 applies to England, Scotland, and Ireland. Whereas the Arbitration Act of 1889 applies only to England, and it cannot be supposed that the Legislature intended to create differences of procedure in the three kingdoms.

As to the second point, the order of Court was made too late, for the arbitrators had already made and signed the award. They were therefore functi officio, and had no longer power to state a case or jurisdiction in the matter : Mordue v. Palmer (2). If there be any doubt as to which of the two was in fact the earlier in time, it is for the respondent to show that the order of Court was prior.

Fillan (A. L. Read with him) for the respondent.—As to the first point the appellants' contention comes to this, that any addition made by the Act of 1889 to the provisions of previous Acts regulating arbitrations is inconsistent with them. That argument refutes itself, otherwise of what effect would Section 24 of the Act of 1889 be ? If the Act of 1874 had contained any words expressly or impliedly prohibiting the Court from requiring the arbitrators to state a case there would have been an inconsistency, but there are no such words. The respondent's argument is forcibly put by Fry, L. J., in the Court of Appeal.

As to the second point, it is to be inferred from the affidavits that the order of Court was, in fact, made before the award was made and signed, though the arbitrators had no notice of the order till after they had made and and signed the award. The onus of proof is on those who seek to oust the jurisdiction of the Court. Moreover, the award was not published, and a reference is not at an end till the award is published. Independently of that, the order of Court being a judicial act, must be supposed to have been done at the earliest possible moment of the day, and therefore was prior to the making of the award. Again, under Section 19 of the Act, the Court may require the arbitrators to state a case even after the award is published. The words of Section 19 are "at any stage of the proceedings." And by Section 10 the Court may "in all cases . . . remit the matters referred, or any of them, to the reconsideration of the arbitrators."

COOK, Q.C., in reply.

The House took time for consideration.

31st May 1892, Lord HALSBURY, L. C.—My Lords, the first question in this case is, whether 37 & 38 Vict. c. 42, is inconsistent with the provisions of the general Arbitration Act (52 & 53 Vict. c. 49). The policy of Section 19 of the later Act is manifest. During the progress of an arbitration it may be seen that the arbitrator has mistaken the law and is about to act upon his error, and the power of putting him right used to consist in the right of either party to revoke the submission to arbitration. That power has been greatly controlled by legislation, and now it may be extremely difficult for a party to make such a case to a court as will induce them to make an order giving leave to revoke unless a case is stated.

Such a case actually occurred in your Lordships' House, and though leave would have been given by this House to revoke the submission unless the parties had consented to terms (which happily they did) it is obvious that this is a clumsy and incomplete remedy. The Court ought to have in its own hands power to compel in a fit case a reference to a court of competent jurisdiction, so as to prevent a failure of justice. This is a power independent of and altogether different from the right of the parties under Section 36 of the Act of 1874, which enacts that the determination of the arbitrators or the Court shall be conclusive. It provides, also, that the arbitrators or registrar, as the case may be, may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Judicature on any question of law.

The later statute makes the provision which I have first referred to apply to every arbitration under any Act passed before or after the commencement of the Act itself (1889), and only excepts from its operation any Act inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration, or with any rules or procedure authorised or recognised by that Act.

If the two provisions may stand together, I am unable to follow the argument that the one Act is inconsistent with the other, and the whole argument depends upon the word "inconsistent" in the later statute. It is obvious to inquire, Where is the inconsistency if both may stand together, and both operate without either interfering with the other?

The policy, object, and application of the two sections are entirely different. I think in the Building Act the object was to enable the arbitrators, on the solicitation of the parties, to state a question of law which might enable them to decide the case in its final result. I think the object of Section 19 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, though in one sense it may be said to have for its object the same result, was rather to hold a control over the arbitration while it was proceeding by the courts, and not to allow the parties to be concluded by the award, when, as it is said, parties may be precluded by the arbitrator's bad law once the award is made; although they might have had a right to repudiate the arbitrator if they had done so before the completion of the award.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the first objection here fails, and that the Acts, not being inconsistent with each other, may be read together, and that the Court or a judge would have jurisdiction to interfere.

The second objection turns upon a question of fact, and I should agree that if a complete award had been made a statute which gives the power to a court or judge at any stage of the proceedings under a reference would not be applicable where the proceedings had come to an end by a completed award. Now, I will assume that in this case the award was very nearly completed, but but I am equally satisfied that it was not completed and published as the award, but was in process of being completed. I will assume that the arbitrators had no notice of the rule nisi. But the affidavit which states the fact that they had no notice of the rule nisi is studiously reticent about when, in fact, what is relied on as the completion of the award was effected, and I infer, as a fact, that the rule nisi was obtained, whether the arbitrators had notice of it or not, before the award was signed, even if that would completion.

I think, therefore, that this appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Lord WATSON.—My Lords, Section 19 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, enacts that any arbitrator may at any stage of the proceedings in the reference, and shall, if so directed by the Court, state, in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, any question of law arising in the course of the reference. The provisions of the Act are, by Section 24, made applicable to every arbitration under any previous or subsequent statute, "except in so far as this Act is inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration, or with any rules or procedure authorised or recognised by that Act."

The appellants concede that, had it not been for the exception in Section 24, the provisions of Section 19 would have applied to arbitrations under the Building Societies Act of 1874. They maintain that these provisions are inapplicable, in respect of their being inconsistent with a proviso in Section 36, to the effect that the statutory arbitrators "may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Judicature on any question of law," and that the Court had, therefore, no jurisdiction to make the order appealed from.

If the provisions of Section 19 had been inserted verbatim in Section 36 of the Building Societies Act, they would not have repealed the discretion of the arbiters to state or refuse to state a case on the request of a party to the reference. They would simply have conferred upon the arbitrators the additional privilege to state a case proprio motu, and upon the parties the additional right to obtain an order from the Court. The appellants were accordingly constrained to argue that, whenever the provisions of the Arbitration Act are found to add to the enactments of any other statute regulating arbitrations, they are in the sense of the exception inconsistent with it. To hold that the Legislature intended to attach that meaning to the word "inconsistent" would be to defeat the object of the leading enactment in Section 24. In my opinion the object of the Legislature was to add to the remedies open to the parties under a statutory abitration, and the sole purpose of the exception was to prevent the application of the powers conferred upon the Conrt by the Act of 1889 to arbitrations under any statute whose provisions, either expressly or by reasonable implication, excluded the exercise of such powers.

A second point was raised by the appellants, which is not noticed by any of the learned judges of the Appeal Court. Section 19 only authorises the intervention of the Court during the dependence of the reference, and does not warrant an order being made upon an arbitrator to state a case after his award has been duly completed; and it was argued that in this case there was a defect of jurisdiction, inasmuch as the award of the arbitrators had been adjusted and signed by them before an order nisi was obtained.

If there had been any evidence to show that an award was published on the same day as the order, but before the latter was applied for, I should not, as at present advised, have been prepared to hold that this case was governed by the decision of the Court of Exchequer in Wright v. Mills (1) There the Court had undoubted jurisdiction, and was, moreover, seized of the case at the time when, fictione juris, its order was held to have been made. Here the Court had no process before it until the initial order was applied for: and it had no jurisdiction to grant the order if, at the time of the application, there was a completed award.

for the absence of any comment upon it by the Court of Appeal. There is an affidavit to the effect that the arbitrators' award was drawn up and signed by them before they had notice of the order of Court. That statement, which was the sole basis of the argument, plainly implies that the award was not completed before the order was made; and that fact was sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction. The completion of the award, between the issuing of the order and its intimation to the arbitrators, cannot deprive the parties of their statutory remedy or oust the jurisdiction of the Court.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the judgment appealed from ought to be affirmed with costs.

Lord HERSCHELL.—My Lords, the question involved in this appeal is, whether the 19th section of the Arbitration Act, 1889, applies to arbitrations under the Building Societies Act, 1874. That section provides, that "any referee, arbitrator, or umpire may, at any stage of the proceedings under a reference, and shall, if so directed by the Court or a judge, state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, any question of law arising in the course of the reference." Section 24 of the same Act provides as follows: "This Act shall apply to every arbitration under any Act passed before or after the commencement of this Act, as if the arbitration were pursuant to a submission, except in so far as this Act is inconsistent with the Act regulating the arbitration, or with any rules or procedure authorised or recognised by that Act:"

It is said on behalf of the appellants that Section 19 of the Arbitration Act is inconsistent with the Building Societies Act, 1874, and therefore does not apply to arbitrations under it. The material section of the latter Act is the 36th, which provides, that "every determination by arbitrators . . . . under this Act of a dispute shall be binding and conclusive on all parties, and shall be final to all intents and purposes, and shall not be subject to appeal, and shall not be removed or removable into any Court of Law, or restrained or restrainable by the injunction of any Court of Equity; provided always that the arbitrators . . . . may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Judicature on any question of law-"

The argument for the appellants is, that this section vests in the arbitrators the discretion whether a case shall be stated or not, and that the later Act, which empowers the Court to order the arbitrators to state a case, is therefore inconsistent with it. I cannot accede to this view. No doubt the Building Societies Act empowers the arbitrators to state a case, and leaves it to them to determine whether they will exercise this power or not; the parties cannot compel them to do so. The Arbitration Act, which confers upon the Court the power to order a case to be stated, if it applies, adds, no doubt, to the provisions which are to govern an arbitration under the Building Societies Act; but it is clear that the fact that the provision is an additional one does not of itself show that there is any inconsistency in the two Acts, for, if so, the 24th section would never have any operation. I think the test is, whether you can read the provisions of the later Act into the earlier without any conflict between the two. This you can clearly do as regards the enactment under consideration. For these reasons I concur in the judgment of the Court below.

A further point was argued at the bar which is not noticed in the judgments delivered in the Court of Appeal. It was said that, even if the Arbitration Act applied, the Respondent had come to the Court too late, inasmuch as the arbitrators made their award on the 16th of January 1891, and it was only on that day that the order nisi was made, calling upon the arbitrators to show cause why they should not be required to state a case for the opinion of the Court. The learned counsel for the appellants contended that it was for the respondent to shew, in order to support the order, that it was obtained before the arbitrators had made their award and were thus functi officio. It is unnecessary to determine whether the rule that a judicial act must be regarded as dating from the first moment of the day on which it is done would apply to such an order as that under consideration, or whether it would be sufficient cause for not making the order absolute if it were shewn that the award, though bearing the same date, was, in fact, signed before the order nisi was made. I can entertain no doubt that where an order nisi has been obtained by a party who has no notice of an award having been made, it is for those who contest it to show that the award was executed prior to the order being made. This is not shown in the present case. The affidavit of the arbitrators states only that their award was made and signed before either of them "had notice of the order nisi."

For these reasons I think the judgment appealed from should be affirmed.

Lord MORRIS:—My Lords, I concur in the judgment which has been moved.

Lord FIELD:—My Lords, I am also of opinion that this appeal should be dismissed. There are two questions to be considered. The first one is of general importance, namely, whether or not Section 19 of the Arbitration Act of 1889, by which the Court can order an arbitrator to state a case raising a question of law is inconsistent with the arbitration provisions of the Building Societies Act of 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 42). The second question is, whether in the present case the order to state a case was made whilst the proceedings under the reference were pending.

My Lords, with regard to the first point, I can see no reason whatever why the enactments should not very properly stand together. The Building Societies Act contemplates, no doubt, as the learned judges of the Divisional Court thought, a speedy and comparatively inexpensive remedy. It gives that remedy by arbitration, the judges being selected by the litigating parties themselves. Those arbitrators might be laymen, as in the present case they were, or they might be qualified and trained lawyers. But then the statute only gives the arbitrators power to state a case in their discretion at the request of either party.

Now in the present instance the arbitrators seem to have come to the conclusion, I will not say very rapidly, but very decidedly, that the view which they took was the only possible view that could be taken; and certainly this case, as it seems to me, is an illustration, and a very convenient one, of the benefit which will arise from construing the two Acts together. Under the Building Societies Act the matter was in the discretion of the arbitrators at the request of either party; but then there came this Act, a general Act, which adds an element to it, enabling either of the parties who wishes to have the point authoritatively determined, to apply to a judge to compel the arbitrators, whether they will or no, to state a case.

It was thought by the learned judges in the Divisional Court that by implication that provision was excluded, because it was said that the Building Societies Act being an Act eminently for the discussion of questions without delay, and without expense, it was entirely contrary to the sense and principle of that Act to import the power to compel the arbitrators to state a case when that Act itself had laid down the only limits within which a case was to be stated. But it must be recollected that it may be far better, and must be generally far better, in a case where the rights of the parties depend upon a question of pure law, the construction of statutes or authorities, to have a right decision than to have merely an inexpensive one, and when it is seen that the legislature here has interposed the discretion of the judge before whom the case must come before any case can be stated for decision, it seems to me that there is no sufficient ground in the supposed policy of the Acts in question for excluding the operation of the last Act. The provisions may very well stand together. By the first either party may request; by the second, if either party request, and the arbitrators refuse to state a case, then upon the party going before a judge and showing that the case is one involving some question of law (upon which two opinions may possibly exist) the judge has power to compel the arbitrator to state a case.

With regard to the second point, I should not be prepared to carry further the doctrine with respect to part of a day, and to hold that it cannot be considered in certain cases. In this case I am clearly of opinion, and the evidence satisfies me that the order was really and truly made before the award.

Order appealed from affirmed, and appeal dismissed with costs.

Building Society—Deposits—Excess over Prescribed Limits—Liability of Directors—Building Societies Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict., c. 42), s. 43.

The Building Societies Act, 1874, s. 43, enacts, "If any society under this Act receives loans or deposits in excess of the limits prescribed by this Act, the directors or committee of management of such society receiving such loans or deposits on its behalf shall be personally liable for the amount so received in excess."

A building society was authorised to receive money on deposit up to a certain limit. The course of business authorised by the directors was, that the secretary gave a provisional receipt to the depositor, and then prepared a formal receipt, which was signed by two directors and countersigned by himself. The secretary received moneys on deposit to an amount exceeding the limit of the borrowing powers of the society. He appropriated to his own use a great part of the money deposited, and so managed the books of the society as to keep the directors in ignorance that the limit had been exceeded.

In an action by a depositor against the directors to recover the amount of a deposit made after the limit of the borrowing powers had been reached. Held, that every director who was a member of the board when the deposit was received was personally liable for the amount so received.

This was an appeal by the defendants against a judgment of Mathew, J., in an action to recover money alleged to have been advanced by way of loan or deposit to the Hull and Holderness Conservative Building Society.

The society was established in 1875, and registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874. The objects of the society were those of an ordinary building society, but it was authorised to receive money on loan or deposit. Rule 7 of the society's rules was as follows:—"The board shall have power to borrow such sums of money as shall from time to time be required for the purposes of the society from the bankers of the society, or from any person or persons, or bodies corporate, and give receipts for the same; such receipts shall be issued in the name of the society, and shall be signed by two of the directors, and countersigned by the secretary. The interest agreed to be paid shall not, in any case, exceed 5*l.* per cent. per annum. The whole of the moneys so received on deposit or loan shall not in any time exceed two-thirds of the amount for the time being secured to the society by mortgages from its members." By Rule 12 "The society shall be governed by a board of directors, not more than 15 in number, and three trustees, who shall be ex-officio members of the board. Five members of the board shall form a quorum. . . . They shall meet as often as may be necessary, and not less than once a month for transaction of business. . . . The board shall have full power and absolute discretion to direct the affairs of the society, subject only to the rules thereof for the time being." By a resolution of the board of directors, applications with regard to loans or deposits above 50*l.* were to be submitted to the board. The directors inserted advertisements in the local papers, and caused placards to be placed in shops to the effect that they were prepared to receive deposits in sums of 5*l.* and upwards, at 5 per cent. interest, payable quarterly, and that for particulars application should be made to Mr. Robert Collison, secretary. The course of business with regard to loans was that the secretary was furnished with a receipt book, the receipts being in this form: "Received of , on deposit with the Hull and Holderness Conservative Building Society, the sum of , for which an official certificate will be issued." When Collison received money on deposit, he gave a receipt in the above form, and then prepared the official receipt, which ran: "Received of the sum of as a deposit at 5 per cent. per annum interest, payable at one month's notice," and obtained for it the signatures of any two of the directors that he could find, and then countersigned it himself. Collison for many years carried on a system of fraud by inserting on the counterfoils a lesser sum than that inserted in the receipts. The lesser sum was carried into the books, so that from them it did not appear that the borrowing powers had been exceeded. The difference between the amounts Collison retained, and he paid the interest on the larger amounts to the depositors either by his own cheque or in cash, carrying into the books only the amount of interest on the lesser amounts. The aggregate of the amounts deposited by the lenders was largely in excess of the limit of the borrowing powers of the society, but the directors were in entire ignorance of the frauds that were being committed by their secretary. When the frauds were discovered, the society was ordered to be wound up, and the claims of the plaintiffs who were depositors were disallowed as against the society, as such claims were in respect of moneys deposited after the borrowing powers of the society had been exhausted. This action was then brought against the defendants, who were directors of the society when the deposits were made, the claim being founded on the final clause of Section 43 of the Building Societies Act, 1874, which is in these terms: "If any society under this Act receives loans or deposits in excess of the limits prescribed by this Act, the directors or committee of management of such society receiving such loans or deposits on its behalf, shall be personally liable for the amount so received in excess."

The defendant Fisher was one of the trustees of the society, but he had only attended three meetings of the board of directors, and did not sign any of the certificates. Of the other defendants, some had, and some had not, signed receipts.

The learned judge, who tried the case without a jury, held that under the statute all the defendants were liable; and, further, that the course of business established that the defendants had empowered Collison, upon his issuing to the depositor the official receipt, to represent on behalf of the directors that the borrowing powers of the society had not been exceeded, and that on this ground also the defendants were liable.

The defendants appealed.

RIGBY, Q.C., CYRIL DODD, Q.C., and H. SUTTON, for the defendant Fisher. — Section 43 of the Building Societies Act, 1874, applies to an illegal receipt of money, and it must apply only to those directors who actually receive the money which is borrowed in excess of the statutory powers of the society. It cannot mean that if some of the directors, acting as a quorum, receive the money, the other directors shall be personally liable for it, even though they knew nothing of the transaction. In order to make a director personally liable, he must have himself received or authorised, or, at least, permitted, the receipt. Directors of a company are not agents of each other: Cullerne v. London and Suburban General Permanent Building Society (1); Cargill v. Bower (2). On general principles, in order to make a director personally liable for a wrongful act, it is not sufficient that he should in a preliminary stage have authorised the doing of the act, unless he actually joins in carrying it out.

The words "committee of management," in Section 43, necessarily exclude all members of the committee who do not actually receive the money; those members who attend and make a quorum at any meeting, are "the committee" on that occasion. On any other construction it would be impossible for a man, however careful he might be, to insure that a heavy liability might not be imposed on him. If he were present at a meeting at which it was proposed to borrow money illegally, and voted against the proposition, but was overruled by the majority, he would probably be liable, if he did not at once take steps to restrain the directors from carrying out the loan. The question is, who are "the directors," or who are the "committee of management," who "receive" the money? The generality of the prior words is limited by the word "receiving"; otherwise, all the directors would be made guarantors for each of the colleagues. They would be responsible for the acts of persons who are not their agents. Fisher never received this money, or authorised, or in any way joined in, the receipt of it. All that he knew was, that advertisements inviting loans were being issued by other persons, and that those advertisements stated that inquiries were to be made of

of the secretary. If any implied authority to receive money was given to the secretary by reason of the course of business, it was at the most an authority to receive money for the society, not an authority to receive on behalf of any one of the directors money which the secretary never intended to receive except for the purpose of applying it to his own purposes: British Mutual Banking Company v. Charnwood Forest Railway Company (1).

If the statute does not apply, it is said that the directors are liable at common law, on the ground that they warranted the power of the society to borrow. If so, the Statute of Limitations would be a defence, for the warranty was broken at the same moment at which it was given, and the cause of action accrued then: Whitehaven Joint Stock Banking Company v. Reed (2); Short v. McCarthy (3). The fraudulent receipt of money in excess of the borrowing powers of the society was outside the ordinary course of business.

As to the alleged breach of warranty, Collen v. Wright (4), and Richardson v. Williamson (5), are distinguishable. In the latter case, the defendants, directors of a building society which had no power to borrow money, signed a receipt for money deposited by the plaintiff with the society, and it was held that the defendants were liable for breach of warranty. Fisher never signed a receipt for any of the monies to which this action relates. In Chapleo v. Brunswick Benefit Building Society (6), the directors intended to make themselves personally responsible.

Sir H. Davey, Q.C., and Scott Fox, for the defendant R. R. Hodgson.—The liability under Section 43 is imposed when the society receives the money, and, it is imposed on the directors who receive it for the society. Neither of those conditions existed in the present case. A constructive, as distinguished from an actual, receipt by the society is not enough. The test is, whether the society ever had the legal control of the money, so that they could maintain an action for it, or prosecute a person for stealing it under an indictment which alleged that the property was in the society. The money was never under the control or at the disposal of Hodgson; he never authorised the secretary to receive it on his behalf; the only authority was to receive on behalf of the society. Hodgson never made any representation which can raise an estoppel against him. If he is responsible for the advertisements, they only held out the secretary as the person to give information, not as empowered to give receipts for money. To construe Section 43 as making every member of the board of directors responsible for moneys illegally borrowed would give no meaning to the words "receiving such loans or deposits on its behalf." Those words qualify and restrict the preceding words. Hodgson was never a member of a board or committee which received such loans or deposits. Any director who was present at a meeting of a board which acquired the control of the improperly borrowed money would be liable; but there is nothing in Section 43 to impose liability on any director who was not present at that particular meeting of the board at which the money purported to have been received. This construction will not render Section 43 of no use, for its effect will be to impose on directors a greater liability than was imposed on the directors in Chapleo v. Brunswick Benefit Building Society (7). The directors who are liable will be so for the full amount of the loan, whatever may be the state of the society's assets, and every one of the directors who constituted the board which received the money will be liable independently of warranty.

The plaintiffs by their reply allege a warranty that the secretary had authority to bind the society. There was no written document which held out any such authority. The secretary did not profess to bind the society. Each depositor obtained a receipt signed by two of the directors, and until he got that there was nothing which purported to bind the society. There was no warranty that the society had power to borrow.

If there was a warranty, the proper measure of damages is the loss which the plaintiffs have actually sustained. If the society was insolvent the depositor would recover nothing. His loss is that which he would have received in case the borrowing power which was warranted to exist had really really existed: In re National Coffee Palace Company (1). The time to ascertain the amount of the damage is the date at which the warranty is broken, one month after the date of the deposit note. That assumes that the depositor would at once have given a month's notice to withdraw his deposit.

The borrowing power of the society was not exceeded if the sums embezzled by the secretary out of the quasi loans are not taken into account.

ASQUITH, Q.C., and R. CUNNINGHAM GLEN, for the defendant D. Brown.—Brown is in no worse position by reason of his having signed receipts for some of the moneys deposited. He did not in fact receive the money. The deposit note states that the society has received the money; there is no statement that the directors as individuals have received anything. The depositors must have known that the directors who signed the receipts had received the money for the society. Brown's signature was obtained by a representation made to him by the secretary that the depositor was a creditor of the society for the whole sum which he had advanced.

As to warranty, it is essential that the plaintiffs should show that they changed their position by acting on the warranty. The signature of the deposit by a director creates no greater warranty on his part than if he had not signed. If any warranty was given it was given by the secretary. The crucial point to be considered is the time at which the lender came to the society's office and parted with his money believing that the secretary had the authority of the society to receive it.

ASQUITH, Q.C., and MONTAGU LUSH, for the defendants Mather and Mews.—Mather stands in the same position as the defendant, R. R. Hodgson. He did not sign any receipts for the moneys to which the action relates. Mews was a director in the years 1881, 1882, and 1883. In April, 1883, he was re-elected for three years; but in September 1883, before the earliest of the transactions to which the action relates, he gave notice to the secretary that he should not act, and he never attended a meeting of the board after he gave that notice; and during the period in question he never signed any receipts. As he had served for three years, he could not be compelled to act as director any longer.

H. T. KEMP, for the defendants James Hodgson, Millstone, and Redfearn.—These defendants were all elected after the resolution as to deposits above 50*l*., and none of them signed any receipt for any of the moneys in question in this action.

LAWSON WALTON, Q.C., and E. SILVESTER, for the plaintiffs.—As to the construction of Section 43 the society itself cannot receive money; it must be received by some person authorised to receive it on their behalf. Bankers of the society would stand in exactly the same position as the secretary; they would receive money only by the authority of the board of directors. It is argued that the society can receive only money which is applied for its benefit. No such distinction is to be found in Section 43. The fact of receipt cannot depend upon the subsequent application of the money, otherwise the directors would be responsible only for moneys which are applied for the benefit of the society. It is argued that only those directors are responsible who actually receive the money; but directors never actually receive money. It is said that only those directors are responsible who are present at a meeting of the board at which the receipt of money is authorised. This would be to punish those directors who do their duty, and to let off those who do not. If this is what was intended by Section 43, words have been inserted in it limiting the liability, instead of imposing it upon the directors collectively. As to the suggestion that the secretary never had any intention of receiving the money for the society, but always intended to appropriate it to his own use when he received it, he received it in pursuance of the authority which had been conferred on him, and his subsequent misapplication of it cannot alter the nature of the receipt. The moment the money was received by him it was in the hands of the board. They could only receive it through an agent, and they had, as they were entitled to do, appointed him their agent to receive it.

Sir H. DAVEY, Q.C., in reply.

Lord HALSBURY, L. C.—I am of opinion that the judgment should be affirmed against all the defendants.

The society, out of whose proceedings the question before us arises, was formed for the purpose of obtaining, by the principle of co-operative action, houses or pieces of land by persons who subscribe to the society. The rules of the society are directed to that object, and proper safeguards and checks are provided. It was part of the business of the society as constituted to receive money as a deposit on loan; but in respect of that part of their business they do not seem to have made any particular regulations, nor was any proper machinery provided as there had been with regard to the other part of the business. The result is that instead of looking to rules, we are obliged to infer what was the course authorised by the governing body in respect of such deposits by looking at the practice which was adopted. From the earliest period of the existence of the society to the end, there appears to be no machinery provided for the receipt of deposits, and no provision in respect of what was to become of the money between the time of its receipt by some one on behalf of the society, and the acknowledgment of its receipt by the directors, and no express provision as to its destination after it had been received. In fact, we know that Collison received the deposits; that he from time to time procured that receipts should be given, and that he took into his own hands the payment of interest. I do not stop to inquire how he did this, because there is no rule directly bearing on the matter; and what he was bound to do was to obey all the directions of the board of directors. From the general course of business, and from the resolution of the board as to the limit of 50*l.*, it is to be inferred that whatever might be the form of application, and whatever was to be done with the money when accepted by the board, Collison was to receive and manage the deposits. There seems, so far as I see, no express obligation on Collison to pay the deposits into a bank. Under these circumstances, it is in the first place desirable to see, assuming the case of a proper and regular transaction not in excess of the borrowing powers of the society, whether the receipt of the deposits by Collison would be a receipt by the society. He received such moneys by the authority of the society, and whether they were in his pocket or in the till, I do not see why it was not as valid a receipt by the society as if the moneys were in the hands of its bankers. I can draw no distinction between the two cases. The society had by its practice and course of business made receipt by Collison the ordinary mode of receipt, and the moment the lender paid Collison the money upon the contract which the society had authorised to be made on its behalf the transaction would be complete as between the lender and the society, who would be liable thereupon to repay the money, and to pay the interest due on it. The objection now raised is that the amount advanced to the society was beyond that which it had authority to receive, and that, therefore, the society could not receive it. The Legislature regarded it as a hardship that a person who had no knowledge, and no means of knowledge, as to whether the borrowing powers of the society had been exhausted, should not be repaid his advance in such a case, and, in view of that hardship, Section 43 of the Building Societies Act, 1874, was enacted; and I am prepared to decide this case simply on the construction of this section.

The section deals with the case of the receipt, by a society constituted under the Act, of loans or deposits in excess of the limits prescribed by the Act, and purports to make the governing body personally liable for moneys so received. Let us see if the language used is to be limited, as contended for by the appellants. It is said that, because the section speaks of the receipt by the directors or committee of management (which, I take it, is an alternative in view of the fact that some societies have a board of directors and others a committee of management) this must be confined to such of the governing body as have in their individual capacity received the deposits. The first answer to this suggestion is that such a narrow construction would render the section inoperative. Directors do not receive in their individual capacity, they can only receive deposits through the society's ordinary channels of receipts, and they would receive excess loans or deposits in the same manner as others, in this case by the person who was authorised to receive on their behalf.

The second observation which arises is, that if the construction contended for is to be placed on the section, one would expect to find words limiting its application to the governing body, "or such one or more of them as shall have received such loans or deposits." No such words are there, and, although the liability is personal, the thing done is done on the authority of the governing body, and it is reasonable that the Legislature should say that each member of the governing body should be liable for the Act which that governing body had wrongfully permitted to be done. The thing contemplated is that the members of the governing body, either themselves and with knowledge, or by giving authority to others and without knowledge, have enabled that to be done which it was their duty as the governing body to prevent.

Without going through the particular parts of the evidence applicable to each director, it is sufficient to say that each and all of them permitted Collison to have full and complete control, and made him their agent in doing that which the Legislature has said should not be done, namely, receive loans in excess of the borrowing powers of the society. The lenders have no right against the society, but the Legislature intended that those who acted on the board should be personally liable for that which, if it had been an act within the authority of the society, would have been binding on the society. In this view no distinction can be drawn between one director and another, and whether the defendant Fisher was a trustee or not is immaterial, because it is manifest he was a director, and comes within the same category as the other directors. Various questions have been raised and gone into as to the knowledge or the absence of knowledge of the different directors, but in the view we take it is immaterial to go into such questions. All that it is necessary to establish is the fact of the authority by the board to Collison to receive deposits, and that each defendant was a member of the board at the time the deposits were received, and upon proof of these facts and that the deposits received were in excess of the borrowing powers of the society, the Act makes each of the defendants responsible.

The decision of the learned judge will be affirmed.

Lord ESHER, M. R.—In this case it is necessary to determine what are the true facts with regard to these deposits, and what effect the statute has on the liability sought to be enforced against the defendants. The society, the primary purpose of which was to act as a building society, had a limited power to receive money by way of deposit on loans. The persons who were to negotiate such loans with the lenders were the directors of the society. In the case of directors, if there were no provision for a quorum, all would have to be present and act together; but if there is provision for a quorum, the act of those present and forming the quorum is the act of the governing body. It was for the directors to arrange whether the society would borrow, and if so, they would further have to arrange how they would borrow, and as to the receipt of the money. As to this, there was no rule, and the board would have to determine how the money should be received. There can be no doubt that they determined that Collison should receive the deposits, and he did so by their authority, and the receipt by him was a receipt by the directors; and as they received it for the society, it amounted to a receipt by the society; so that, unless there had been a restriction on the borrowing powers of the society, we should be obliged to say that the society had received these deposits. But then these deposits were in excess of the borrowing powers of the society; and so the society is not bound, but by the Act other persons are made liable. Those persons are the directors, who are personally liable; just as any member of a partnership is liable for the debts of his firm, though he has rights over against his partners. Each member of the body is personally liable; that is what the learned judge has held, and I entirely agree with him. The board delegated powers to Collison; and I desire to say that in my view, even if knowledge of that delegation were not brought home to one of them, he would still be liable if the delegation was made by a sufficient quorum of directors; but if more is required, it is in this case idle to argue that any of the defendants had no knowledge of it. All the defendants defendants are therefore liable, and the judgment appealed against must be affirmed.

FRY, L. J.—The words of the last clause of the 43rd section of the Building Societies Act, 1874, begin with a statement of the event or contingency upon which the provisions of the section are to come into operation. The words are, "if any society under this Act receives loans or deposits in excess of the limits prescribed by this Act." These words create this difficulty, that a society whose powers to receive deposits is limited by the Act cannot as such receive money in excess of its borrowing powers. The meaning to be attached to this sentence must therefore be, that if money is received by somebody under such circumstances, that but for the limitation it would have been properly received by the society, then the section is to come into operation, provided the money so borrowed be, in point of fact, in excess of the limits. The same observation applies to the operative part of the section, "the directors or committee of management of such society receiving such loans or deposits on its behalf." The directors cannot receive money on behalf of the society in excess of its borrowing powers, and this, therefore, refers to directors who would have been recipients of money for the society if such receipt had been within the prescribed limits.

This being so, two inquiries on matters of fact seem to me to arise: first, whether the money in question would have been money received by the society if it had not been restricted by the limits imposed on its borrowing powers; and, secondly, a like question with regard to the board of directors. As to the first of these questions, the rules of the society provide that the board shall have power to borrow such sums of money as shall be from time to time required for the purpose of the society, and to give receipts for the same; and such receipts are to be in the name of the society, and are to be signed by two of the directors, and countersigned by the secretary. Now, that course was pursued. The board issued advertisements, inviting persons to lend money to the society, and the board allowed Collison's to be the sole hand to receive the deposits that might be forthcoming in answer to such advertisements, and two directors from time to time signed the formal receipts, which were countersigned by Collison. Everything, therefore, was regular, except the excess of the moneys received over the limits prescribed by the Act. So far, then, the contingency provided for in the section is shown to have happened.

Then as to the second inquiry. Have we before us directors who, within the meaning of the Act, have received this money on behalf of the society? It is to be observed that the section assumes that, whenever a society has received money in excess of its borrowing powers, there are directors or a committee of management who have received it on its behalf. These words are not part of the contingency mentioned in the section, but are part of the operative clause making them liable. Nevertheless it is, I think, obvious that unless the directors can be said, within the meaning of the Act, to have received the money, they could not be made liable, because they would not answer the description of the persons referred to in that part of the section.

Has this money been so received as that, if it had been within the borrowing powers, the lender was assured by the whole board of directors that the money had been received by the board? In regard to that question, I should apply the same rule as in the first case. The rules provide that the board may borrow, the board may give receipts, and those receipts are to be given by the signature of two of the members of the board. Everything prescribed by the rules was, so far as the lender knew, done by the board of directors in this case; and if they chose to delegate their duties, and to allow the secretary to receive the deposits and the receipts to be given in the form prescribed by the rules, so that as between the society and the lender, the lender has done everything which he can do, then in my opinion the result must be that the directors were persons who had received this money on behalf of the society. Therefore, I think the two questions of fact must be answered in the affirmative, this was money received by the society, this was money received by the directors. In that case the directors are personally liable. Therefore the judgment must be affirmed.

Bradbury v. Wild.—(1892 B. 17.)

Building Society—Advanced Member—Mortgage—Proviso for Redemption—Alteration of Rules after Date of Mortgage—Contract of Mortgage, and Contract of Membership—Building Societies Act (6 & 7 Will. IV. c. 32).

An advanced member of a building society executed a mortgage to the society, with a proviso for redemption on the payment of "the several sums, whether consisting of monthly subscriptions, fines, interest, or other payments which, under the constitution of the said society and the rules and regulations thereof," ought to be paid in respect of his shares, and a covenant for payment to the same effect. At the time of the mortgage the rules of the society did not provide for any contribution by advanced members to losses of the society, but subsequently thereto the rules were duly altered by empowering the directors to make a levy on members of a contribution to losses; and under the rules so altered a levy was made. The mortgagor claimed to be entitled to redeem without paying any part of such levy.

Held, that although the mortgage did not refer to the rules "for the time being," yet the mortgagor, by virtue of his contract, which was one of mortgage and membership combined, was bound by the altered rules, and was therefore not entitled to redeem except upon payment of his proportion of the levy. Wilson v. Miles Platting Building Society (1), and Rosenberg v. Northumberland Building Society (2), considered and applied.—Adjourned summons.

The Clarendon Arms Benefit Building Society (of which the defendants were the present trustees) was established in the year 1871, and was not incorporated under the Building Societies Act, 1874.

Among the rules of the society, which were certified under 6 & 7 Will. IV., c. 32, were the following:—

"Rule 51 (Withdrawals).—Any member who has not received any advance on his or her share or shares may, upon giving one lunar month's previous notice in writing to the secretary, within the first year from the date of his or her subscribing for such share or shares to be withdrawn, receive back the net money by him or her subscribed, without interest; and after the expiration of the first year any such member, upon giving notice as aforesaid, shall be entitled to withdraw his or her share or shares, with interest thereon, after the rate of five pounds per annum, compound interest, commencing from the end of the first year of his or her subscribing for such share or shares as aforesaid, less one-twentieth part of such interest, and the sum of one shilling for each share, half and quarter-shares, in proportion. The directors shall have full power, from time to time, to limit the number of shares to be withdrawn in any one month. All applications for advances shall have priority over notices of withdrawals; and if more than one member give notice, they shall be entitled to be paid in rotation, according to priority of notice. No member shall be entitled to receive back his or her subscription money and interest until all fines and forfeitures due from such member at the time he or she shall give notice to withdraw be paid, and if not paid shall be deducted from such member's money and interest. All fines to cease after notice given as aforesaid.

"52 (Power to redeem).—If any member who shall have executed a mortgage to the society shall be desirous of paying off and redeeming the same, same, such member may do so after the expiration of fourteen days from the service upon the secretary of a notice in writing, signed by such member, of his or her intention so to do, by paying to the treasurer, in one sum, the whole of the money that may be due from him or her to the said society, subject to the same terms as contained or mentioned in Rule 51.

"61 (New rules).—The society shall have, from time to time, the power of making new rules, and of amending any of the rules, so as such new rules or amendments be made in accordance with 10 Geo. IV., c. 56, s. 9, and duly certified."

The plaintiff became a member of the society in June 1876, and on the 4th of September 1876 had an advance of 120*l.* from the society in respect of two shares, and executed to the existing trustees of the society a mortgage, bearing date on that day, of certain freehold property belonging to the plaintiff as security for the sum so advanced, and further advances, not exceeding 2,500*l.* The mortgage deed contained a proviso for redemption, if the mortgagor should "from time to time duly pay the yearly rent to which the premises are liable, and also the several sums, whether consisting of monthly subscriptions, fines, interest, or other payments, which, under the constitution of the said society, and the rules and regulations thereof, ought to be . . . paid in respect of the share or shares, by virtue of which money is now or shall be hereafter advanced to him by the trustees of the said society," and a covenant by the mortgagor that he would "duly pay and perform the rent and covenants aforesaid, and also will duly pay the several sums which, under the constitution of the said society, and the rules and regulations thereof, and the provisions herein contained, ought to be paid by him or them."

Further advances were, from time to time, made to the Plaintiff, amounting in all to 2,490*l.*, in respect of 41½ shares.

Subsequently to the execution of the mortgage, the rules of the society were altered, and the alterations so made were duly certified by the Registrar on the 26th of October, 1883. Rules 51 and 52 were altered as follows: "(Rule 51). Omit the words 'compound interest.' Rescind the portion commencing with the words, 'And if more than one member give notice, and ending with the words, 'All fines to cease after notice given as aforesaid,' and substitute the following: 'Before any withdrawals can be made, if it shall appear that the profits of the society shall, from any cause, not be sufficient to meet the interest credited, or to be credited to the shareholders as aforesaid, or if a loss shall have arisen, or be likely to arise, through any property or properties which the society holds as mortgagees, which the contingent fund is insufficient to make good, the directors shall have power to direct a levy of such sum, on, or from any unadvanced share or shares, hereafter to be paid in advance, as will cover all deficiency. Withdrawals shall be paid in rotation, according to priority of notice, except in the case of the decease of a member, when payment shall be made as soon as possible after expiration of the notice of withdrawal, provided all shares or loans, in respect of which notice for any advance or repayment has been received by the society, shall have been advanced or paid off. Shares in course of withdrawal shall be subject to such deductions as the directors may require to meet any losses of the society.' Rule 52. Add to the end of Rule 52 the words 'as amended.'"

On the 9th of January 1885, the directors of the society resolved, "that a levy of 1*s.* 1½*d.* in the pound sterling be made on all shares at present in the society withdrawn or expiring."

On the 9th of December 1889, the Plaintiff duly gave notice of his intention to pay off his mortgage, and the notice expired on the 22nd of December 1889. The society furnished an account to the Plaintiff, showing a balance due from him of 293*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.*, crediting him (inter alia) with 450*l.* 4*s.* 11*d.* for profits due to him, and debiting him with a sum of 58*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, as the proportion due from him in respect of his shares under the levy of January 1885, and with certain other and smaller sums which, he contended, he was not liable to pay.

The Plaintiff then tendered to the society, in respect of the balance due from him, a sum of money which was insufficent if the 58*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* was payable by him, and the society declined to accept such tender.

This was an originating summons by the Plaintiff asking for an order for redemption redemption of the premises comprised in the mortgage, and reconveyance thereof to the Plaintiff, and for usual accounts and inquiries, having regard to the tender, and that directions might be given that the Defendants were not entitled to debit the Plaintiff with the levy of 58*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*

RENSHAW, Q.C., and ROBY, for the Plaintiff :—

First.—The altered rules being subsequent to the Plaintiff's mortgage, are not binding on him as mortgagor : See In re Norwich and Norfolk Provident Permanent Benefit Building Society (1), where, notwithstanding that the mortgages referred to the rules of the society "for the time being," the advanced members were held entitled to redeem on the footing of the rules in force at the date of their respective contracts. There the new rules were to apply to all the members, past as well as future, so far as the rules of law and equity would permit, and it was held that those members whose contracts would be substantially varied by the new rules were excluded from their operation. In Wilson v. Miles Platting Building Society (2), and Rosenberg v. Northumberland Building Society (3), the Court of Appeal held that the advanced members were bound by the altered rules ; but that was because the mortgages contained a reference to the rules "for the time being," and the Court in both cases relied on that circumstance. Here there are no such words ; but the reference is simply to sums which ought to be paid "under the constitution of the said society, and the rules and regulations thereof," i.e. the rules and regulations in force at the date of the mortgage contract. The constitution of the society is the same thing as the rules and regulations. Under 6 & 7, Will. IV., c 32, by the mere constitution of a building society, nothing becomes payable independently of the rules and regulations. The new rules being out of the way, the Plaintiff, as an advanced member, is not liable to contribute to losses of the society ; Tosh v. North British Building Society (4) ; Brownlie v. Russell (5) ; Buckle v. Lordonny (6) ; Bailes v. Sunderland Equitable Industrial Society (7).

Secondly.—Assuming that the new rules are binding on the Plaintiff, his case is not within them. Rule 51, as altered, authorizes a levy only on "any unadvanced share or shares, hereafter to be paid in advance ;" and before the new rules come into force he had been advanced as to all his shares. The resolution of the 9th of January 1885, was ultra vires so far as it went beyond the terms of Rule 51 as altered ; and, moreover, it extends only to shares "withdrawn or expiring," and the Plaintiffs shares are neither the one nor the other.

Thirdly.—In point of fact, there never has been a loss of the kind indicated in rule 51 as indicated, i.e., a loss "arisen," or "likely to arise, through any property or properties which the society holds as mortgages. There is nothing to show that it was anticipated in 1885 that there would be such a loss. On the contrary, the balance sheets of the society showed a profit. It was, therefore, not in the power of the directors to make the levy.

HOPKINSON, Q.C., and O. L. CLARE, for the Defendants. The contract of the Plaintiff with the society was not merely one of mortgage ; it was also a contract of membership, and as such, according to the language of Lord Justice Fry, in Rosenberg v. Northumberland Building Society (8), carried in gremio the right of the society to alter the rules from time to time. The normal contract between an advanced member and the society is, that he shall pay a series of instalments in due course, and if he wishes to discontinue such payment before the contract arrives at maturity, he can only do so under some rule permitting him to withdraw. Wurtzburg on Building Societies (9). This view of the relation between the parties is recognised by Section 1 of 6 & 7 Will. IV., c. 32, which refers to the rules "then in force," i.e., at the time of withdrawal. At the time when the Plaintiff withdrew, or gave notice to redeem, which, by rule 52, is placed on the same footing as withdrawal, rule 51 as altered was the rule in force. In re Norwich and Norfolk Provident Permanent Permanent Benefit Building Society (3), is distinguishable, because, as pointed out by Lord Justice Cotton in Wilson v. Miles Platting Building Society, and Rosenberg v. Northumberland Building Society the words "for the time being" occurred; but the judgments of Lord Justice Cotton in the former, and Lord Justice Fry in the latter case, show plainly that they would have come to the same conclusion if those words had not been there.

The Plaintiff being in the position of a withdrawing member, rule 51, as altered, is clearly applicable to him; for it provides that "shares in course of withdrawal shall be subject to such deductions as the directors may require to meet any losses." Moreover, the words "hereafter to be paid in advance" in that rule ought to be construed as referring to payment in advance of maturity; so read, the rule is intelligible and in conformity with the Act of Parliament.

The loss arises from the deficiency of the company's securities within the meaning of rule 51. It does not appear by the balance sheet, because it is impossible for the directors to write off the anticipated loss, and according to the way in which the accounts of these societies are kept, the full amounts owing on mortgages are necessarily shown on one side of the account, and the assets may then appear to be in excess of liabilities, although it is known to all that there must, in fact, be a loss. The Plaintiff has received his share of profits calculated on this basis, and it is only fair that he should also bear his share of the estimated loss.

They referred, also, to Walton v. Edge (2), In re West Riding of Yorkshire Permanent Benefit Building Society (3).

ROBY, in reply.—The words "shares in course of withdrawal," in rule 51, refer to shares which were in course of withdrawal at the time when those rules were passed, and therefore do not apply to the Plaintiff. The suggestive construction of the words "hereafter to be paid in advance" is inadmissible, for it in effect gives two totally different meanings to the word "advance" occurring in the same clause. The altered rule 51 only extends to members who were unadvanced at the time when that rule was passed, and therefore does not affect the Plaintiff. To make advance members bear losses, the rules must be specific and clear; Durham and Northumberland Building Society v. Davidson (4); In re Britannia Building Society (5).

KEKEWICH, J.—The question to be decided in this case arises on a mortgage contract of one Samuel Bradbury, who, having some property, was minded to obtain an advance, and who, therefore, applied to the Clarendon Arms Building Society, part of whose business it is to advance money on property of that kind. Without going fully into the matter, that which is within the experience of all men in or outside the court familiar with such societies took place. The society commenced negotiations by saying, or at all events it was necessarily implied in the commencement of the negotiations, that the borrower should become a member of the society, and that having become a member, he should then be an advanced member; in other words, that no advance would be made to him except on his taking certain shares in the society, in respect of which, on giving proper security, he would be entitled to certain advantages; and the mortgage deed is framed on that footing, in a form which is concise and consistent, having regard to our knowledge of such transactions. The mortgage does not recite that he is a member; he is not described in the recitals in any way as a member. The deed commences as though it were a mere contract between a mortgagor and mortgagees, and as though it had nothing to do with the society at all, except that the mortgagees are described as the trustees of the building society; but when the mere conveyance to the mortgagees is passed, and we come to those provisions which declare what the equity of redemption is, then it is at once seen how the membership comes in. There is a proviso for redemption on his paying the yearly rent, "and also the several sums, whether consisting of monthly subscriptions, fines, interest, or other payments which, under the constitution of the said society, and the rules and regulations thereof, ought to be paid in respect of the share or shares by virtue virtue of which money is now or shall be hereafter advanced to him by the trustees of the said society." Those are the terms of redemption, and in the covenants which follow there is one by the mortgagor "that he will pay the several sums which, under the constitution of the said society, and the rules and regulations thereof, and the provisions herein contained, ought to be paid by him or them." So that we have clearly a contract of a very common and yet of a special character, that is to say, it is not an ordinary mortgage contract. It is not an ordinary contract of a member with a building society, but it is an amalgamation of these two: a contract by a member of a building society who is to receive an advance in respect of his membership and of his conveyance to the society of his property. I confess that, independently of any authorities, I should have expected to find that the rules referred to meant those which bind him as a member, and that if there were, as in fact there is, a power on behalf of the society, subject to certain restrictions, to vary these rules from time to time, the varied rules would still be binding on him for the purposes of this contract, because it is an essential term of it that he enters into it as a member of the society, and of that opinion was Lord Justice Cotton in the Miles Platting Case. He says (1): "One would expect, therefore, if the new rules were properly made, having regard to the laws regulating the society and to the original rules, that those new rules would regulate his position in regard to the security, it being, as was rightly contended for the appellant, not an ordinary mortgage to secure the payment in terms of a definite sum of money due and payable by the mortgagor to the society, but to secure the due payment by him of the periodical payments and fines, and any other moneys which he was bound to pay as a member of the society." That passage seems to me to indicate what would be the proper limit of the obligation of the new rules. New rules which alter the contract would not be binding on him. New rules inconsistent with the constitution of the society of which he was a member would not, or might not, be binding on him, but rules which are concerned with the periodical payments of fines or any other sums are rules which, so far from altering or being inconsistent with the contract, seem to me to be according to the contract. There, again, I have the authority of Lord Justice Cotton in the same case (2): "It is true that those rules may throw a heavier burden on the plaintiff, by requiring him to pay a larger sum for the redemption of the mortgage than the old rules did, but that is not an alteration of his contract. His contract, as I read it, was that he would pay not merely what the then existing rules required, it is not confined to that, but whatever the rules of the society for the time being might require him to pay as a member. To say that the new rules do not apply would, in my opinion, be to alter the contract." I will return to that case directly. I have only read these passages of Lord Justice Cotton's judgment to show that his view was, as mine certainly is, that you would expect in such a contract that the obligation of the new rules properly made would be thrown on the members, provided, of course, that the rules were fairly within what might be in the contemplation of the parties, and, therefore, not inconsistent with the contract or against the constitution of the society.

In this case, what is complained of is, a levy for losses, and it is conceded on the part of the society that under the old rules (that is, those which were in existence when the mortgage was made) there was no power to make such levy; they could not deduct this sum of 58 l. 15 s. 2 d. from the sums payable to the member, because there was no power in the rules to make that levy against losses. The altered rules, it is said, gave this power. The alteration in question is contained in Rule 51. That the power is there given as regards withdrawing members, I think cannot be questioned. The only possible comment on that is that which was made by Mr. Roby, when he urged that the provision that "shares in course of withdrawal should be subject to such deductions as the directors might require to make good any losses of the society" referred only to shares which, on the 5th of October 1883, the date of the new rules, were in course of withdrawal. It is a possible construction, but it does not to my mind seem a reasonable construction. I think it must mean shares which are in course of withdrawal from time to time when it becomes becomes necessary to apply this rule. Withdrawn shares of course would not be affected by it. That would be entirely wrong, and probably ultra vires the statute ; at any rate, it would be against all sense to say that persons who had ceased to be members and who were perfect strangers to the society, who had gone away and severed their connection by withdrawal, should be still subject to losses, and they could not be subject to deductions because there was nothing remaining of theirs from which deductions could be made. So there is a class of past members who could not be affected. Then, as to shares about which no proposals for withdrawals have been made, there is no occasion to make any deduction from them. The necessity does not arise until the withdrawal is in negociation, and directly you have an application for withdrawal, and directly that is set on foot, then immediately the necessity for making a deduction arises in order that the account may be properly taken between the society and the withdrawing member ; and that gives a rational and easy sense to the words "shares in course of withdrawal." Far be it from me to say that the draftsman of these rules used the happiest expression for doing what he intended. I think he has succeeded in confusing us all ; but when we look at the language and have the advantage of argument, I think the words cannot well mean anything other than I have stated.

The case of the mortgagor does not end there, because it is said that he is not a withdrawing member. In one sense he is not. He does mean to withdraw, that is part of his contention, but he is not in the proper sense of that clause a withdrawing member ; and that is the society's own view, because they have another rule, the following one, No. 52, which deals with the power of redeeming. It is there as it was with this exception, and it is an important one, that Rule 51, which is mentioned in the original rules, is now, according to the altered rules, to be read as Rule 51, as amended. The result of Rule 52 is that, as far as possible, regulations affecting withdrawals shall be applied to cases of redemption, and a member who is redeeming, whether he be withdrawing or not, must have his account taken as between himself and the society on the same basis as the withdrawing member, according to Rule 51 as amended.

I will consider directly whether that is binding upon him ; but that seems to me to be a tolerably clear meaning. We do not find any difficulty there in the result that this is a member withdrawing on the terms of redemption, or a combination of redemption and withdrawing, and, therefore, assuming the rules to be binding on him, he must submit to what is provided for by Rule 51, as amended, and to such deduction as the directors may require to meet any losses of the society. Of course he is entitled to say that that must be properly done. Of course he is entitled to say that all the rules must be strictly observed, and that there must not be too large a sum deducted, and if there is anything like a suggestion of want of bonâ fides, of course he would be at liberty to examine that closely. But in this case there is nothing of that kind. The directors have kept their accounts in an intelligible way, at any rate ; that is, they have treated all the moneys due on the different properties as well secured. They have treated that as an asset worth 20*s.* in the pound throughout ; but they know, or think they know, for it is only a matter of estimate, that some of these securities are deficient and will not eventually realise the full amount. Accordingly they have estimated the loss. They have put that estimated amount on the other side of the account and distributed it between the different members in proportion to their shares, the result being that this gentleman in respect of his 41½ shares has debited to him a loss of 58 l. 15 s. 2 d. If he does not pay that, and if the estimated amount proves to be correct, as I must assume it will, the result will be that the 58 l. 15 s. 2 d. will be thrown on all the other members and he will bear no part of it.

I repeat that one would expect to find that, being a member, and having all the advantages of membership, he would be made liable as much as any other member, notwithstanding that he happened to be an advanced member. That really depends on an examination of these two cases of Rosenberg v. Northumberland Building Society (1), and Wilson v. Miles Platting Building Society (2), to which I have already referred, and in each of these cases the words words "for the time being" occur, and I must read Lord Justice Cotton's judgment (and he alone gave judgment in the Miles Platting Case) with reference to rules of that kind, particularly in the second passage which I read. The first is rather more general. It is impossible to say that the Lord Justice would have made those remarks if he had had rules before him of a different character; but the general principle with which he commences in the passage which I first read, points to rules either having or not having the words "for the time being." The precise point came again before the court in the other case, that is, in Rosenberg's case. It was tried before Mr. Justice Day, in the first instance, without a jury, and he gave judgment for the mortgagor, and it was taken from him to the Court of Appeal. They reversed the learned judge on the ground of the decision in the Miles Platting case, which was not cited to Mr. Justice Day. That is not unimportant, because we know that Mr. Justice Day came to a conclusion unfettered by authority adverse to that which is insisted on by the society here as the right conclusion. But then it came before the Court of Appeal, and was argued at length, and judgment was given by all three of the learned judges present, that is, Lord Esher, Lord Justice Bowen, and Lord Justice Fry. Lord Esher took great pains to rest his decision entirely on the Miles Platting Case (1), and says so in plain language, meaning, I take it, precisely what he says: "I need not stay to inquire whether, apart from that decision, I should have been of the same opinion for the reasons there given." I take it that Lord Esher did not intend to intimate what his opinion, apart from authority, was; that he meant loyally to follow a decision which was binding on him, and that he does not intend his judgment to be the slightest guide to other judges, except saying that they are bound, of course, by the decision. Lord Justice Bowen really comes to the same decision, exactly; but Lord Justice Fry departed from that course, and he gave a judgment which certainly makes me think that he would not only have decided the Miles Platting Case, as it was decided, on the words then before the court, but would have gone beyond that and have decided that the member was bound by the altered rules, even without the words "for the time being." He cites the Miles Platting Case, and he uses the words, "rules for the time being," but he also uses this language (2): "It is obvious that the position of a mortgagor in the case of a mortgage to a building society, is by no means the same as that of an ordinary mortgagor, and that his rights must be more or less affected by the contract of membership, as well as by the contract of mortgage. It is equally apparent, I think, that the contract of membership carries in gremio the right on the part of the society to alter the rules from time to time. That right is given by Statute." Then there is another passage a little way further down, in which he says, "I think that point is well worthy of consideration, and it probably was taken into consideration by the court in Wilson v. Miles Platting Building Society. In any case we are bound by that decision, and it appears to me to govern the present case." I cannot say that the Lord Justice decided the point which is before me, but he has given a strong indication of what he would have decided, and I have already said that I gather that the Lord Justice Cotton's mind tended in the same direction. I cannot say more. My mind certainly goes very much in the same direction. It seems to me that a member seeking an advance on the terms of his observing the rules of the society, and making a contract which, although one of mortgage, is also one of membership, must be held bound by the rules from time to time made, so long as they are consistent with his contract. Alterations may vary the sum which he has to pay, and they may possibly vary his obligations in other respects, as to the time of payment, and so forth; but so long as they are consistent with his contract, and also consistent with the constitution of the society, it seems to me that a member of a building society must be just as much bound by a later rule whether he is or is not an advanced member. There is one possible answer to that which occurs to me, and which may be worth consideration; as a member, he is certainly bound by the later rules. There is statutory power to alter them, and he is bound by the statutory majority; but it may be argued, and that really is the substance of the argument, that though bound as a member he is

(1) 22 Q. B. D., 381, n. (2) 22 Q. B. D., 380.

is not bound as a mortgagor, and that the mortgage contract to that extent is separable from the membership contract. It seems to me that that is not so, and that the way Lord Justice Fry puts it is the right one : that the two things are intertwined so that you cannot separate the contract of membership from the contract of mortgage. It is an extremely important point with regard to these building societies, but that is my opinion, and, that being so, this gentleman must, in taking the account for the purpose of redemption, submit to that which has been honestly done by the directors in the exercise of their powers, and submit to a deduction from the amount payable by way of profits of this 58*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, and an account must be taken on that footing.

Statutes, vol. xvii. pp. 209, 215]—Order of Lord Chancellor of the 29th of November 1890—County Court Rules, 1892, r. 146.

There is no power to transfer the winding-up of a company to a Court which has been excluded by the Lord Chancellor from having jurisdiction, under the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, to wind-up such company :—

Semble, that, notwithstanding Rule 146 of the County Court Rules, 1892, there is no power to transfer from the City of London Court, or any County Court, to the High Court, the winding-up of a society registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874.

In re London and Suburban Bank (1) approved.

On the 4th of October 1892, an order was made by Mr. Commissioner Kerr, in the City of London Court, for the winding-up by that Court of the Liberator Permanent Benefit Building Society, which was a society registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 42).

Under the County Court Rules of 1892, Rule 146, and the order of the Board of Trade of the 16th of September 1892, Mr. C. J. Stewart was the Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator of the Liberator Society.

On the 9th of November 1892, an order was made in the High Court of Justice, by Mr. Justice Vaughan Williams, to wind up the Real Estates Company, Limited, and thereupon Mr. C. J. Stewart was Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator of this company, under the order of the Board of Trade of the 1st of January 1891.

The affairs of the society and the company were intimately connected with each other, and on the 14th of November 1892 Mr. Stewart, as Official Receiver and Provisional Liquidator of the Real Estates Company, by the direction of Mr. Commissioner Kerr, applied by ex parte summons that the winding-up proceedings in the matter of the Real Estates Company might be transferred to the City of London Court.

This summons was adjourned into Court, and was heard before Mr. Justice Vaughan Williams on the 19th of November 1892.

THEOBALD, in support of the summons :—Great inconvenience is caused by the two liquidations being in different Courts. The Real Estates Company was really an alias of the Liberator Society, and is indebted to it in a large amount.

The power to transfer is given by Section 3 of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890.

BUCKLEY, Q.C. and WHINNEY, for mortgagees of the Real Estates Company :—Counsel for the mortgagees can scarcely oppose the application for transfer ; but the Court may allow them to state some objections which exist in respect of the proposed transfer.

Under Rule 8 of 1890 the Judge may, "for good cause shown," order the winding-up proceedings to be transferred from the High Court to another Court. This shows that the order will not be made as a matter of course. It was not without reason that Section 1, sub-s. 2 of the Act of 1890 provided, "That where the amount of capital paid up, or credited as paid up, exceeded 10,000*l.*, the petition to wind-up the company should be presented to the High Court." Here the figures are very large, and, no doubt the affairs of both companies are so mixed up, that it would be advisable to bring both liquidations before the same tribunal. But this should be effected, not by sending this liquidation to the City of London Court, but by bringing the liquidation of the Liberator Society to this Court.

By Rule 146 of the County Court Rules, 1892, the provisions of the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, and the Rules made thereunder, so far as they relate to winding-up, shall apply to the winding-up of societies registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874, and the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1876; and the winding-up of any such societies shall be conducted in all respects as if such societies were companies registered under any of the said Companies Acts.

This rule seems to extend the provisions of the Act of 1890, with reference to transferring liquidations, to the case of a registered building society.

3rd December 1892, VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J.—This is a summons in the matter of the Real Estates Company, and it asks that all further proceedings in the liquidation of that company may be transferred to the City of London Court.

I should be extremely anxious, if I had the power, to make the order asked for by the summons, because I am informed that the company is very intimately connected with the Liberator Society, which is being wound-up in the City of London Court, and it seems quite plain that the desirable thing to do would be to have the winding-up of this company conducted by the same authority that is winding-up the Liberator Society, which is the principal matter, this company being merely subsidiary to the Liberator Society.

I have, however, arrived at the conclusion that I have no power to make the transfer which I am asked to make.

The power to transfer winding-up proceedings is given by Section 3 of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890. That section says that, "the winding-up of a company, or any proceedings therein, may at any time and at any stage, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto, be transferred from one court to another court, or may be retained in the court in which the proceedings were commenced, although it may not be the court in which the proceedings ought to have been commenced." Now, in my judgment, the words "another court," in that section must necessarily mean a court having jurisdiction under the Act to wind-up, and, in my judgment, I have no power to transfer the winding-up of any company to the City of London Court unless that court has jurisdiction to wind-up the company. If I did so, the City of London Court would have no jurisdiction to continue the winding-up, and when the matter was transferred there the transfer would be futile.

That the City of London Court would have no jurisdiction to wind-up this company seems plain, the matter being governed by the provisions to which I will presently refer.

Section 1, Sub-section 5, of the Act of 1890, enacts as follows: "The Lord Chancellor may by order exclude a County Court from having jurisdiction under this Act, and for the purposes of such jurisdiction may attach its district, or any part thereof, to the High Court or to any other county court, and may revoke or vary any such order. In exercising his powers under this section the Lord Chancellor shall provide that a county court shall not have jurisdiction under this Act unless it has for the time being jurisdiction in bankruptcy." An order was made by the Lord Chancellor under Section 1, Sub-section 5, of the Act of 1890, on the 29th of November 1890, and that order says that, "a county court, which at the time of the coming into operation of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, is excluded from having jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be excluded from having jurisdiction under the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, until until further order, and the district of any such county court shall for the purposes of jurisdiction under the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, be attached until further order to the court to which that district is attached at the time of the coming into operation of this Act, for the purposes of jurisdiction in bankruptcy." That being so, the question then comes to be, whether or not the City of London Court had, at the time of the coming into operation of the Act of 1890, jurisdiction in bankruptcy.

Section 96 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, provides, that "The London bankruptcy district shall, for the purposes of this Act, comprise the City of London and the liberties thereof, and all such parts of the metropolis and other places as are situated within the district of any county court described as a metropolitan county court in the list contained in the third schedule." It is quite true that the City of London Court is not included in that third schedule; but the district over which it has jurisdiction is part of the district referred to in Section 96 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. Under these circumstances, it seems to me that, there being in the City of London Court no jurisdiction to wind-up this company, I have no power to transfer these winding-up proceedings to that court.

Although the question is not raised on this summons, it has been suggested that the inconvenience of having the two liquidations pending in different courts might be got over by transferring the proceedings which are pending in the City of London Court, for the winding up of the building society, to this court. But, in my opinion, there is no power to make such a transfer. That seems to be the effect of the decision of Mr. Justice North, in re London and Suburban Bank (1). The head note of that case is, so far as material, as follows: "A society registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1876, is not within the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, and cannot be wound up under that Act. Such a society can only be wound up by the proper county court." The county court is also the court having jurisdiction to wind-up building societies registered under the Building Societies Act, 1874. (See 37 & 38 Vict. c. 42, ss. 4, 32).

Under these circumstances, I am afraid I cannot take any step to bring these two liquidations together in a way in which, in my judgment, it would be for the benefit of every one concerned that they should be brought together; I must, therefore, dismiss the summons.

Friendly and other Societies in the Colonies.

Queensland.

The sixth Report of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, Building Societies, and Trade Unions, was presented on 15th March 1892. In one case he had found it necessary to take action to enforce the penalty provided for neglecting to furnish the annual returns, and a fine of 5*l.*, with costs of 2*l.* 17*s.*, was inflicted. He had obtained returns from 226 friendly societies, being the whole of the societies on the register from which returns were due. In six cases the returns were incomplete. The number of financial members on 31st December 1890 was 14,891, and of members out of compliance 1,504; an increase in the first case of 677, and in the second of 177. The balance of funds was 114,883*l.*, an increase of 11,060*l.* in one year, and 38,473*l.* (or 56 per cent.) in four years. The total receipts during the year were 55,289, an increase in one year of 3,627*l.*, and in three years of 12,769*l.* The payments for benefits were, 33,092*l.*; an increase in one year of 2,300*l.*, and in three years of 8,878*l.*; the payments for management were, 11,137*l.* The percentage of the payments for benefit to the total receipts was 60; management 20; and surplus 20. Compared with 1st January 1882, the increase in nine years in the number of members is 152 per cent., and in the amount of funds 221 per cent. The rate of interest earned on capital was 3·6 per cent., and the proportion of capital uninvested 9 per cent., both figures being lower than in previous years. Mr. W. T. Blakeney, the Registrar, gives the following comparative figures as to friendly societies in the Colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, New Zealand, and Queensland, on the 31st December 1890:—

	Victoria.	New South Wales.	New Zealand.	Queensland.
Number of Societies -	32	10	12	15
Number of Branches -	1,003	652	357	215
Number of Members -	88,134	55,795	26,379	14,891
Amount of Funds - -	£. 909,504	£. 394,620	£. 451,573	£. 114,884
Capital per Member -	£. 10 6*s.* 5*d.*	£. 7 6*s.* 9*d.*	£. 17 2*s.* 4*d.*	£. 7 14*s.* 4*d.*

As to Building Societies, eight permanent and one terminable societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act, 1876, and five permanent and two terminable societies registered under the Building Societies Act, 1886, have furnished returns.

The number of Trade Unions in existence on the 30th June 1891 was 74, of which 30 had been registered during the 12 months ending that day. The number of members at the end of 1890 was returned at 21,925, an increase of 12,749 in one year and 19,445 in three years. The total funds were 18,981*l.*, and the increases 7,344*l.* in one year, 14,848*l.* in three years. They are regulated by the Trade Unions Act, 1886. Of the labour unions, Mr. Blakeney remarks that if the numerical statements given can be relied upon, the progress made in membership is phenomenal, but the funds show only only a slight increase. Considering the extremely heavy drain caused by the strikes, he thinks it surprising that there was any surplus at all. The proportion per cent. to total receipts was for benefits 61, for management 35, surplus 4; as against 43, 47, and 10, in the previous year. Of the total payments for benefit, 16,547*l.*, 14,664*l.* was for strike pay, and 1,182*l.* for unemployed benefit. The employers unions which made returns for the year 1890 numbered 13, having 239 members and 2,271*l.* capital at the beginning of the year, and 680 members and 7,507*l.* capital at the end of the year. Of the total net receipts, amounting to 7,814*l.*, 363*l.* was probably paid for assistance, and 2,215*l.* for management. The returns for 1891 have not been completed, but as far as he is able to judge they show that the exceptional activity of 1890 had been followed by an equally marked depression.

Savings Banks.

Two kinds of savings banks exist in Victoria, the General Savings Banks, which were first established in 1842, and the Post Office Savings Banks, which were established in 1865. The following figures show the number of institutions, the number of depositors having accounts at the last dates of balancing in 1891, and the total and average amount of depositors' balances at such dates* :—

Savings Banks, 1872 to 1891.

In the 20 years 1872 to 1891, the number of depositors in savings banks has increased sixfold. For several years prior to 1880 the amount standing to the credit of the depositors had been tolerably uniform, but since then a steady increase has taken place, and by 1891 it had risen to nearly 5¾ millions sterling, or 453,600*l.* more than in the previous year, about two millions more than in 1887, and nearly three and a half times the amount in 1880—11 years previously.

Rate of interest in Australasian Savings Banks.

In Victoria the rate of interest paid in both descriptions of savings banks is 4 per cent., but the rate paid in the other Australasian colonies is often higher than in Victoria. Thus, in New South Wales, whilst the rate in the Post Office Savings Banks is 4 per cent., as in Victoria, that in the General Savings Banks is 5 per cent. for accounts remaining open at end of year, only 4 per cent., however being allowed on closed accounts ; in Queensland the rate is 4 per cent. on deposits below 200*l.* ; in South Australia it is 5 per cent. ; in Tasmania the rates are 5 per cent. on sums up to 150*l.* in the General, and 3¼ per cent. in the Post Office Savings Banks ; and in New Zealand they are 5 and 4½ per cent. respectively. On the other hand, the rate is only 3¾ per cent. in Western Australia.

Building Societies.

Building Societies (Victoria).

Building societies in Victoria date from an early period in the colony's history, and much success, both to borrowers and investors, has attended their operations. Sixty such institutions sent in returns during 1891, as against 70 in 1890, and 72 in 1889. The following are the principal items furnished for the last three years. It should be mentioned that the returns of some of the societies were not perfect :—

Advances by Building Societies, 1876–1891.

In 1891, the business done by building societies, as measured by the advances made, was less than in the previous year by 366,500*l.*, was not half as large as that done in 1888, and was also less than in any other year since 1884. A run upon building societies, towards the end of 1891, affected those institutions disastrously, several large societies and a number of the smaller ones being obliged to close their doors. The advances made by these institutions during the last 16 years have been as follows :—

ADVANCES BY BUILDING SOCIETIES, 1876 TO 1891.

1876 - - -	870,203	1884 - - -	1,469,542

1883 - - -	1,089,480	1891 - - -	2,059,627

Rates of interest in Building Societies.

The rates of interest allowed by building societies on moneys left with them for a period of 12 months generally ranged, in 1883 from 5 to 7 per cent. ; in 1884 from 5½ to 7 per cent. ; in 1885 and 1886 from 6 to 7 per cent. ; in 1887 from 5½ to 7½ per cent. ; in 1888 from 5½ to 7 per cent. ; in 1889, 1890, and 1891 from 5½ to 7 per cent.

NEW ZEALAND.

From the Fifteenth Annual Report of Mr. Edmund Mason, Registrar of Friendly Societies, it appears that 17 new societies or branches were registered in 1891. Six ceased to exist. Thirty-one societies and 357 branches made returns for 1890. Their total funds were, sick and funeral, 403,310*l.* ; medical and management, 48,283*l.* Their assets were—Province of Ontario.

In this province the Inspector of Insurance, Mr. J. Howard Hunter, is also Registrar of Friendly Societies, under an Act passed in 1892 (55 Vict., c. 39). Fifty-five societies have already been registered. The Registrar made orders on two societies to amend their constitution and on two societies to amend their rules, and gave judgment refusing seven applications for registry. In another case, the application of the Grand Council of Ontario of the Order of Chosen Friends was opposed by the Grand Council Canadian Order of Chosen Friends upon the grounds, among others: 1. That the society applying had not had any previous legal constitution; 2. That it had not 500 resident members; 3. Of similarity of name; 4. That if legally constituted, it had forfeited its powers by non-use; 5. That it was not in bonâ fide operation on 10th March 1890. The Registrar took evidence and heard counsel on 20th July 1892, and gave judgment on 12th August, over-ruling the objections and admitting the society to registry, provided it altered its name to "The Supreme (or Sovereign Grand) Council of the Ontario Order of Chosen Friends."

Friendly Societies in France during 1890.

Friendly Societies in France.

The number of societies approved or recognised as establishments of public utility on 31st December 1890 was 6,674, an increase of 219 during the year. The honorary members increased from 175,028 to 179,197, and the participating members from 891,533 to 911,955, a total increase of 24,591. The receipts increased to 838,867*l.*, a difference of 16,907*l.*; but the expenditure increased in even greater proportion, being 775,646*l.*, an increase of 63,182*l.*, a result attributed to the epidemic of influenza. Their funds increased to 5,667,157*l.*, a difference of 269,011*l.* (about 5 per cent).

The number of authorised societies was 2,470, an increase of 42. The honorary members increased from 23,818 to 25,102, and the participating members from 311,300 to 320,112, a total increase of 10,096. The receipts increased to 331,726*l.*, a difference of 15,667*l.*; but the expenditure increased still more, being 280,198*l.*, a difference of 25,070*l.* Their funds increased to 1,271,739*l.*, a difference of 48,488*l.* (nearly 4 per cent.)

Taking all classes of societies together, the number of societies is 9,144; the number of members 1,436,666 and the amount of funds 6,938,896*l.*, an increase on the year of 261 societies, 34,687 members, and 317,499*l.*

The following are the particulars of the claims made through sickness during the year:—

	Recognised and Approved Societies.	Authorised Societies.	Total.
Number of members sick - -	292,533	100,743	393,276
Number of days' sickness - -	4,407,298	1,700,175	6,107,473
Medical fees - - - -	£. 104,597	£. 26,473	£. 131,070
Medicine - - - - -	£. 138,516	£. 39,153	£. 177,669
Sick pay - - - - -	£. 218,748	£. 97,306	£. 316,054

The increase over 1889 amounts to 84,263 members with 990,928 days' sickness, 10,030*l.* medical fees, 24,859*l.* medicine, and 50,290*l.* sick-pay; or together, an increase of 85,179*l.*, while the increase in 1889 over 1888 was only 11,076*l.*, showing the marked effect of the epidemic. The average sickness per member sick was 15½ days.

The societies "recognised as establishments of public utility" (which are included in the foregoing statistics with the "approved" societies) remain as before, 10 in number. Their funds increased from 249,691*l.* to 254,722*l.* (about 2 per cent). During the year 24 societies which had previously been merely "authorised," were transferred to the class of "approved" societies.

Approved societies have the privilege of contracting with the Government for what is called a collective assurance against death. The conditions of these contracts having been found by experience to be unfavourable to the Government fund, a decree of 28th November 1890, has prescribed that in future future the societies contracting shall be called upon to pay premiums corresponding with their own experience of mortality during the five years preceding, provided that no premium shall be increased to more than double, or reduced below one-half, of the amount that the society had been previously paying under the special tables prescribed by the law of 11th July 1868, which has hitherto regulated the payments in question.

Approved societies have also been assisted out of the public funds by a contribution towards the cost of formation, and, in exceptional circumstances, by an allowance towards deficits caused by epidemic or unusual sickness. The claims for pensions have, however, so greatly increased of late, that the late Minister of the Interior, M. Constans, found it impracticable to continue these contributions out of the funds at his disposal, and they will henceforth not be made until money for the purpose has been definitely allocated by Parliament.

M. Loubet remarks that, notwithstanding the abnormal increase in claims for sickness, the results of the year 1890 continue to be satisfactory. The funds of the societies have increased in a proportion very little less than that of the mean of the 10 preceding years, and he has reason to hope for still greater improvement in the results of the year 1891.

The amount of business transacted by his department was in examining the rules of new societies, alterations of rules, gifts and legacies, dissolutions and liquidations, and other sundry matters, 2,460 affairs; in correspondence relative to certificates of death of pensioners and to insufficiency of funds for the restoration of the capital of extinct pensions, 2,100; in the payments of 3,903 pensions or additions to pensions, 4,080; making a total of 8,640 matters disposed of.

(From the "Statistical Annual" of Paris, for 1889, by Dr. Jacques Bertillon, Chief Officer of Statistics of the Préfecture de la Seine.)

Sickness tables are very numerous . . . One is struck with the very considerable differences which separate them, and which would lead the observer to think that the health of "mutualists" in England is twice or three times as feeble as that of mutualists in France or Italy. This is certainly not so, and the proof of it is furnished by the mortality experience of the same societies; while their sickness is entirely different, their mortality is, on the contrary, quite analogous. The difference in the tables of sickness is due not to the nature of things, but to differences of definition, the English societies not attributing to the word the same meaning as the French and Italian societies. Nothing is more difficult than to define it exactly. . . .

The truth is that friendly societies, when they grant sick pay, attach less importance to the text of their rules than to the state of their funds. If the society is rich, it grants sick pay more liberally than if it is poor. Thence and thence only it comes to pass that the great English mutual societies, which are often very old, and generally rich, give more days' sick pay than the French societies, for example, which are bound to a rigorous economy.

Conclusions—A table of sickness is not so useful, under present conditions, as a table of mortality for the purpose of ascertaining the sanitary condition of the classes comprised in it. This is because there is only one way of understanding the word death, while there are many ways of understanding the word sickness.

[The author then proceeds to discuss tables of mortality according to occupation. The report is illustrated by an interesting diagram of the number of days' sickness per annum experienced at different ages according to various tables.]

APPENDIX (E.)

State Insurance in Switzerland.

Extracts from Letters addressed by Dr. J. U. Kursteiner, of Gais, to the Chief Registrar.

25th March 1892.—"I enclose an extract of a paper containing the resolutions passed at a representative meeting of the Swiss Artizans' Association, convened to consider the proposed scheme of State Insurance against sickness and accidents. The current idea now is, that the latter will have at least to be subsidized largely out of public funds, whilst the former will be borne in the proportion of two-thirds by the employed and one-third by the employers. The period for the accidents to remain on the sick-list is to be shortened to the first four weeks only, in comparison with 13 weeks in Germany. The cost of administration will likewise be defrayed to a large extent by the State."

20th April.—"I now transmit copies of two important contributions to the proposed State Insurance scheme. I think it may justly be said, that the amendment to the Federal Constitution, already mentioned in one of your annual reports, has been based mainly upon these two little treatises. The authors of them, M. Forrer, of Winterthur, and M. Göttisheim, of Basle, are both Members of the Federal Assembly; the former actively engaged as a lawyer with suits under the Employers Liability Acts (pages 32 and 33 of the Memorandum on Insurance against Accidents), the latter the leading spirit of the movement for sickness insurance in his own canton, as formerly mentioned in your Reports. Of course, the information to be gathered from these valuable documents cannot be termed exhaustive from a scientific point of view; yet the inadequacy of the existing state of things, compared with the exigencies of the case, made the desire to aim at something like the German State-intervention almost irresistible. Until now, it is the bare principle that has been laid down in the amendment to the Constitution; the legislative enactments, however, I am informed from an authoritative source, are still very far from being prepared for introduction, which, I am told, is not to be expected for the rest of the year."

6th May.—"A very interesting pamphlet on the national insurance question at large has just been published by an able expert, M. Widmer,* director of the Schweizerische Rentenanstalt, an industrial assurance company at Zurich. The amendment already voted to the Federal Constitution is therein shown to be incomplete and unsatisfactory, wherefore, according to the author, it ought to be replaced by some other more comprehensive article before any kind of State-insurance is to be dealt with. M. Widmer, indeed, goes so far as to propose a monopoly for all the branches of assurance business to be created by the State, with the faculty of leaving some distinct parts, merely subject to its superintendence, to private enterprise. State-insurance against sickness and accidents, he especially argues, must seem insufficient to meet the more general risks of death, old age, and incapacitation from work otherwise than by accident. Besides, loss by fire and agricultural calamities ought to be included among the scopes of national providence. Of course such a comprehensive scheme must overstep the lines set by the example of Germany, inasmuch as there would have to be insured other classes besides those in constant employment. Finally, the compulsory principle would not be done away with, but in the estimation of M. Widmer the State ought to work out this all-embracing scheme by means of education and patronage. At the same time, every particular branch of national insurance insurance would have to be construed on a truly technical basis of computation, so as to become self-supporting throughout. This pamphlet is interesting, as its author is an expert in assurance business of long standing."

* "Ideen zur Initiative für Schweizerische Bundesversicherung," Zurich, 1892.

12th May.—"M. Widmer's pamphlet is already causing great stir, as you will see from the enclosed leader in the "Neue Zürcher Zeitung," of the 11th instant. On the other hand, M. Forrer, who has been entrusted with the task of framing the legislative enactments in accordance with the revised Article 34 bis of the Federal Constitution, is about to terminate the drafting of two distinct Bills concerning insurance against sickness and accidents."

8th November.—"The State-insurance system to be initiated by the Confederation, is not intended to include within its scope, at least for the near future, a provision for old age. There is now, on the other hand, a movement actually going on, in the cantons of Geneva and Neuchâtel, towards enacting, by cantonal legislation, a kind of State provision in this regard. A subsidy of 5 francs in the former, and of 10 francs in the latter canton is to be set aside for the benefit of every new-born citizen, until at a fixed term of age, nominally 60 years, those surviving enter in enjoyment of a contingent pension. The Great Council of Geneva has already adopted such a scheme, and at Neuchâtel it has been referred to a Commission. The Federal Bills concerning sickness and accidents-insurance are not expected to be brought in for discussion in the Chambers at the next session."

14th March 1893.—"I herewith send to you a very interesting report, compiled by the Swiss "Arbeitersekretariat," regarding the development and statistical results of a particular association for sickness-insurance, instituted some 20 years ago in the neighbouring cantons of St. Gall, Appenzell, and Thurgovia. There are now in all 56 branches, with an aggregate of 5,361 members, according to the latest return. The association is voluntary, but at the same time confined to the particular trade of stickers, a term which designates a peculiar kind of textile operatives. This branch of manufacture has a history of its own, from the point of view as a trade union, which has lately been described by an eminent publicist, M. Baumberger."

The Savings Fund in Belgium.

From the Annual Report for 1891 of the General Savings and Pension Fund instituted by the Law of 16 March 1865, under State Guarantee, it appears that the deposits, having increased in the year 1890 from 11,303,524*l.* to 13,016,616*l.*, and this increase being attributed to the lowering of the rate of interest upon other investments, it had been decided to lower the maximum individual deposit upon which 3 per cent. interest would be allowed from 200*l.* to 120*l.*, the interest for sums above that being 2 per cent. There is difficulty, however, in preventing the evasion of the law by the same person depositing money in different accounts. Interest at 3 per cent. is allowed on deposits without limit to recognised friendly societies, but any excess over 120*l.* per member may be compulsorily converted into stock. The reserve fund of the Savings Bank amounted on 31st December 1891 to 327,496*l.*; besides an increase of 573,531*l.* in the value of the securities held over the price of purchase. By a Law of 9th August 1889, regulations under which were approved on 31st March 1891, the Savings Bank is authorised to employ a part of its funds in loans towards the purchase or construction of workmen's dwellings. Between the 1st May and 31st December 1891, 2,421*l.* was so applied. The plan considered the best is to make the loans to societies similar to building societies in England, and with a view to facilitate the formation of such societies, the Bank has prepared model rules, forms, and tables. A Royal Decree of 21 April 1891, in accordance with the provisions of the law for a quinquennial distribution of profits, authorised the division of a portion of the reserve fund among depositors of one year's standing or more on 31st December 1890. This produced a bonus to depositors of 5 per cent. on their accrued interest, one depositor receiving as much as 247*l.* The total sum distributed was 63,707*l.* Of the deposits 88 per cent., and of the deposit accounts 63 per cent. were for sums under 4*l.* In the year 1891, the deposits increased in amount to 13,337,149*l.* and the number of deposit accounts from 731,057 to 800,074. The depositors for the whole kingdom were 13 per cent. of the inhabitants, rising from 8 per cent. in Limbourg to 17 per cent. in Hainault. Of the depositors, 47 per cent. are children, 13 per cent. artizans, 9 per cent. agricultural and day-labourers, 9 per cent. (of whom 7 are females) of no profession, 7 per cent. domestic servants; 60 per cent. are males, and 40 (19 adults, 21 children) females.

The investments in the Pension Fund numbered,—

In 1888	4,887
1889	6,832
1890	18,567
1891	30,970

The amount invested was 106,049*l.*

The total liabilities of the fund were 332,222*l.*

Of the purchasers, 53 per cent. are artizans, 18 per cent. children, and 8 per cent. miners; 11 per cent. are women, viz., 2 per cent. wives, 1 per cent. widows, 5 per cent. spinsters, 3 per cent. children.

The annuities paid during 1891 were 16,173*l.*

M. Louis Varlez, Docteur en Sciences Politiques, has made a report to the Société Libérale pour l'Etude des Sciences et des Œuvres Sociales, of Ghent, on "Pensions de Retraite." In this he reviews the situation of the question in France, Germany, England, Switzerland, Austria, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Holland, Russia, Belgium, and Roumania.

APPENDIX (K.)

PARTICULARS OF PROSECUTIONS DURING 1892.

Particulars of Prosecutions during 1892.

UNDER the Friendly Societies Acts 296 cases of default were dealt with, and of these 66 cases were locally investigated for the purposes of prosecution. In 29 cases the societies were found to have ceased to exist, as stated in the following list (sup. 215). In six cases no process was issued; there was one prosecution in respect of infant life, and the remainder were in respect of default in sending up annual returns or valuations.

In the county of Devon there were 143 societies on the register, 55 of those being in order in respect of returns, and 88, or 61·5 per cent., in default.

Of these 88, 19, or 13·2 per cent., were found to have ceased to exist; 60 have sent in their returns; and there are nine where the returns have been promised, but not yet sent in; 14 of the societies which have now complied had previously sent in no returns under the present Act.

In the county of Cornwall there were 54 Societies on the register; 25 of those being in order, and 29, or 53·7 per cent., in default.

Of these 29, 4, or 13·7 per cent., were found to have ceased to exist; 13 have complied, and 12 have sent in their annual returns, but the valuations are still outstanding. Seven of the societies which are now sending returns had previously sent in none under the present Act.

In and around the City of Newcastle there were 64 societies in default. Of this number, 20 were found to have ceased to exist; 19 have promised to send in their returns; 13 have complied with the Act; and 11 cases are outstanding.

Two hundred and thirty societies sent in their returns after receiving notice that proceedings would be taken in event of continued default.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES ACT.

PROSECUTIONS for Failure to send RETURNS.

Cambridge.

Ebenezer Lodge of Wisbech Unity, Loyal Order Ancient Shepherds, in default in respect of valuation.

This society is held at Welney, 10 miles from March, and seems to have relied upon its isolated position to escape the provisions of the Act.

A summons was taken out, and the return being received, the Chief Registrar consented to the withdrawal of process on payment of costs.

Shepherds' Refuge Lodge of Wisbech Unity, Loyal Order Ancient Shepherds. A lodge meeting at Doddington, also in default in respect of valuation.

On investigation it appeared that the papers were in the valuer's hands.

A summons was taken out, and on the receipt of the return, and payment of costs, process was withdrawn.

Court of Ancient Foresters' Society (No. 229).

This society, meeting at Parson Drove, near Wisbech, had sent up certain printed balance sheets, and did not reply to demands for the statutory returns. On inquiry it was found the returns were ready to be sent in. The delay having caused the expense of investigation, summonses were taken out both for annual returns and valuation. On the returns being sent in, they were withdrawn on payment of costs.

Cornwall.

Victoria Lodge Philanthropic Association, British Unity Friendly Society (No. 479), Camborne.

A friendly society registered in 1875. No returns sent in.

On inquiries being made, the secretary stated that this friendly society was originally connected with the British Unity, but that they severed such connection soon after their registration, and subsequently carried on business under a slightly different name, and under new rules, which were not registered.

A summons was taken out in respect of the annual return. Before the hearing, after correspondence with Messrs. Daniel and Thomas, the defendants' solicitors, the defendants admitted their liability under the Act, and on making the statutory return, the summons was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Devon.

The Friendly Society . . . (No. 348), Burlescombe.

Burlescombe Friendly Society (No. 702), Burlescombe.

It was found on inquiry that the rules of No. 702 were those of the same society as No. 348, which was registered in 1815. The subsequent rules having been registered as a separate society in 1848.

No returns had been received under the present Act, though the proper forms had, as in the case of all societies on the register, been sent each year.

An information was laid in support of a summons for failure to send the annual return, which was subsequently withdrawn on payment of costs and on the return being sent in.

Being a dividing society no summons was taken out in respect of the valuation, and a certificate of exemption was applied for and granted.

Okehampton Free General Society (No. 300), Okehampton

This society was registered in 1812, and no returns had been received under the present Act.

In answer to the usual application made before instituting proceedings, the secretary wrote stating that the members did not know the society was registered.

On investigation it was found that the then existing society was the same as that registered in 1812.

An information was laid in support of a summons in respect of the annual return. On this being sent in before the return of the summons process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

The valuation was also received as for the five years ending 31st December 1891.

Okehampton Tradesmen's Society (No. 542).

This society, registered in 1840, had not sent in an annual return since 1889, but on receipt of the letter threatening proceedings the secretary wrote, stating the returns should be sent in. No steps had, however, been taken at the time these cases were being investigated, and a summons was taken out. This resulted in both the annual return and valuation being received, and the summons was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Good Samaritan Society (No. 420), Cullompton. Registered in 1820, and no returns made under the present Act.

The secretary stated the members did not know the society was registered. On production, however, of the registered rules he understood that they were registered, and he promised to send in the annual return. The club is a dividing society, and had divided its funds the previous Christmas. A summons was taken out, which was not taken into Court, the secretary, William Poole, undertaking to comply with the Act, and paying the costs.

Union Benefit Society (No. 628), Highampton. This society was registered in 1844, and had sent in no returns under the present Act.

Summonses were taken out both for default in respect of valuation and annual return. At the hearing, on 12th October, before the magistrates sitting at Okehampton, the defendant urged that the society was not registered, his chief ground for this allegation being that the society had from time to time adopted rules or amendments which were not registered. Mr. Barlow pointed out that so far from this being a defence it was an additional offence under the Act. The magistrates found the defendant guilty, but the society being in debt, and the secretary an agricultural labourer without means, the case was not pressed, and the defendant giving his undertaking to comply with the Act, was let off on payment of the Court fees.

Appendix (K.)
Particulars of Prosecutions during 1892.

Female Union Society (No. 900), Woodford Bridge. Registered in 1860, and no Returns sent up.

The society was found to be still in existence, and summonses were taken out both for valuation and annual return.

Before the return of the summonses, the annual return was received, showing a deficiency, and a letter from the former secretary stated that all the old village clubs were dying out. He begged that under the circumstances the summonses might be withdrawn, and the Registrar agreed to this.

Royal Union Society (946), North Molton. Registered in 1862, and no Returns sent up.

The secretary stated that being a dividing club he understood that returns were not required; but he undertook to send them in in future. Summonses were taken out, but on receipt of the returns, and on payment of costs, they were not proceeded with.

Thornbury Friendly Society (No. 706), Thornbury. Registered in 1846, and no Returns sent in.

Mr. Barlow was unable to see the secretary, who was away. Summonses were taken out both in respect of annual return and valuation, returnable before the magistrates at Holsworthy.

Before the return of the summonses, the secretary, James Daw, wrote to the Registrar, apologising for the default, saying that he thought the returns were not compulsory, and promising to send them in future.

In the circumstances the Registrar consented to the withdrawal of process on payment of costs.

Female Union Society (No. 921), Thornbury. Registered in 1862, and no Returns sent in.

Summonses were taken out here both for the annual return and valuation, the society having the same secretary as Thornbury Friendly Society (706), and the circumstances being the same, the observations applied to that society were the same in this case.

United and Friendly Society (No. 565), Bradsworthy.

This Society was registered in 1836, and had made no returns under the present Act. No answer was received to the letter announcing that proceedings would have to be taken in event of continued default.

Bradworthy is seven miles from Holsworthy, the nearest railway station. From inquiries made, it was ascertained that Thomas Westaway was the present secretary, and that there were some 170 members, with funds about 300 l.

Informations were laid in support of summonses against both the society and against Thomas Westaway in respect of both annual return and valuation.

The defendant having undertaken to comply with the Act, the Chief Registrar consented to withdrawal of process on payment of costs.

Lancaster.

(Collecting Society). The English Industrial Friendly Society of Liverpool.

This society was registered in 1888, and is referred to in the Chief Registrar's Report as a society the financial condition of which was made public by him under Section 5 of the Friendly Societies Act.

A summons was taken out for the 1891 return, which was returnable before Mr. Stewart at the Liverpool Police Court.

At the hearing, the secretary, John Carty, in defence, urged that he had repeatedly desired the committee to have the accounts made out, but that they had neglected them, and now no longer attended the meetings as provided in the rules.

The stipendiary fined the defendant 1*l.* and costs.

Middlesex.

Hadyn Park Radical Club (No. 5460), Hammersmith.

Enquiry being made as to the registered office of this club, in connection with certain ejectment proceedings, it was found that the club had removed from their registered office without giving notice of such removal to the Registrar, pursuant to Section 14 of the Friendly Societies Act, under which the club was registered.

A summons was taken out for this default, and also one for default in not sending in the annual return for 1891. These were returnable on 8th July before Mr. Sheil at Westminster Police Court, but the defendant failed to put in an appearance, and the summons were adjourned for seven days.

In the meantime the secretary, Silas Nudlam, communicated with the Registrar to the effect that he had not possession of the books; that no business had been done for the last nine months, and no meetings whatever of the members or of the committee, and that the club simply died out. The Registrar in the circumstances instructed Mr. Barlow to ask for the summons to be adjourned sine die, which was done.

Northumberland.

George Robert Stephenson Lodge, A.N.O.U.O.F., B.U., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

This society, registered in 1868, has sent up no return since 1882. Inquiries showed that the society has removed from its registered office some years ago, and had not given notice to the Registrar, so that communications from this office had not reached the society.

The present secretary stated that he has only held that office a few months, though he had been a member of the society for 18 years. He promised to comply with the Act in the future.

A summons was taken out before the borough magistrates, for failure to send in the annual return, which was withdrawn on receipt of the return and on payment of costs.

Blackett Street Friendly Society (No. 724), Newcastle-on-Tyne.

This society, registered in 1871, has sent up no returns since 1882. John Gusthart, who was secretary in 1882, stated that the present secretary was Mr. James Douglas. Mr. Barlow when he was inquiring into this case was unable to meet with James Douglas. On the statement of the former secretary summons was taken out against the society and Douglas. After service of the summons the defendant wrote, stating, that the registered society had ceased to exist in 1883, and that the club he was now secretary of was a yearly club, which was not registered. On corroboration of this statement the summons was withdrawn.

Appendix (K.)

Particulars of Prosecutions of during 1892.

Robert Burns Lodge, N.I.O.O.F., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

In this case the annual return had been received regularly, but no valuation had been sent in. The secretary appeared to have put himself in communication with the valuer to the order immediately on receipt of intimation that proceedings would be taken if the default continued.

Ravensworth Friendly Society of Odd Fellows (No. 866), Registered in 1888, and no Returns received.

Notice was given on 23rd November, that proceedings would be taken if the return for 1891 was not sent in within 14 days. The secretary, George Irwins Smith, stated that the notice had been left at the office of the society and had not reached him till after the expiration of the 14 days, and that he had made out the return as soon as possible on receiving the notice. Having been secretary since 1888, he had failed to send up any return, and summons was taken out which was withdrawn on receiving the return and on payment of costs.

Newcastle-on-Tyne Excelsior Friendly Society (No. 867), Registered in 1888, and no Returns received.

This society has the same secretary as the Excelsior Friendly Society (No. 867), above referred to, the only difference in the cases being, that here he had been appointed more recently. A summons was taken out and dealt with in the same way.

Newcastle-on-Tyne Co-operative Sick and Funeral Benefit Society (No. 683.)

This society was registered in 1870, and has made no returns, On inquiry at the registered office it was stated that the society still met there, but it was subsequently ascertained that the registered society had ceased to exist more than ten years ago, and that another had followed which was not registered. The summons was, therefore, withdrawn.

Keelmen's Benefit Society (No. 502).

The annual return in this case had been duly sent in, but the valuation had been outstanding for some time, though the actuary was in communication with the society. Mr. Barlow being at Newcastle laid an information in support of process, but the valuation being received the summons was not proceeded with.

Norfolk.

Burton Provident Friendly Society (No. 518).

This society has been suspended on account of its failure to send in the valuation. It was registered in 1840, and has never been valued. An information was laid in support of a summons, and the valuation was, in consequence, received before the hearing, and process withdrawn on payment of costs.

Surrey.

True Independent Good Intent Lodge, of Ancient Odd Fellows, held at Witley.

Complaint was made by the treasurer of this society that no balance sheet had been prepared and that the present secretary had refused to produce the books of the society.

The case was investigated and summonses taken out against the secretary Thomas Bonner, and against the society, in respect both of the annual return and valuation. On the hearing of the summonses on 13th July, Mr. de Michele, of the South East Circuit, appeared for the defendant, who pleaded guilty. The court fined the defendant 1*l.* and costs, for failure to send in the annual return.

As it appeared that the cause of the failure to send in the valuation arose from the imperfect accounts kept by the former secretary, the second summons was not pressed.

Star of Hope Lodge (No. 7), U.O.C.F.

The order being unable to get in the valuation of this lodge referred the matter to this Department. A summons was taken out and the valuation being sent in the summons was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Suffolk.

Concord Lodge of Wisbech Unity, Loyal Order of Ancient Shepherds.

This lodge was reported to this Department by the Order on account of being in default in respect of valuation.

No answer was received in reply to a letter threatening a prosecution in event of continued default, and in consequence the case was investigated and a summons taken out. The valuation being sent in prior to the return of the summons process was withdrawn on payment of costs.

Kersey Friendly Society (No. 471), Kersey.

Registered in 1841. The last annual return was for the year 1880, and no valuation has been made.

No answer being received to the letter demanding the statutory returns, the case was investigated. The society was found to be still in existence and summones were taken out both in respect of valuation and annual return.

On the hearing of the summons, the secretary, R. F. Raynham, stated the club was a very poor one and was not likely to last much longer. In the circumstances Mr. Barlow only asked for the nominal penalty of 10*s.* in each case and the court fees, and the magistrate ordered accordingly.

Lindsey Friendly Society, Lindsey near Hadleigh.

Registered in 1851, and has made no returns under the present Act. A previous communication addressed to the society at the registered office has been returned through the post, endorsed "Not known."

From inquiries made it was ascertained that the society was still in existence, and summones were accordingly taken out.

The circumstances were similar to those of the Kersey Friendly Society above referred to, and the defendants were fined 10*s.* in each case and the court fees. Both valuation and annual return have now been received.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES reported for PROSECUTION for being in DEFAULT in sending in RETURNS, and found on investigation to have CEASED to EXIST.

Devon.

Burlescombe Friendly Society (No. 348). Registered in 1815, and no Returns received under the present Act.

On investigation it was found that the society had sent up new rules for registration in 1848 without having the former ones rescinded. The society under the rules registered in 1848 was in default, and appears among the societies prosecuted.

Chudleigh Friendly Benefit Society for Yeomen, Tradesmen, and Mechanics (No. 293). Registered in 1811. Last Annual Return, 1887.

This was a dividing society. The funds were shared in 1890, and the society then ceased to carry on business.

Chudleigh Friendly and United Society of Men (No. 607). Registered in 1843. Last Annual Return, 1875.

Found on inquiry that the society ceased to exist about the year 1880.

Appendix (K.)

Particulars of Prosecutions during 1892.

Devonport.—Friendly Society of Caulkers of Devonport Dockyard (No. 817). Registered in 1844. No Returns.

Inquiries showed that the society ceased to exist about 20 years ago.

Exeter.—Exeter Central Provident Society of Master Bakers (No. 691). Registered in 1838. No Returns.

After many inquiries, succeeded in tracing an old member and officer, who stated that the society had ceased to exist many years ago.

Hemyock.—Society of Artificers (No. 301). Registered in 1812. No Returns.

Understand from the son of the former secretary that the society broke up about the year 1870.

Millaton.—Bridistow and Sourton Society (No. 506). Registered in 1830. No Returns.

Inquiries showed that this society ceased to exist in 1836, and that in 1837 another started which was unregistered. The members had cause to regret this change as their treasurer became insolvent, and they could not take advantage of the priority given by Section 15 to registered societies.

Milton Abbott.—The Friendly Society (No. 17). Registered in 1794. No Returns.

The society appears to have ceased to exist about 60 years ago; another and unregistered society taking its place, which had also expired.

Milton Damerel.—Woodford Bridge Friendly Society (No. 704). Registered in 1856. Last Annual Return, 1876.

This society was stated to have ceased to exist, and the books to have been destroyed in 1889.

Plymouth.—Providence Meeting Society (No. 679). Registered in 1850. Last Annual Return, 1883.

Inquiries showed that this society ceased to exist in 1884.

Plymouth Union Friendly Society (No. 736). Registered in 1852. No Returns.

Exhaustive inquiries failed to produce any evidence of the existence or dissolution of this society. Only the negative evidence was obtained that no such society was known to be in existence.

Plymouth.—Royal Veteran Pensioners Friendly Society and Burial Club. (No. 909). Registered in 1860. No Returns.

No direct evidence could be obtained in this case. It was ascertained that the original members belonged to the Royal Marines, and that there was no such society now in existence in connection with that branch of the service. The tracing out of any of the original members, who would not now be in the service, would be going further than the circumstances justified.

Northumberland.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Loyal Sir Wm. Armstrong Lodge, C. D. (No. 396).

Inquiries showed that this society had become a branch of the Order of Druids, and had neglected to have this registration cancelled. This has now been done.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Operative Brickmakers Burial Society (No. 432). Registered in 1864. No Returns.

No trace could be found of the existence of this society which was believed to have ceased to exist.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Gladstone Lodge, A.N.O.U.O., B.U. (No. 522). Registered 1866. No Returns.

Inquiries at the registered office, and for the original members, failed to show that this society was now existing.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Percy Lodge, N.A.I.U.O.O.F. (No. 537). Registered in 1866. No Returns.

Inquiries showed that this society joined the British United Order in 1867, and failed to have the former registration cancelled.

Newcastle-on-Tyne District Funeral Fund, B.U.O.O.F. (No. 598). Registered in 1868. No Returns.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Sir Walter Scott Lodge, A.N.O.U.O.F., B.U. (No. 601). Registered in 1868. No Returns.

Numerous inquiries failed to produce any evidence of the existence of this society.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Hawthorn Blossom Lodge, U.F.G. (No. 653). Registered in 1869. No Returns.

This society appears to be represented by a branch of the N.U.O.F.G., and this registration has therefore been removed from the register.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Addison Potter Lodge, A.N.O.U.O.F., B.U. (No. 721). Registered in 1871. Last Annual Return, 1881.

Many inquiries were made as to this society without finding any trace of its existence, and the secretary of the order was unable to supply any information.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Rose of England Lodge, A.F.G. (No. 769). Registered in 1871. Last Annual Return, 1880.

Inquiries showed that this society severed its connection with the order of A.F.G. about the year 1880, and no evidence could be found of its existence after that date.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Clarence Lodge, N.A.I.U.O.O.F. (No. 563). Registered in 1867. No Annual Returns.

Inquiries failed to produce any evidence of the existence of this society, and nothing is known of it by the secretary of the order.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Operative Bricklayers Friendly Society (No. 269). Registered in 1846. Last Annual Return, 1880.

Inquiries showed that this society broke up several years since.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Lord Palmerston Lodge, B.U.O.O.F. (No. 664). Registered in 1869. Last Annual Return, 1877.

Inquiries at the registered offices of the lodge and district, and of the order, failed to produce any evidence of the existence of this society.

Appendix (K.)

Particulars of Prosecutions during 1892.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—William Robinson Friendly Society of Independent Odd Fellows (No. 832). Registered 1875. Last Annual Return, 1879.
Inquiries showed that the person who formed this society, and after whom it was named, died bankrupt, and the society came to an end at the same time.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Co-operative Sick and Funeral Benefit Society (No. 683). Registered in 1870. No Returns.
Inquiries showed that this society ceased to exist soon after it was registered.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Blackett Street Friendly Society (No. 724). Registered in 1871. Last Annual Return, 1882.
Inquiries showed that this society ceased to exist about 1883, and that the members subsequently started a yearly club, which was unregistered.

Suffolk.

Ipswich.—Unicorn Mutual Assistance Society (No. 959). Registered in 1885. No Returns.
Letters addressed to the society were returned, indorsed "Gone; no address." From inquiries made it was ascertained that it was dissolved soon after registration.

Ipswich.—Times Assistance Society (No. 952). Registered in 1884. No Returns.
From inquiries made it was ascertained that this society did not exist many months. The secretary died, and what funds there were were divided amongst the members. It was stated no other member was sufficiently educated to take over the office of secretary.

INFANT LIFE—PROSECUTION.

Information was received from the Registrar of Deaths for the district that the Newbold Friendly Society, a company registered under the Companies Acts, carrying on business at Rochdale in Lancashire, was paying money on the death of children otherwise than on production of a certificate of death containing the particulars required by Section 28 of the Friendly Societies Act.
The company was communicated with as to this alleged breach of the Act, when they stated that being registered under the Companies Acts they were not liable to the provisions of the 28th section of the Friendly Societies Act.
The company was originally a friendly society, and was registered under the Friendly Societies Acts in the year 1857. In consequence of failure to comply with the Act, in respect of valuation of their assets and liabilities, the registration was cancelled by the Chief Registrar on 22nd January 1885. It would then appear to have carried on business as an unregistered friendly society until the year 1888, when it was registered under the Companies Acts.
An information was laid in support of process, and the summons came before the magistrates for the borough of Rochdale on 17th August 1892.
The information which was preferred by Mr. G. Dudley Barlow, on behalf of the Chief Registrar, against the Newbold Friendly Society, stated that the said society or company did, at No. 28, Hope-street, in the said borough, unlawfully commit a breach of Section 28, Sub-section 2, of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, by paying a sum of money, to wit, 4*l.*, on the death of a child, named John James Kay, under 10 years of age, to Alice Kay, the parent of such child, without the production by such parent of a certificate of death issued by the Registrar of Deaths containing the particulars required by the said section.
Dr. Pankhurst appeared for the defendant company, and Mr. Dudley Barlow conducted the case for the Chief Registrar.
The facts were included in a statement of admissions which were put in evidence.

Mr.

Mr. Barlow contended that the defendants came within the 28th section. The word "society" in that section is defined as including all industrial assurance companies assuring the payment of money on the death of children under the age of 10 years. By Section 4 of the same Act an industrial assurance company is defined as meaning any company as defined by the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, which grants assurances on any one life for a less sum than 20*l*., and which receives premiums or contributions in Great Britain or Ireland by means of collectors at less periodical intervals than two months. The definition of "company" in the Life Assurance Companies Act means "any person or persons corporate or unincorporate (not being registered under the Acts relating to Friendly Societies, who issue or are liable under policies of assurance upon human life within the United Kingdom, or who grant annuities upon human life within the United Kingdom."

The defendants alleged that they were not within the above definition in that they did not issue policies of assurance upon human life. Mr. Barlow argued that a policy meant a promise to pay, and that if this part of the definition was mentioned the subscription card in the name of the company on which the contributions were entered was a contract, or evidence of a contract, under which the defendants undertook to pay the amount of the insurance money. In the alternative he argued that it was not material that there should be any policy. That the words in the definition in Section 4 were, "which grants assurances on any one life," and those in the incorporated definition of the Companies Act were, "who issue or are liable under policies of assurance." It was contended that those were both expressions used to give effect to the same intent, and that the definition in the principal Act should prevail over that in the Incorporated Act.

It was further contended that if such assurance did not come within the Friendly Society Act such assurance was void under the Act of 14 Geo. 3, c. 48, the Gaming Act. Subsection 8 of the 28th section under which the proceedings were taken specially exempting registered friendly societies and industrial assurance companies from the operations of that Act in respect of insurance on infant life, and therefore if this contention was good that they were not within the above terms the insurance was bad.

Lastly, it was argued that under the Memorandum of Association the defendants only had power to assure members and not members' children. That those infant children could not be members of a company, and therefore that such insurances were ultra vires the company, and that the directors or committee of management of the company were liable for such assurance. Summonses were therefore taken against the individual members of a committee, but on a conviction being obtained against the defendant company these summonses were withdrawn. The defendant company was convicted and fined 2*l*. and costs.

The defendants applied for a special case which was duly granted.

The appeal was heard before the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Cave on 17th January 1893, when judgment was reserved.

PROSECUTIONS.

Kent.

Folkestone Trading Bank (No. 2475). Registered in 1885.—No Return sent in.

Under threat of proceedings being taken to enforce the Act certain returns were received, but they were not in the prescribed form and were in many respects very misleading.

A summons was, therefore, taken out, and on the hearing before the Folkestone Bench of Magistrates, the secretary (Mr. Charles Payn) was fined the sum of 40*s.*, and 5*l.* 5*s.* costs.

Middlesex.

Metropolitan Equitable Co-operative Society (No. 2348) of 184, Drury House, E.C.

This society was registered in 1883, but no business appears to have been carried on until June 1887. Forms were sent to the society each year but no return was ever made. A shareholder having much complaint of his inability to obtain any accounts, the secretary, Mr. Nathaniel J. Skelton, was informed that proceedings would be taken if the returns containing the accounts of the society from its commencement were not furnished. The secretary failing to carry out his undertakings to send in the accounts was summoned for his default in respect of the years 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891. The summonses were returnable before Mr. Shiel at Westminster Police Court. After they had been adjourned on more than one occasion to enable the defendant to comply with the Act, he was fined 2*l.* on each summons, or 10*l.* and costs.

Suffolk.

Finborough Co-operative Society, Limited (No. 2446).

This society had been suspended for three months in 1890, for failure to make the statutory returns, and being in default again, the case was investigated for the purposes of prosecution. The secretary, Mr. Robert J. Pettiward, was chairman of the Stow Hundred Bench of Magistrates; he stated that he thought the suspension was permanent and that they were no longer subject to the Act, and that he had undertaken the post entirely in the interests of the members, who belonged to the village of Finborough, and were not able to look after it without assistance. A summons was taken out, but in the circumstances the Registrar offered to consent to the withdrawal of the summons on payment of costs, and on compliance with the Act.

This the defendant refused to agree to, as he would not admit he had been guilty of any offence.

The summons was returnable at the Stowmarket Petty Sessions on 17th October. Before the hearing, after some discussion, the defendant agreed to comply with Registrar's terms, and the summons was not pressed.

TRADE UNIONS.

Appendix (K.)

Particulars of Prosecutions during 1892.

As shown in Appendix (M.) the position of Trade Unions in respect of Returns was as follows :—

Number of Returns received - - -		320
Trade Unions registered previous to 1891 making no Returns - - - - - - - - -	107
Trade Unions registered in 1891, not making Returns - - - - - - - - -	66
	—	173

Taking the 107 appearing in default, they now stand as follows :—

Returns received - - - - - -	32
„ promised - - - - - -	5
Trade Unions expired or cancelled - -	56
„ „ not known - - - - -	12
„ „ outstanding - - - - -	2

Of the 56 as to the non-existence of which information has been received, many of these have ceased to exist for some years. In no case had the dissolution taken place within the six months allowed by the Summary Jurisdiction Act, so that no prosecution could be undertaken in respect of any of these numerous illegal dissolutions. There is considerable difficulty in tracing these unions. In many cases they meet at small inns, and no record is kept there of the address even of the secretary. There is often no private address in the registered rules, and when the proprietors have changed at the inns and the society has gone away without leaving any address it is impossible to find what has become of a society without spending an amount of time that would be unwarrantable under the circumstances. In the above table it is shown that there are 12 societies of which nothing is known.

Of those that have ceased to exist as separate trade unions, 12 are now represented by branches of other societies, and those are shown in the following table :—

SUMMONED.

	Fined or Withdrawn on Payment of Costs.
671. London United Mechanical Engineers' Society - - -	Fined.
476. London Hebrew Cabinet Makers' Association - - - -	Withdrawn.
291. London Affiliated Potters' Trade Society - - - -	Fined.
369. London Society of Women Employed in Shirt Collar and Under-linen Making.	Withdrawn.
457. London Journeymen Hatters' Fair Trade Union of Great Britain and Ireland.	- ditto.
599. London Slaters and Tilers' Union and Accident Benefit Society	- ditto.

It is found that the omission to make the statutory return more usually arises from carelessness rather than from wilful refusal. Societies change their place of meeting and omit to give notice to this office. They leave no address behind them, and, in consequence, all communications are returned through the post, and the forms sent each year never reach them.

Informations were laid in support of summonses against the above-named six societies. In the case of the United Mechanical Engineers' Society there was litigation between the members, and there was a question as to who were the officers liable to make the return. The society was convicted and fined 1*l.* and costs.

The London Affiliated Potters' Society, in addition to sending in no return, had failed to give notice of change of office. It was stated that there had been a strike in the trade, and all the funds having been exhausted, the society had ceased to carry on business; but no application had been made for the cancelling of registration. Summonses were therefore taken out in respect of the two offences. In the case of the annual return a conviction was obtained, and the defendant was fined 1*l.* and costs. In the other case the notice having been received and the financial position of the society having been put before the magistrate, he suggested that the summons might be withdrawn, and this course was agreed to.

Returns were received from the Hebrew Cabinet Makers' Association, the Society of Women Employed in Shirt Collar Making, and the Journeymen Hatters' Fair Trade Union before the hearing of the summonses, and the failure not having arisen from any wilful default, the summonses were withdrawn on payment of costs.

The London Slaters and Tilers' Union and Accident Benefit Society was found to have ceased to exist; another Slaters and Tilers' Society having taken its place under rules that were not registered. This summons was therefore withdrawn.

†† Out of these 11 notice of cancelling of registry on the ground that they have ceased to exist has been issued in 4 cases, and in another case that the Trade Union has violated the provisions of the Acts.

In comparing this Return with those for previous years it will have to be remembered—

1. That 51 Trade Unions are omitted from the present Return, it having been ascertained, upon taking proceedings to enforce the Return, that the Trade Unions had ceased to exist.
2. That 13 Trade Unions having been legally dissolved in 1893, and having made no Annual Returns for 1892, are not included in this Return.
3. That letters to 10 Trade Unions have been returned through the post as "not known," and these are also accordingly omitted from this list.
